THE CAULDRON

PUBLISHED ANNUALLY
BY THE SENIOR CLASS
MERCER UNIVERSITY
MACON, GA.
In this book an attempt is made to condense Mercer Campus with all its activities into a few pages so that as we leave we may carry it with us to be a reminder of familiar spots and congenial friends. We wish that we might cluster around various scenes and faces of the college all the pleasant memories connected with them. This is an impossible thing. Many of these memories are too deep for such expression. Perhaps the contents of the book will be suggestive and the happy memories of college days will live all over again. In the distant future, when the winter time of life has come to us, if these pages will awaken sweet reminiscences of days, both bright and blue, spent on Mercer Campus, then this book will be memory's dearest possession, and the editors' efforts will not have been in vain.
TO

DR. B. D. RAGSDALE

A Christian gentleman, deep scholar, eminent teacher, faithful friend and loyal son of Mercer University, we dedicate this nineteen hundred twenty-three issue of the Cauldron
"When all the temple is prepared within,
Why nods the drowsy worshipper outside?"
"Where science first dawned on the powers of reflection,
And friendships were formed too romantic to last;
Where fancy will joy to trace the resemblance
Of comrades, in friendship and mischief allied;
How welcome to me your ne'er fading remembrance!"
"With them the seed of wisdom did I sow,
And with my own hand, labored it to grow."

"Out of the window, a sea of green trees
Lift their soft boughs like the arms of a dancer;
They beckon and call me, 'Come out in the sun!'
But I cannot answer."
"All things that love the sun are out of doors—
The sky rejoices in the morning's birth."
"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree—
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast."
"A thing of beauty is a joy forever."
"But now the sun is rising calm and bright;
The birds are singing in the distant woods;
Over his own sweet voice the stock-dove broods;
The jay makes answer as the magpie chatters,
And all the air is filled with the pleasant noise of waters."
"Gray print of wavering trees on sunlit spaces,
Warm scent of locust blossoms drifting down;
A dream with spring the old frequented places,
And dream-like all familiar forms and faces;
Near and remote the busy little town."
"Books we know
Are a substantial world, both pure and good;
Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow."
"Ye distant spires, ye antique towers,
That crown the woodland glade,
Where grateful science still adores
Her Henry's holy shade."
"Order is a lovely thing;
In disarray it lays its wings,
Teaching simplicity to sing."

Class Prophecy for 1923

The radiograph has been completed, and a remarkable change has been witnessed within the radio world. Now one can sit in his own home, and with the radio developments, see the future flashed upon a screen like the motion picture theatre. But one must concentrate upon one specific group of objects in order to see into the future of that group.

After spending the day in the shopping district in town, I find that my body needs a rest. Here I will sit in my room and look into the future. My one thought is of my class, the '23 Class of "Ole" Mercer. The radiograph is showing up, and I see each of my schoolmates as he will be in the future, about ten years hence.

There he is! Bob Coleman is manager of the New York Giants, and his team is now going out on the field. Bob is leading the Giants, just as he led the bull-artists while in Mercer.

On the team list I see many names of men I can't forget. Everett is slated to twirl for the Giants, while G. L. Lovett receives them behind the platter.

Dan Hammad is now pastor of the First Baptist Church in one of our larger Northern cities, and I see him directing a meeting of the good ladies of the church.

Here! A train passes in view, and I see on the locomotive a familiar face, though very soiled with grease and smoke. "Mike" Terrell is still moving and carrying passengers with him.

The train passes on, and on the observation car quite a bit of fun is in progress. Frank Easley, now the "steel king", is seen in the company of two newspaper men of fame. Hackney, of the New York Sun, and Leggett, of the Telegraph (Macon) are trying to obtain a bit of information concerning the rise in the price of steel.

An advertisement reads: "Parker, Perry & Sheffield, Dealers in Fords. We guarantee a kick." "Deacon" Veal is now making a tour in a Ford.

Webb & Williams are sole proprietors of the W. & W. Home Maid Shoes Co., Inc., and are making good progress with their business as well as their shoes. One of the best examples of their samples will be found on the feet of Calloway, who is now a traveling man for a New York firm, and therefore needs good earth-pads.

Fred Caylor is teaching music in a conservatory for girls, and, with his tea-hound hair, has won both the heart and voice of all his pupils. Fred is assisted by Carl Lancaster, whose presence is glory for the "studies".

Latimer is coaching athletics in California, and if the teams under his direction continue as well in the future as they have in the past, he will have to go abroad to find an opponent.

Moore is seen in the pulpit of one certain New York church, and is dearly loved by all of his congregation. President Marshall, of the United States, is attending the morning service, and as corporals of his guard, Crudup, Keen, and Kelly make great soldiers.
Smith is teaching Bible A, B, C, D, etc., at Mercer University, since the work has become too strenuous for Dr. Ragsdale, who is still receiving the CASH.

"Couch, Cason & Webb" are the names that appear over the door of a beanery near Five Points, in Atlanta. Farrar and Wilkes are seated in the dining room enjoying a plate of chili and laughing over the fun seen at the basketball tournament of 1936, when Mercer won out without a scratch.

My next scene is of the state capitol of Georgia, where Governor-elect Patterson is addressing the mass. Directly behind her sit Brantley and Hulsey, reporters for the Southern Ruralist, a state publication.

As chief of police of Chicago, Adams is still leading men to rest, while Judge Andrews, of the court, a recorder of fame, is sending the men out to make little ones out of big ones.

Brogdon is street car conductor in Juliette, Ga., and has become quite a figure in the city's interests. Bryson is mayor of the city, and is ably assisted in his many duties by Jackson and York, who love responsibility.

Hart is now proprietor of the Tattnall Square Pharmacy, and is well known to the university tea hounds who saunter around his ranch to partake of his milk (chocolate) and his whipped cream.

Vincent is president of the Amalgamated Order of Railway Men, and is keeping late office hours (?).

Now I will travel on to New York along callaWAY in my new car, which runs with the HULME of a million-dollar motor. As I pass MOORE milestones I shall drive faster because I LOVE TT, and my KEEN HART is fond of riding instead of remaining at home on the COUCH in PERRY, Ga. EASLEY driving along, I shall pass numerous HACK(neys) and EVERETT time I have a puncture I shall get out and put on a new CASON. I shall carry with me a HAMMACK and a JACK(son), which WILL(jams) come in very handy after I have reached the city. When I drive my car up the way I shall stop in front of the restaurant and PARKER, where I will order a VEAL steak and spend every (vin)CENT.

Last Will and Testament

STATE OF GEORGIA, BAILIWICK OF MERCER.

E, the Senior Law Class of 1923 of the state and bailiwick aforesaid, by reason of the great physical pain, mental anguish, and spiritual travail of three long years of toil, trial, and trouble, woefully weak and feeble in body and brought now in our declining days to realize that our course in this Highway of Hades is almost run, yet being in free and full possession and control of our faculties, yea, even of exceeding sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby declare, publish, ordain and establish this, the last will and testament of Us, the said Class of 1923, to-wit:

1. We give and bequeath to our beloved faculty a reprieve from hearing and considering our many petitions to which they have so faithfully and sympathetically given hearing from time to time, and at the same time withdraw all ungranted petitions that may be before them at the time of our departure.

2. We give and bequeath the million-dollar smile of Miss Sallie to the prospective freshies of the coming school year.

3. We give and bequeath all our love letters, which contain A-1 directions as to the manner in which to approach women of different minds and love characteristics, to our old standby, "Bo" Bailey, and hope that many a moonlight night may be his night out among the fairer sex.

4. We give and bequeath the right to handle "moonshine" on the campus to Dr. Max Lassiter, A.B., P.D.X., B.U.D., etc., providing that he uses a stock of his own goods for advertisement instead of selling that which he wisely decides to discard.

5. We give and bequeath the skillful tactics of Peter Geer to Freshman Veezy, who may some day have the desire to study.

6. We give and bequeath the height of Louie Lane to Messrs. "Ike" Cowart and "Israelite" "Mike" Herndon, providing they can reduce in weight and become more alike.

7. We give and bequeath the love for women of Lawyer Jones to "Red" Simmons, feeling that he will benefit by it.

8. We give and bequeath to the hungry rats of Sherwood the food in Mercer's grit factory, wishing success through digestion.

9. We give and bequeath the smile of Smiley, the cane of Polhill, and the sideburns of J. L. C. Smith, the frown of Dubberly, to Dr. Holder, in order that he may become more familiar with the science of milking the cow and shooting the bull.

Signed, sealed, declared, and published by the Senior Law Class of 1923 as its last Will and Testament, in the presence of Us and the presence of each other, and at the request of our own conscience.

Things to Be Remembered

Psychological Test.—Freshmen find out some things they did not know. Considerable amount of uneasiness as to future marks, if they are to be based on these marks. Test condemned as being unfair.

Meeting of Senior Class.—Sophomores invited to attend. Good attendance of both. First Football Game.—Many freshmen witness their first encounter of this kind. Much discussion following the game.

Mid-Term Tests.—Much criticism heaped on English Department by first year men.

Chapel.—How to succeed made clear. Many different ways, all of which are very impractical, if not entirely impossible.

First Quarter Ends.—Examinations make final impression; much borrowing of money and drawing of drafts to buy tickets home. Great time anticipated.

Opening of Winter Term.—Boys glad to get back, but much time given to discussion of Christmas and new girls met. Unwillingness to visit Dr. Ragdale.

Cauldron Announcements Throughout the Year.—Always money attached.

Meeting of Freshmen Class.—“Bud” Andrews addresses class. Following day many orange caps in evidence at game. Evidently some connection between address and attendance.

Founder’s Day.—Visit the city of fair women. Bessie Tift girls accompany Mercer boys to Macon. Bursting hearts of pent-up love, unexpressed while listening to the four-hour program. Only a few minutes left before train time in which to pour forth volumes of sweet nothings.

Society Day.—Again the campus is prettily decorated with feminine forms, mostly from Bessie Tift and Wesleyan. Excellent debating and orations for those who heard the programs. Following this the greatest feature of the day—reception. Girls go home; lonely campus. Next day—unprepared lessons.

Banquet for Macon Business Men.—Stadium taken up and decided to place it on Mercer campus. Bright prospects for Mercer’s athletic future. Students dream of time when we will beat Tech in football.

Tournament Week.—Majority of student body much interested in Atlanta—many find their way up by various and sundry ways. Mercer goes to semi-finals, but is out-scored by Chattanooga on Friday night. Saturday—interest in tournament gone; students slowly find their way back to Macon. Much discussion of games. Following week—very little money in evidence.

More Unnecessary Trouble Caused by Order of Faculty.—Winter term examinations. Seniors slightly encouraged by the fact that only one more ordeal of such nature to be gone through before delivery of diplomas, and then a lifetime of perfect peace and happiness. Some freshmen fail despite the fact that good resolutions were made the first of the term.

Week Before Final Examinations Begin.—Everybody busy in hasty preparation for examinations. Much politicking; elections begin to be called, followed by some dissatisfaction.

Commencement Week.—Seniors in caps and gowns—very dignified. Long addresses interspersed with occasional truth. Much congratulating and advising by friends and strangers. A certain amount of satisfaction at having gotten a diploma.

Sophistication

(Sophomores)

HEN Father Time blew the trumpet for the opening of the fall term at Mercer University, the time seemed suitable for clement weather, and it was not long before the historical dust around the campus was being routed out by the hoofs of leading RATS and following sophs. The year was promising for the newly sophisticated second-year men, who had not forgotten the initiation of the previous year, when they were brought from out of the Land of Nod at a wee hour of the night and forced to ride the Sherwood Hall goat and climb the greasy pole.

The sophomore class is filled to the brim with spirit, and is not only that type of spirit which causes freshies to hug the cover, but the spirit that makes the university, the city, and the state famous for future great men. This gang of untamed, fun-loving, second-year freshmen have done more towards putting the name of Mercer throughout the United States than any or all of the other institution organizations.

When their spirit had risen to their mouths and breadbooks they could no longer resist the temptation of administering the strap to the rats who were yet unfamiliar with the type of punishment one gets in college, not because he is fresh, but because he is a freshman. So it was when the initiation started. But tables turned, and a scene of equity prevailed. The seniors were complying with the rules of the university, and were forced to give the sophs an option of the same medicine or a complimentary railroad ticket to their respective home towns. The sophs, a big collection of clear-minded men, chose the former, partly because they had received the same, or worse, when entering the school and were used to the sound of the falling leather.

The advertisement started when the news of the reaction reached the press-syndicate, where it was ushered into the Associated Press and published in all leading papers connected with the Press.

Alma Mater Song of Mercer University

(Tune: "O Mother, Dear, Jerusalem!")

O Mercer dear, with rapt delight,
Thy sons, a thousand strong,
From Rabun Gap to Tybee Light
Thy fame acclaim in song.
The glory of our Mother's face,
Effulgent evermore,
Reveals the beauty and the grace
That Mercer men adore.

Thy mission is to Mercerize
The youth who come to thee,
With alkali that beautifies
Their mental crudity.
A greater strength the fibres show,
A silken luster gleams;
The human product, they who know
Fulfillment of their dreams.

O Mother, dear, thy sons are here,
Beneath thy towers tall;
Thy name we love with holy fear—
We pledge to thee our all!
To thee with joy we give this day
The strength of mind and heart,
Thy gracious law we will obey:
"All good received, impart."

Miss Garner as a Scientist

Miss VIRGINIA GARNER, professor of journalism in Mercer University and Wesleyan College, has a different opinion about some things from that of Dr. Henry Fox, Mercer’s noted biologist.

Miss Garner says the world was founded about thirty-six years ago, while Dr. Fox tells us that, according to certain fossils, the world is over twenty million years old. The Bible tells us it is at least seven thousand years old.

My! You don’t know what or who to believe these days. From Miss Garner’s own personal experience, she should know better than that.

Why, she says, the Sun came into existence before the World was established. Now, that is an absolute denial of what the Bible says about it. And yet Miss Garner is allowed to teach in two colleges that have distinct religious ideals!

Miss Garner furthermore says the Sun rose for the first time about ninety years ago in New York City, that it had a great influence over newspapers the world over, and finally set about the time the Star arose in Kansas City.

How are you to reconcile such statements with our modern scientific facts? I should like to hear Miss Garner and Dr. Fox debate the question as to which is the oldest—the Sun or the World. She certainly needs to be put straight about these fundamental facts.

Miss Garner goes even further. She stated that one Day was the founder of the Sun. She jumbles up the Sun and the World, the Day and the Star, in such ways as to cause one to wonder sometimes if something hasn’t gone radically wrong somewhere.

This teacher of journalism speaks of a certain paper in Kansas City sending reporters to the Sun, and a certain paper in New York sending a reporter to the Star. That’s a long way to send for news. But Miss Garner thinks it is fair for some newspapers to send all over the universe for news, and then insist that we localize everything we write.

Personally, I believe that if Miss Garner would confine her teaching to newspaper work alone, stay off the sciences, and quit worrying about the different planets, with their relationship to the world, I for one would know more about how to write a “feature” story for the papers.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL
SMITH, BEST ATHLETE IN 1922
CAPTAIN CARL weighs about 175, and plays center. He has finished three years of good football for Mercer, proving to be one of the steadiest men on the team. He is strong on both offense and defense, and well deserves the honor of being captain of one of the best teams Mercer has had in several years. He was unable to play in many of the games this year on account of dengue fever. The Mercer team suffered defeat several times, perhaps, because “Lank” was out of the game. His name will be remembered many years as one of our cleanest football men. Our loss is heavy as Carl leaves the University.

“Kid” Cecil is indispensable to Mercer’s football work. With clear head and strong body, he has made many wonderful plays on the football battle front. His enemies are always at a loss as to what “Kid” is going to do next. He has the honor of captaining the ’23 squad for Mercer. With Cecil as captain, prospects are bright for the coming season. One characteristic of his is that he is every inch a man. No more strength, grit, and determination could possibly be put in the given space. We are entertaining great hopes for Cecil next year.
CONSELLO SMITH finished his second year as one of the best ends in the South. The combination of Erwin-Smith proved to be good for a number of teams last year, the forward passes of the pair sending Mercer home with the bacon. Oglethorpe was one big team that got the worst end of the argument with Smith and Erwin. As a hard tackler and all-round end, Smith took off highest honors, and Mercer is fortunate to have such a man to return for two more years to play end.

"Shorty" Pore is a miracle in football. Though short in length, he is long in everything else. He has been a material factor in the winning of many of Mercer’s games. The future looks promising; indeed, with such men as Pore coming back to take his place on the Mercer eleven. While in the game he is in it in deed and truth. “Shorty” is always one of the surprises to the opposing teams. They wonder just how he did it so quickly. Pore can always be depended upon to respond when it is his time to act.

NORMAN FELDER, performing for the second year as a backfield man on the Baptist outfit, developed into one of the best broken field runners in college football, and numbers of experts considered him as looking good for a place on the mythical all-Southern eleven. Felder starred in many of the games last fall, especially in the Oglethorpe battle, and it was largely due to his long runs that Mercer won over her biggest rival.
HARMAN is an athlete of no mean ability, better known as a basketball man, but has had many football stars added to his crown while at Mercer. Judging from his size, one would hardly think George could properly wear football togs, but, after seeing him play, there is no doubt that he deserves highest honors in this peculiar type of athletics. His ability to run with the ball and to tackle hard and sure has made him a very valuable man. His speed and headwork made him a dangerous man to the opponents on both offense and defense. We are hoping to keep George his allotted four years with the Mercer squad.

RICE is another representative of Tennessee manhood. While at Mercer he has been a valuable asset in building the reputation of the Orange and Black fighters. He is a tower of strength at his position, and very few plays get by him. He has a good head and uses it as well as his strength in defeating opponents. Opposing teams hate to see Rice on the Mercer squad. Through the fall season a football is his closest companion.

"BUBBER" POPE is widely known for his football ability. He is noted on the gridiron for his fighting spirit, and always gives his opponent as much as he can handle. He knows the art of going through the line to the serious detriment of the opposition. Pope's future in football is bright. He has the fighting spirit in the superlative degree which wins for him fame in the game. We are expecting great things from him in the future.
In "Mike" Herndon, the Baptists have one of the best football players that can be found in Dixie. While not such a fast man, "Mike" was wonderful on defense, and his work on the Oglethorpe and Georgia games marked him as a player above the average. The combination of "Mike" and "Ike" was almost as good on defense as the Smith-Erwin pair were on the offensive.

"Sid" Johnson, mentioned by several newspapers for a berth on the all-Southern train, completed his fourth year as center on the Baptist football team. Johnson played wonderfully in many of the games in the '22 season, especially against Georgia and Oglethorpe. One Georgia player stated that "Sid" was one of the best centers that he had played against in several years, which is no small tribute, coming from a representative of the Red and Black. "Sid" captained the '22 eleven, and proved an all-round football man, being popular with every man on the squad.

Jowers is one of the best prospects for the '23 line-up. He has every qualification for a superb football man. This is his first year with the team, and he has made a wonderful show. To Mercer men, Jowers is one of the anchor stakes for the future. It is his intention to return, and the man who tries to win his place will have to show some real football.
Ed. Erwin, also a backbone of strength to the Baptist eleven, did some good work during the '22 schedule, aiding materially in the defeat of Oglethorpe, with his great hurling of passes and with his defensive work. Ed. left Mercer at the close of the winter term, and it was regretted by every Mercer fan who had seen the big boy in action.

"Judge" Dasher's size and football appearance has been a terror to opposing teams as they have met the Mercer squad. As lineman, "Judge" has always been known to do his best. Life is football to him, whether on or off the field. His interest can be aroused no more quickly than by a discussion of a game. All regret the fact that he is not to be a member of the '23 squad.

"Red" has donned a Mercer football uniform for the past two years, doing much credit to the Orange and Black. "Red" comes from Tennessee, bringing all the strength and fight of his state with him. Where Mercer goes on the field, "Red" proves to the spectators the possibility of combining real football and clean sportsmanship. He never fails to open a hole through the opposing line when his signal is given to do this work. "Red" has played in practically every game since coming to Mercer.
“Ike” Cowart was again a tower of strength to the Mercer football team, although the big man was unable to play in many of the games on account of illness. “Ike” had nothing more to do than set himself, and only a few football players could move him from their path. The last season was the fourth season for “Ike” on the football team, and Mercer fans regret to see him leave the ranks of Mercer’s grid warriors.

In Woolwine we have a genuine football player. In the games that he played, he showed up remarkably well. He plays a steady, consistent game at all times. Woolwine can be counted on at all times to put his very best in the fight.

Barron is a very dependable man in the Mercer line. For the past two years he has been substitute center, and in the absence of “Sid”, will have an opportunity to prove that he is made of football material when the training season for ’23 and ’24 opens. Barron works hard whether the team is winning or losing, and if there is anything happening on his side of the line, he can be counted on to be in it.
"Coot" Lynch, letter man, who came into prominence during the 1922 season, appears to be one of the outstanding men that the Baptist coaches have. At end, Lynch is fast, and starred in several contests, while he was used in the backfield in a few games. But, whether at end, full, or halfback, "Coot" delivers the goods on every occasion, and he will make a good man to use when Ed. Erwin does not return.

"Dutch" has the old fighting spirit characteristic of Mercer football players. After a game no one can say he did not do his best, because he always gives the enemy the full benefit of every inch of his strength, which is much compared with his size. "Dutch" promises to be one of the outstanding men in Mercer's future football career.

Gaines is fast becoming a part of Mercer's football tradition. He is always ready with his contribution for the development of a winning team. His size is matched well with the fighting spirit. While in the game fire can be seen in his eyes and win in his charges. On defense he can be depended on to get his man if he has half a chance. We are glad Gaines is planning to return for next year's battles.
Mercer has never had just such a man before as she has in Maddox. His name, "Bullet" is the best index possible to his nature. Small, but determined and tough. Due to his size, he has not been placed in many of the games, but if his fighting spirit was matched with a little more weight, "Bullet" would be hard to stop. When anyone else is on the field, Maddox is to be found there ready with his part of the work. "Bullet's" spirit of win will make Mercer's team the winning team of the South.

Sammons, commonly known as "Son", has finished his second year as substitute on the Mercer eleven. He is always ready when called upon to do his part of the fighting. It is "Son's" intention to return for the contests of '23. With the two years' training, we are thinking that he will be good timber out of which to build the squad of next year. He is a hard worker, and never becomes discouraged.

The Orange and Black is indeed fortunate to have such a man as Shiftlet to carry it on to success. This is his first year, but we are glad it is not to be his last. He has every qualification for a good football player—a good head, plenty of strength, and a sufficiency of the fighting spirit to enable him to be the terror of any enemy. Mercer's future in football looks bright as the morning with such prospects as Shiftlet.

Mercer vs. Oglethorpe

In winning over the Oglethorpe Petrels, Mercer rounded out a most successful season in football. In the early part of the year, illness tore the squad all to pieces, and Mercer never reached her full strength until the battle against the Petrels.

In the Georgia game, which was won by the Bulldogs by the overwhelming score of 41 to 0, Mercer was at her lowest, for many of the regulars were unable to make the trip to the Classic City on account of illness. Some of the men who were taken could not enter the game for the same reason, and Georgia literally ran over the weakened Baptist eleven.

Auburn sent Mercer home with the small end of a 50 to 7 score, but the fighting Baptist band deserves a lot of credit for their achievement in tallying seven points against the conquerors of Georgia and other big Southern teams.

Mercer was gradually coming to her own by the time of the Vanderbilt game, and the Commodores, boasting one of the greatest elevens in their history, held only twenty-five points margin over the Mercerians at the close of the game. The Baptists fought every inch of the way, and deserve words of credit for holding Vandy to such a close score.

With all the big teams safely behind, Mercer began to take on new life. Maryville College, from Tennessee, was given the worst of a 12 to 0 argument. Mercer played as never before, for the visitors presented one of the strongest teams that appeared in Macon during the season.

The real victory, according to the standpoint of a Mercerian, was the 18 to 16 defeat of Oglethorpe. For the past three years the Petrels had journeyed to Macon with the express purpose of beating the Baptists as badly as possible. They had been successful for two years, and being held to a 7 to 6 score in 1921, they were eager to prove they were much better than Mercer.

Soon after the first whistle blew the Petrels ran wild, kicking a field goal, and scoring a touchdown within a few minutes. With the count standing at Mercer 0, Oglethorpe 10, the Baptist eleven woke up and began a steady march down the field, putting across a touchdown in short order, and following with another immediately, which gave the Mercer team a margin of two points.

At the beginning of the second half, Mercer tallied another touchdown, bringing the score still further apart. But Oglethorpe staged a rally, and added another six points to her total. That ended the scoring, leaving the count with Mercer holding 18 points while Oglethorpe had 16. The impossible had happened. Mercer had actually beaten the high and mighty Petrels, the pride of Atlanta, and local fans went wild with joy. Another win in 1923 is now the ambition of every man on the Baptist squad.

Norman Felder was one of the prominent figures in causing the downfall of Oglethorpe. Time after time the speedy halfback circled the end for long gains, or ran through the whole Petrel team for substantial additions to Mercer's total ground gained.

Smith and Erwin also starred in this game, the famous pair getting over one of their passes for the first touchdown.
BASKETBALL TEAM
Robert M. Gamble, pivot man on the Mercer five for four years, and selected on the second all-star Southern team of 1922, will be seen no more on the basketball court as member of the Orange and Black quintet. Rounding out his fourth year, "Bob" finished in a blaze of glory, and Mercer supporters hate to see the popular center leave the University. Gamble captured the Mercer squad during the last season, and rendered a great deal to Coach "Josh" Cody in turning out the great team of 1923. "Bob's" unselfishness allowed another man to try his hand at the pivot position, and Mercer will have another center as good as "Bob" when the next season comes.

Giddens Wilkes, player-manager of the 1923 team, completed his second year as member of the Baptist squad, and it is hoped by all that the little man will be able to return to Mercer next year. Wilkes will graduate this year, but is being urged to return to take postgraduate work. The little forward, who was running mate to Smith throughout the season, played wonderful basketball during the tournament. Each time he was sent into the game it seemed the entire team was speeded up, and Mercer won at least three of her games by the work of this man. Although not good enough a shot to make a berth on the all-Southern team, Wilkes was favorably mentioned by many of the writers who were present at the meet, and should he play another season for the Orange and Black, it is believed he will make the five with ease.

To George, our mighty guard, is due much of the success of the Mercer five. He is small, but he sticks to a big forward as if he weighed 200 pounds. He is an excellent dribbler and passer, and cannot be beaten as a running guard. George is not only gifted in the art of dribbling and passing, but ranks among the best as a basketeer. George is noted for doing the unusual and extraordinary. With basketball fans, George is the most popular man in the game. Due to a broken finger, he was not able to show his best in the tournament. This meant two things: First, Mercer was not final winner in the tournament, and next, George was not given the deserved place of all-Southern. Had he been in good condition the last would have been a great day for Mercer in the tournament.

Emmett Pope, substitute forward, did not deserve the stroke of hard luck that was handed him all through the year. In a number of the games he could not play on account of bad ankles, and sickness later kept him from working much in the big tournament. Pope made the trip to the East with the team, and was one of the sensations revealed on the longest road trip ever taken by a Dixie basketball team.
Lambert Smith, known to the students and fans as "Consuello", finished his second year as a member of the Mercer basketball squad. "Smitty" was one of the outstanding stars on the Baptist five throughout the schedule, and received a unanimous vote for all-Southern selection at his regular position at forward. The lanky Tennessean showed class far above that of any other basketeer in the dual S. I. A. A. and S. I. C. tournament. His work in the tourney was characterized by the speed, cleanliness of play, and accuracy of shooting that has been noticed since the beginning of his stay at Mercer. One of the sport writers in Atlanta mentioned Smith as one of the cleanest players in Southern ball, although he was put out of three games during the tournament for four personals. It is the desire to put everything into the fight that causes so many violations of the rules, according to the writer.

Manly McWilliams, playing his first year as a regular man at a guard position, starred brilliantly in many of the games during the regular schedule, and his name was thought of prominently in the selection of the all-star guard. Few guards in the South are better than Mercer's standing guard, and many of the victories credited to the Baptist five are due in large measure to McWilliams. Next year should bring out everything the Dalton boy has in him, and Mercer is indeed fortunate in having such a man to take care of the opponents' goal.

Jared Simmons, the fiery-haired giant from Tennessee, came into his own during the past season as a member of the Mercer squad. While obliged to hob to the tournament in 1922, "Red" rode a Pullman in the following year's meet, and he went as one of the best men on the Orange and Black team. Several games were won through the direct efforts of Simmons, who starred consistently at his position of center. In the tourney, "Red" received many compliments, and an injury to his ankle was all that kept him off the all-Southern five, as well as kept Mercer from entering the finals. In the Chattanooga game, he had to be removed from the game, and Mercer's downfall began with the departure of "Red" from the battle.

Ellison is one of the best forwards in the state. He is fast and knows the game from beginning to end. "Sid" gives all the guards in the country a good time, and always comes out on top. When a few points are needed he is somewhere around to add them to Mercer's score. Ellison makes Mercer hearts glad when he says he will be back for his place on the team in '24. With such as "Sid" on the team, Mercer will march on to victory in the tournament the third time we enter.

“Is May the kind of girl that gives you any encouragement?”

“Judge for yourself. The last time I called on her she kept wondering what it would feel like to have whiskers on her face.”

* * *

She: “Papa said you had more money than brains.”

Reggie: “Ha! That’s one on your father—I’m broke.”

“Yes; papa added that you were.”

* * *

Tom: “What makes you think she doesn’t like you?”

John: “She told me she thought there was a fool in every family.”

“Well, what of that?”

“I’d just gotten through telling her that I was an only child.”

* * *

Judge: “Have you ever been before me before?”

Defendant: “No, your honor; but I’ve seen one face that looks like yours, and that was the picture of an English king.”

“Discharged. Next case!”

* * *

George Kimsey: “Just what are Italian forget-me-nots?”

Bud Andrews: “At a venture I should say garlic.”

* * *

“Are you master in your own home?”

“I certainly am!”

“Wife’s away on a visit, eh?”

* * *

Daughter: “It is perfectly silly for you to object to my marrying Herbert.”

Father: “Well, what has he got?”

Daughter: “He—he has pretty teeth, dark, wavy, hair, and—and, the softest brown eyes.”

* * *

Suspicious Wife (who had waited until midnight for her husband’s return): “Where have you been all evening?”

Culprit: “I’ve been talking business matters over with Tom Baker.”

“Yes? And I suppose that is baking powder sprinkled all over your shoulder?”

TO MEN, ONLY!

You chided
When we wore skirts, short;
Derided,
When we wore ‘em long;
We chatter,
As a last resort,
No matter
What we wear, we’re wrong.
The last ones
Pick up germs and dirt;
The last ones
Pick up men, who flirt;
So, if you have a panacea,
Just come across with your idea.

* * *

“Is this a second-hand store?”

“Yessum.”

“Well, I want one for my watch.”

* * *

Kissing a girl is like opening a bottle of olives—if you can get one, the rest come easy.

* * *

Lady: “How did you learn to beg in such pitiful fashion?”

William Weary: “I once had a rich wife, lady.”

* * *

“Why do you call a kid like yours a young hopeful?”

“I dunno. Maybe the kid’s hopeful. We ain’t.”

* * *

More Brains (at piano recital): “What is that charming thing he is playing?”

Less Brains: “A piano.”

* * *

The chairman of the board of directors was close. He came in late as a ballot was being taken, thought they were trying to put something over on him, and yelled: “I don’t know what you are balloting on, but I’m against it.”

“You’ve got plenty of company,” said a quiet old director.

“Hey?”

“The vote was on a motion I made to buy you a gold watch.”

"Just what kind of exercise do you need?" asked the warden.
"I'd like to skip the rope," he said.

A young woman of heroic build met a man who had known her father and mother.
As he gazed at this plump Juno the light of memory came into his eyes. "Let me see," he mused, "which side of the house do you resemble most?"
"Sir!" she cried, in accents far from mild, "I don't resemble the side of any house!"

Magistrate: "Did the prisoner offer any resistance?"
Officer: "Only half a dollar, your honor, an' I wouldn't take it."

Office boy: "A man outside the gate to see you, sir."
St. Peter: "Who is he?"
"A business man who was always too busy to see anyone."
"Put him in the red-hot waiting room and tell him I'm in conference."

"Congratulations, old man! I hear you're engaged. Good looking?"
"Well, to be honest, she's no Venus."
"Intellectual?"
"Heavens, she's not so homely as all that!"

Cason: "Do you take Tanlac?"
Jennie Clark: "No; who teaches it?"

"That's what I call a finished sermon," said a lady to her husband as they wended their way home from church.
"Yes," was the reply, "but, you know, I thought it never would be."

Smith: "Is it possible to confide a secret to you?"
Jones: "Certainly. I will be as silent as the grave."

Smith: "Well, then, I have a pressing need for five bucks."
Jones: "Don't worry. It is as if I had heard nothing."

"What luck!" remarked Mike Herndon, as he saw the table laden with steak.
"Yes," answered Ike Cowart, "but it is tough luck."
