Memories! Oh, what earthy state is nearer heaven than that in which dreamy reminiscences of former pleasures occupy the thought? And in what period of life are experiences, worthy of remembrance, crowded with such variety and such rapidity as the care-free years on a college campus? Truly, college life is the only life!

Alas, that it is impossible to live over every experience of those pleasurable days!

This book has one primary object in view—that of resurrecting, reclaiming and restoring the manifold experiences of campus life at Mercer University. If a perusal of these pages dispels the shrouds and mists of forgetfulness, if the reader is transported across the chasm of time to live again on Mercer Campus—then the efforts of the compilers of this volume will not be in vain.

When Peyton Jacob took charge of Mercer's Summer School in 1919 there were eighty-eight pupils enrolled. In the five years of his administration, the enrollment has climbed to 342. With the 1925 summer session it is his goal to have 500.

Not only has his success here been of a numerical character. In the session of last year included in the classes under his direction were twenty-five county school superintendents and principals of high schools. A dean and science department head of one of Georgia's largest women's colleges came to study under Professor Jacob.

In his regime the school of education has been brought from a mere department to a school ranking with the South's best. The graduate work has been notably enlarged, a demonstration high school was installed, and research work is given much emphasis.

Professor Jacob came to Mercer in 1918 from Baylor College, where he had been dean of the Summer School and director of Summer Normal. He received his A.B. and A.M. from Mississippi College, was Fellow in Education while studying at University of Chicago and for six years was public school superintendent.

He has been a member of the Mississippi State Textbook Commission, and besides being director of summer activities, was professor of Philosophy and Education at Baylor College, 1911-18. Since being at Mercer he has been away on leave of absence to work on a Ph.D. degree at the George Peabody School, Nashville. This degree is to be awarded him in the near future, he now being at work on his thesis.

Super-Summer Schoolers

Traditions of 91 years' standing lay crumbling in the grip of co-eds of Mercer's last Summer School.

"Mr. Chairman", for nearly a century the mode of addressing the presiding officer at student meetings, met a sudden demise. "Madam Chairman" it came to be.

Fourteen university presidents and upward of a hundred student heads have ruled meetings at Mercer since its founding in 1833. Only stolid, coarse-voiced and dominating men have been chosen to hush the tumult of voices and floor-disputes.

But with the coming of the last Summer School a new era began. The doubt of woman's predominancy was dispelled. Mercerites of the masculine persuasion sat quietly by while the once more-timid co-eds held the parliamentary whiphand.

Miss Evelyn Williams, of Woodbury, Ga., during the school year a student of Bessie Tift College, officiated as vice-president of the summer student body, marking the first time in the university's history when a feminine hand wielded the college gavel.

Miss Louise Shurley, of Macon, was selected the prettiest girl of Mercer's vacation session, running slightly ahead of Miss Josephine Williams, of Thomaston, for this honor.

Other titles awarded in the contest conducted by the 1925 Cauldron were: Most Attractive Girl, Miss Louise Bennett, Tampa, Fla.; Most Studious, Miss Annie Lawrence Riley, Macon; Most Wifey-Like, Miss Mildred Harris, Sandersville; Most Handsome Man, Dave C. Rice, Nashville, Tenn.; Best-Natured Man, Isaac Cowart, Colquitt, Ga.; Biggest Ladies' Man, Sidney H. Ellison, Jellico, Tenn., and Most Hubby-Like, John S. Weaver, Buena Vista, Ga.

CHARLES HUBERT BERRYMAN, A.B., M.A.

Pi Kappa Alpha; President Ciceronian Society, '23; Class Basketball, '21; President Junior Class, '22, '23; Alembic Club; Athletic Board of Control, '24; Mercer Round Table; Pan-Hellenic Council, '24; President School of Pre-Engineering, '21; Instructor in Mathematics, '24, '25; A.B., Mercer, '24.

Charlie is still "one of the boys." Although he is one of the Faculty members he has lost none of that former congeniality and easy-going nature that elevated him in the esteem of everyone. To know him one year ago in the undergraduate school is to know him now. No trait of character is to be more desired than amiability—and Charlie has an abundant supply. Charlie is majoring in Mathematics, minoring in Physics and Education. The subject for his thesis is "Mathematics of Radio".

DURWARD VEASEY CASON, A.B., M.A.

Warrenton, Georgia

Durwood returns to us a serious, sober man. Teaching is conducive to thoughtfulness. He enters wholeheartedly into his work, and gives the pupils in his classes the full benefit of his varied experience. Durward, the world holds unlimited opportunities for a conscientious man like you. We, who knew you in the older days, know that you have the "stuff" to make good. English will be his major, while his minors are in Theology and Education. Thesis: "Hawthorne as a Spiritual Teacher."

"He private marked the fault of others' way
And set as seal marks for himself to shun."

CLAUDE MILTON COALSON, A.B., M.A.

Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Ministerial Conference; Masonic Club; Secretary Ministerial Association, '22; Intercollegiate Debater, '23, '24; Business Manager Cluster, '23; Winner of Medal in Oratory, '22; Drewery Medal in Public Speaking, '23; Assistant in Public Speaking, '24, '25.

Years ago Coalson won the first honor medal at the Seventh District A. & M. School. Since that time he has continued to add honor after honor until he has accumulated an auspicious aggregation of bays and laurel leaves. Coalson is primarily the orator. He speaks clearly, forcefully and eloquently. None of his congregation will ever go to sleep in his sermons. There is too much fire, too much deep-founded sincerity in his presentation of his subject. Coalson is majoring in Theology and minorin in Greek and Church History.

"To drawn folk to heaven by fairness
By good ensample, this was his baysiaesse."

ANDREW BYRON COUCH, A.B., M.A., B.D.

Macon, Ga.

Ministerial Association; Ministerial Conference; Intercollegiate Debate, '23; Senior Class Historian, '23; Classical Club; President of Ministerial Association; A.B., Mercer, '23; M.A., Mercer, '24.

Couch has an astounding and wonder-provoking amount of perseverance. Look, three degrees to his credit. He is a student to the very core. Theology has been his major study. And the church that secures his service will have a man whose rich treasury of thoughts will evoke admiration and whose deep religious beliefs will interpenetrate every mind.

"His grandeur he derived from Heaven above,
For he was great, ere Fortune made him so."
WILLIAM WALTON EVERETT, A.B., B.S.E., M.A.
Hawkinsville, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Ministerial Conference; Corresponding Secretary Baptist Volunteers; Volunteer Band; Oratorio Club '18; Assistant Professor Biology, Summer School, '24; Manager Dining Hall, '23, '24, '25; Alembic Club; Assistant Professor in Education, '24, '25; A.B., Mercer, '24.

Affable, sincere, consistent, a friend to all, an enemy to none, liberal in his views, wide in his information, a disciple of truth, a Christian and a gentleman—such a man is William Everett.

The honors listed above speak eloquently of his college record. No need for more words. Everett's ambition, so typical of his character, is "To Teach the Truth." And, William, we know that you will realize your desire.

Biology is Everett's major, Public School Administration his first minor and Secondary Education his second minor.

Thesis: "The Conjugation and Encystment of Protozoa."

"As a teacher of wisdom he may be confidently followed. His religion has nothing in it enthusiastic or superstitious."

ROY C. SMITH, A.B., M.A.
Demorest, Georgia

A.B., Piedmont College; Sophomore Law, Mercer; Masonic Club.

Roy, having received his bachelor's degree at Piedmont College, is now hard at work on a master's and a law degree. He is majoring in Education and minoring in English and Law.

Smith is an assistant in English, aiding in the recording and grading of themes. Quiet and unassuming, yet he has a most vigorous mind. A brief conversation with him shows what a really broad background of information he has. He is endowed with a clear, incisive and copious intellect that assures him success either as a lawyer or a professor. The unfortunate thing about Roy is that more students are not acquainted with him—for their sakes.

"No one ever took him for a fool, but none, except his intimate friends, know he has a great deal of wit."

ADLAI GUY WELCH, A.B., M.A.
Chickamauga, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; President Ciceronian Society, '24; Class Baseball, '21, '22, '23; Class Football, '24; President Volunteer Band; President Y. M. C. A., '22; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '24; Ministerial Association; All-Class Fullback, '24; Senior Class Football, '24; Mathematics Teacher in Demonstration School, '24, '25.

A large and unstinted supply of credit should be given to those who, after completing regular college work, remain to secure post-graduate degree. Guy deserves whatever praise we may bestow upon him. He has been one of the steadiest, most consistent and studious men on the campus for five years. And now as he secures his Master's degree we rejoice with him.

Guy will probably enter the ministry after he receives this last degree. And, since he is majoring in Theology, there is every reason to believe that his church will be fortunate indeed.

Thesis: "Religions Contemporary with Judaism."

Major: Old Testament and Theology.

Minors: Hebrew and Education.

"Whatever he attempted he performed."
To the Senior Class

Come, Senior Class of Twenty-Five,
Let golden memories now revive:
Four years ago with yearning hearts
We quit the plow for Learning's arts;
Our homes and friends were left behind;
The ease of leisure we declined
To search for Truth, for Wit and Knowledge—
Fresh from the farm we came to College.

Our Freshman year! What body aches
Those awful months in mind awakes!
And yet, 'twas then we learned control, 'Twas needed to perfect the whole.
As Sophomores we knew the most,
Of every art we then could boast.
But doubt revived in the Junior Year;
We realized what meagre sphere
Our knowledge touched in the universe,
Vain vauntings soon we did disperse.

As Seniors, now, our knowledge seems
The merest shadow of our dreams;
We thought to assuage our thirst for learning
And have but a drop to ease the burning.
And yet, as backward now we gaze,
How pleasurable were our College days.
May these random pages e'er revive
Those joyous hours, Oh, Twenty-Five.

—Emceebee.

ELMER GUY ALFORD, A. B.
Hartwell, Georgia.

Kappa Alpha; Glee Club four years; Quartet in '21, '22; Secretary of Glee Club, '22, '23; Assistant Manager, Glee Club, '24, '25; Y. M. C. A. Committeeman.

Guy's history at Mercer is intimately connected with the history of the Glee Club. As it has developed, so has he. And now as he leaves college for life in the wide, wide world where money makes music, he carries with him many qualifications of a par excellent Glee Clubber.

Alford is one of the most polite men on the campus. His decorum might be well observed by all. He is a regular Chesterfield. Punctuality he shuns. But his pleasant humor, good nature, ability to appreciate good clean jokes make him especially popular among his classmates. The world must be entertained, and Guy is not averse.

Already his circle of friends is large. And success in his chosen line of work, that of salesmanship, is assured since acquiring and retaining the good will of customers is the basis of that vocation. There is no need to call his attention to the motto: Sell yourself, and you have sold your goods.

"If we always face the sunshine, the shadows will fall behind."

GREEN FLOYD ALFORD, Jr., B. S. C.

'Bubber'
Sylvester, Georgia.

Phi Delta Theta; Phi Delta Literary Society; French Club.

"Bubber" came to Mercer well recommended. At Riverside Academy he made a remarkable record, being a member of the Theta Sigma Fraternity, Democracy Hall Club, Robert R. Lee and Georgia Clubs. And his record at Mercer is simply a prolongation of that prep school career.

Society holds an especial charm for "Bubber". He "rates" among the very best. It must be mis-interpreted, however—since he does not permit his extra-academic activities to interfere with his studies. "Bubber" is a good student, as is demonstrated by the fact that he is a member of the "French Club", a group of men who gained entrance by high class records.

"Bubber's" ambition is to be a businessman—not a bad idea this day and time. Best luck to you, "Bubber", and we are watching for the day when your heart's hope will become an actuality.

"Life is yours—make of it what you will."

HUGH RAINLEY AWTREY, A. B.
Franklin, North Carolina.

Alpha Tau Omega; Editor-in-Chief, "Cluster", '23, '24; Vice-President of Senior Class; Senior Round Table; Class Football, '23, Presidents' Club; Duke's Club; CAULDRON Staff.

Hugh majored in Journalism. He was the outstanding writer during his last two years at Mercer. Hugh, not content with college writing, accepted a position on one of Macon's dailies. He held this position in addition to his duties at college.

But, alas, his journalistic tendency suffered a reverse, and in its place came the desire to teach French. And thus it came about that the New Year, '25, found Hugh sailing for France. Hugh will receive his diploma this Spring by transferring his credits from Paris to Mercer.

Hugh informs us confidentially that his ambition is to marry a millionaire. How about that for candidness? He further tells us that he intends to be a professor. It requires no great imagination to understand why he considers the financial rather than the intellectual qualifications of the future Mrs. Awtrey.

"He that hath sense hath strength."

James Franklin Biles, A.B.
Griffin, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society: Class Football, '24.
While attending Sixth District A. & M. School, Biles garnered in a number of noteworthy honors. Among them were: Society Debater, member of Basketball and Baseball teams, and President of the Literary Society.

But a man with Biles' ambition, that of becoming a Doctor of Medicine, has small time for honors when he reaches a pre-med school. "It's Lab, Lab, Lab, morning, noon and night." And we find a student Biles at Mercer.

We realize more and more as we approach our last days in college that light conversation and too much forwardness are not necessarily the earmarks of intelligence. On the other hand the belief becomes firmly fixed that the men who are to be best representatives of our class will be the men who were quiet, sober thinking men. Of that type Biles is an excellent example.

Biles, we are positive you will become one of our foremost "medicos". We believe that you will checkmate the diseases that stalk through our land. Luck to you!

"Kings destroy, but physicians preserve the human race."

Loy John Bowen, B.S.C.
Amherst, Georgia

Masonic Club; Phi Delta Literary Society; Oratorical "13"; Assistant Instructor in Accounting, '24, '25.

There is no need of commenting on Loy's ability. The fact that he was selected as an Assistant in Accounting speaks eloquently of his merits. Both Faculty and students are more than pleased with his instruction.

Bowen's modesty prevented him from divulging his ambition, but we can readily imagine him managing the business department of some large commercial firm. It may be that he will turn his eyes toward the field of public accounting, or bank examining. In either case we are confident that his opportunities are excellent. He is thoroughly conversant with his chosen work, Accounting. Whatever your choice falls upon, Loy, we hope for you the complete realization of your dreams.

"Do your best at all times,—one can never tell who is watching."

Howard Jackson Bivins, B.S.C.
Haddock, Georgia

Mercer Round Table; Oratorical "13"; President of the Presidents' Club; Phi Delta Society; Secretary and Treasurer, Sophomore Class, '23; President of Phi Delta Society, '24; Secretary and Treasurer of Presidents' Club; Treasurer of Senior Class; President of the Y. M. C. A.; Student Professor.

Howard, "Gold Star" man from G. M. C., began accumulating honors at Mercer as soon as he entered. He has a golden record. Beginning in his Sophomore year he has had a continuous hold on the purse strings of some organization—culminating in the Treasurer of the Student Body.

It is his rich sincere and honest personality that raised him to the President of the Y. M. C. A. Yes, there is a ring of the true metal in his character. As President of the Presidents' Club, he performed his duties in a most conscientious and admirable manner. That organization, under his administration, was very active and did much to improve conditions in the college.

We are not the class prophet, but we believe we can see Bivins in the place he aspires to—A Certified Public Accountant.

"Honor him for thine own honor—better is he than the best."
William Osborn Brown, A.B., Th.B.
Canon, Georgia

Ministerial Association; School Organizer of Bibb County.

Brown is able to secure more than one degree this year because he is a former student of Gibbon Mercer Academy and also of the Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

It is Brown's ambition to become not merely a minister of the people, but also to become a teacher. His work as school organizer fits him for realizing his dream of a Georgia that is free from the curse of illiteracy. Like the philosopher of old, he considers ignorance one of the worst afflictions of mankind.

You have a great task ahead, Brown, but with your concentrated efforts you are sure to push back the overhanging cloud of ignorance that blights our fair state. A noble ideal, yours!

"He who works for humanity will succeed."

Joseph Louie Buchanan, Jr., B.S.C.
Dalton, Georgia

Louie is the biggest little man on the campus. He is indispensable to the Senior Class as Secretary. While not husky enough to participate in intercollegiate athletics he has shown his interest in sports by his excellent management of teams.

Decorous, suave and eternally smiling—that is Louie. To imagine Louie bitter or sarcastic is to imagine honey sour. He lives and thinks the part of a "Christian Gentleman", and as such he has already attained his ambition. The feverish, irreligious world needs more Louie Buchanans. He is a credit to the Senior Class. To know him is to like him.

"Friend! gracious word!—the heart to tell is ill able Whence came to man this jewel of a syllable."

Martin Calhoun Burghard, L.L.B., A.B.
Macon, Georgia

Pi Kappa Alpha; Adano; L.L.B., Mercer, '22; Class Testator, '22; Society Day Orator, '22; Ciceronian Society; Alternate Intercollegiate Debater, '23; Chairman Entertainment Committee for Student Chapel Exercises, '23, '25; Cluster Staff, '22, '23, '24, '26; Mercer Players, '23, '24, '25; Chairman Student Committee for Publishing "M Book", '24; Vice-Presidents, Presidents' Club, '24; Pan-Hellenic Council, '24, '25; Pan-Hellenic Representative at State Inter-Fraternity Conference, Atlanta, Ga., December, '24; Senior Class Poet, '25; Mercer Round Table; Editor-in-Chief THE CAULDRON, '25.

Poet, journalist, editorial writer, philosopher, speaker, actor, student committeeman, scholar, dreamer and idealist—such a man is Burghard. Scarcely any phase of academic activity has escaped him. A cursory survey of his honors shows him to be a Doer.

When does he have time? He works all night, attends classes all morning, and is seen hurrying on business during the afternoon. Yet the Cluster each week has several contributions signed "Emceebee".

He has been known to go for several weeks on four and five hours rest, some days not even retiring.

Such is his character, restless and energetic. He lived and preached unrest. His ideal for student life led him on and on—and he fretted that less dynamic minds would not or could not follow his winging ideals. His ambition: "To discover one unsullied pleasure."

Bold of his speech and wry, and well y-taught,
And of manhood him lacked right naught."
CECIL C. CADENHEAD, B.S.C.
Zebulon, Georgia

Alpha Lambda Tau; Freshman Basketball, '22; Scrub Team, '23; Varsity, '24, '25; "M" Club.

There is one outstanding, commendable quality in the character of Cecil. That praiseworthy attribute is persistence. Cecil won a berth on Mercer's Basketball team by continued applied effort. He set his face toward the goal and worked until he reached it.

Cecil hails from Zebulon High School, at which institution he was first honor man. He also was a debater and member of both basketball and track teams.

Cecil has a most refreshing personality. He never allows himself or his friends to become discouraged. This ability to inspire is a rare and precious jewel. Cecil hopes to become a successful business man, and there is nothing that can prevent him from realizing this ambition. Follow your college methods, Cecil. Stick it out, be consistent in your efforts and one morning you and the Senior Class will wake up and find that you have become that for which you yearned.

"Fight to the end—if beaten, admit it, but try again."

FLOYD SANFORD CANTRELL, A.B.

Officer Phi Delta Literary Society; Volunteer Band; Publication Manager, "Georgia Student Volunteer"; Business Manager, THE CAULDRON, '25.

North Georgia may well look with unblushing pride on this sturdy son of hers. Floyd is one of the few men who have the determination and power to execute the ideals of their convictions. Free spoken, blunt, scorning subterfuge, unswerving and persevering—these are some of his characteristics.

His fervent devotion to a cause, his loyalty to his friends, his energetic response to his convictions of what is right have created for him a most favorable impression among the student body. Floyd, by his determination, has weathered seas of financial difficulty that would have swamped a less determined, less hardy mariner. Credit is always in order for the man who works his way through college. It shows stamina, determination and self-control. Now that he is about to leave, he informs us that it is his ambition to champion the cause of the poor boy; which, we infer, means it is his desire to place education within the reach of all. A worthy ambition! Best luck, Floyd, your perseverance will reap for you a copious harvest.

"And tho' he was worthy he was wise,
And of his port as meek as is a mayde."

WILLIAM JONES CARSWELL, A.B.

"Bill"

Waycross, Georgia

Ministerial Association; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Phi Delta Literary Society; Waycross Club; Presidents' Club; CAULDRON Staff.

"Bill" is one of the few Seniors who has the temerity to wear his derby all the year. And this adherence to principle is one of his most praiseworthy characteristics.

After leaving college "Bill" will enter the ministry, and the church will add but another to its roll of God-fearing, conscientious men. In college he has acquired the friendship of those with whom he has come in contact by his cordial manner. "Bill" has been one of the most diligent members of THE CAULDRON staff. And we wish to take this opportunity to leave a memorial to his efforts in aiding in the production of this book.

"Bill" has that power of seeing two sides to every question, of not censuring too bitterly those with whom he cannot agree. Fools criticize; wise men condone.

"Like an open eye is Wisdom—He that has her is not blind."
WINBURN RONEY CARSWELL, A.B.
Augusta, Georgia
Phi Delta Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Volunteer Band.
Winburn is one of the hardest workers on the campus. He has literally worked his way through college. And it is to his eternal credit, for records have shown that those men who do supplementary work make some of the best students.
Carswell has an ambition to go as a minister to foreign fields, to carry the Gospel to realms unchartred. And some day Winburn will set his life as an example of Christian self-sacrifice and consistent labor among peoples where such an example will be most needed. Your mission is one of the highest, and we feel positive that you are capable of giving it full justice.
"Because right is right, to fight for right were wisdom in the scorn of consequence."

HOUSTON RIBBLE CECIL, B.S.C.
"Kid" "Padre"
Columbia, Tennessee
Kappa Sigma; Phi Delta Literary Society; Varsity Football, '21, '22, '23, '24; Captain Football Team, '24; "M" Club; Basketball, '25.
Tennessee has furnished Mercer with excellent athletic and scholastic material. None of her contributions brought more honor to our Alma Mater than the presentation of "Kid" Cecil. Here, friends, we have a man—a hard fighting man, a man who knows no defeat, a man whose athletic record is replete with well-nigh superhuman feats. To "Padre" fell the task of carrying the ball ninety-five yards from kick-off to a touchdown when Mercer was playing Olethorpe in '23. This is a record run on Grant Field, Atlanta, Georgia.
Cecil has, as far as the student body is concerned, attained his ambition, which is "to get the good will of my fellow man". Of course, we all know that somewhere there is a man to take everyone's place when they drop out, but we are frankly skeptical that it will be a long time before we find another to fill the shoes of "Kid" Cecil.
"I take as great interest in my friends' pleasure as in mine own."

ROBERT EARL CHANDLER, B.S.C.
"Parson"
West Point, Georgia
Sigma Nu; Phi Delta Literary Society; Head Cheer Leader, '23, '24, '25; Comedian Glee Club, '23, '24, '25; President Glee Club, '24; "M" Club; Masonic Fraternity; American Legion; V. F. W.; Exchange Civic Club.
"Parson" is a booster. There is good in everything and "Parson" discovers it and then lets the world know of its merits. He has that happy trait of being able to say the right thing at the right time. When the student spirit flags for any reason, when the fighting impulses wavers, "Parson" mounts the rostrum, and immediately there is a wonderful, all-consuming revival, and we go to victory singing songs of triumph.
The moniker, "Parson", was applied humorously on account of his negro sermons, but he preaches a good, sound doctrine all the time. His serious thoughts are usually given a coating of humor that makes them more liable to stick in memory. This ability to serve a thoughtful morsel in a delicate dish is a rare gift among men. "Parson" is intensely practical, and this will some day give him an exalted place in this old universe.
"High is his faith and hopes, look! how he reaches after the prize in view."
WILLIAM HARVEY CLARKE, JR., A.B.
Atlanta, Georgia

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Ciceronian Literary Society; Pan-Hellenic Council, ’24, ’25.
Harvey Clarke is one of the widest travellers on the campus. He hails from anywhere, few states and few foreign continents not having been visited by him in his wanderings. He has a most cosmopolitan education. He attended the Canadian Methodist Academy in Shanghai, and the American School in Japan. His parents were missionaries, and hence Harvey has had the super-academic training of extensive travel.
Harvey never talks boastfully about his sojourns abroad. In fact, he is almost reticent about his wanderings. But when he chooses to talk he holds his hearers spellbound. There is something reticent about his manner that becomes intensely enjoyable when one knows him. Some day (and again we step over into the prophetic realm) Harvey is going to write articles on some current health topic and the world will wonder. He informs us that it is his ambition “To attain the Top of the Ladder”. And with his personality, such an ambition is not at all strange. He will; yes, he will. He is an uppermost rung man.

“The Universe is my treasury—I shall spend it on others.”

J. H. CLINE, A.B.
Byron, Georgia

Let others heat themselves to unnecessary heights of passion over the world’s troubles, let others be tossed about on the bellowy seas of unrest, either mental or emotional; these trivial things, these passing changes never affect the cool, calm intellect of Cline. He stands apart and above these petty fluctuations, and gazes down from his summit of peace upon the hurly-burly rush of the tides of humanity.
Yet, he is not so distantly removed from the sphere of men as to be unsocial and selfish. Merely because one is contemplative is no indication that there lives not in his breast a keen interest in all things. Cline, at any rate, is deeply concerned in life. And his numerous friends testify to the fact that he possesses all the human qualities of loyal devotion. After all, you think it through, there is no greater need to vex one’s self. Cline is a shining example of self-restraint and serenity.

“My soul was like a Star, and dwelt apart.”

LEWIS CONNELL COBB, B.S.C.
Temple, Georgia

Pi Kappa Phi; Glee Club, ’21, ’22; Freshman Baseball Team, ’20, ’21; Mercer Band, ’21, ’22; Phi Delta Literary Society; Yell Leader, ’21, ’22; College Orchestra, ’21, ’22; Mandolin Club, ’21, ’22.
Louis, as his record clearly shows, possesses considerable musical talent. This accomplishment, when combined with a pleasant personality, and an earnest desire to make every minute at college count, make him one of the most desirable students.
He leaves the college with an excellent record behind him, and enters the business world fully equipped to cope with its most vital problems. His association with the many musical organizations have so tapered his life that he realizes the true value of friendship. He is a friend, and therefore has many.

“For a better friend one must travel many leagues.”
ISAAC COWART, A.B., LL.B.

"Ike"

Colquitt, Georgia

Adano; Original Freshman Club, '20; K. K. K. Club, '21; Assistant Manager Basketball Team, '21; Mascot Basketball Tournament, '22, Student Tribunal, '22, Assistant Football Coach, '25; Super-Summer-Schooler; "Best Natled Man," '24; (See LL.B. Section for other honors.)

Your ears and eyes, please, ladies and gentlemen! We wish to present the daintiest, cutest and most demure little lad of two hundred pounds, Colonel "Ike" Cowart. Search a thousand years and you will discover no one with more good nature than this same Isaac. He is Old Carl Congeniality himself. And "Ike's" bosom companion is Jim J. Jovialness. Beaming, always beaming, he passes out good cheer with an open hand.

Yet he is not so spendthrift of his time that he does not make good grades. He has a native ability to master his subjects that others never have by "honing." When "Ike" is elected to the Supreme Court his first official act will be to repeal the eight-hour law and substitute for it a "one hour" work day, which is manifestly more desirable.

"Fie upon thee, Captain Care! And all thy blody bandes."

SYLVESTER TEMPLE CRENSHAW, B.S.C.

Vienna, Georgia

Phi Delta Literary Society; Oratorical "13"; Student Tribunal, '24, '25; CAULDRON STAFF.

Behind a quiet and reserved exterior lies a dynamic personality, a character of sterling qualities. Such a personality has Sylvester. Quietness is in no wise to be understood as denoting a lack of energy. The opposite, as in the case of Sylvester, is true, indeed. There is an amiableness about his manner that fascinates all who have penetrated his reserve and become listed as his friend. Sylvester is a steady worker—the Cauldron Staff is indebted to him for his patient aid in the detailed work of editing the book. This ability to do much unostensibly is a trait much needed in this day and time when everyone seems afraid his merits will not be recognized. We are glad that we were fortunate to meet and come into intimate contact with such a man.

"Tis wise to think what you speak, rather than at all times to speak what you think."

DANIEL H. DAVIS, A.B.

Blakely, Georgia

Pi Kappa Phi; Dukes Club; Phi Delta Society; Elks; Masonic Club; Band and Orchestra Leader for four years; Glee Club four years; Student Tribunal; Manager Freshman Basketball Team; Vice-President of Glee Club, '24, '25; College Orchestra and Band.

Loxley Grove Institute sent us this musical phenomenon. Not, however, until after he had acquired the following honors at that school: Band leader, Baseball and Track teams; Pi Alpha Sigma Fraternity; Annual Staff and Student Government.

Immediately upon matriculation at Mercer, "Dan" began his remarkable career as a musician. Each year to him falls the task of extracting harmony and music from the conglomeration of applicants for the Band and Orchestra. And with the aid of his baton, and his amiable patient nature he succeeds. "Dan," we feel sure that your ability as a leader will lead to success in the realms of music.

"And when he played my soul would pause to listen."
LON LEE DAY, Th.G.
Thomaston, Georgia
Alpha Omega (Divinity); Shrine Club; Masonic Club; President of Ciceronian Literary Society; Vice-President of Masonic Club.
Here, ladies and gentlemen, is a human dynamo. Lon is a man who is always on not only a job but many jobs. He is diligent to a very marked degree—and that is why he is a popular man. Students can appreciate those who seem to have a definite objective in view and then strive earnestly to attain it.
Lon intends to enter the ministry after leaving Mercer. He will make an excellent pastor, since he has enough of that self-confidence to create in others a faith in what he holds to be true. And then he does things—and, after all is said, that is what really counts.

WILLIAM OTIS DOROUGH, A.B.
Sienna Epsilon (Journalistic); Phi Delta Literary Society; Charter Member of Oratorical "18"; Vice-President of Sophomore Class; Cluster Staff, '23, '24, '25; Junior Orator for Phi Delta Society; Judge of Student Tribunal, '24, '25; Adano Law Fraternity; Presidents' Club; President of the Senior Class and Student Body.
Honors fall upon his shoulders, and yet he bears them with the graciousness and ease of a natural leader. Some men are depressed, some elated with the burdens of their fellowmen. Dorough was neither; he carries his obligation as a man.
Otis is a man worth knowing, and one has no difficulty becoming acquainted since there is no dark road to his affection. In fact, it is this spirit of openness and frankness that makes him outstanding among the students of Mercer. He is a man. As you leave Mercer, Otis, let no regret disturb your thought. You have recommended yourself to every student by the conscientious and scrupulous manner in which you have conducted yourself. You did your best—and succeeded.
"In good fortune not elated, in ill fortune not dismayed. Ever eloquent in council, never in the sight afraid."

WALTER CECIL DOWLING, A.B.
Pi Kappa Alpha; Assistant Advertising Manager Cluster, '22, '23; Tennis Club; Assistant Editor Cluster, '24, '25; Mercer Players.
There walks daily upon the campus a man, very quiet in his deportment, very reserved in his decorum, very thoughtful and meditative in his speech—that man is Dowling. Silence has never been confused with ignorance, yet there are some who underestimate the gift of being able to control speech. It is a talent, a veritable treasure.
Dowling is studious without being a "boner"; he is imperturbable without being insensible; he is composed without being distant. He is a man with whom one feels an urge to discuss personal matters. To him one would like to go in trouble because he appears to understand, to sympathize without being bitter or condemnatory. The world, he knows, is full of faults, and human characters are fallible, so he tries to understand, not rant against errors. With such a refined, gentle manner, Dowling should make a success representing our country in consular service, to which he aspires.
"Who is the Happy Warrior?"
"Tis he whose law is reason."

JOSEPH HERDON DREWRY, JR., B.S.C.

Kappa Alpha; President of the Freshman Class, '21, '22; Member of Band, '21, '22, '23, '24, '25; Member Glee Club, '22, '23, '24, '25; Track Squad, '24.

Allow us in all seriousness to present our dear reader a regular "ladies' man". Yes, Joe is the "stuff" among the wearers of the "Bob". This is one of the direct effects of being a member and an important one, of the Glee Club for so many years. The girls expect it of a Glee Clubber, and Joe is the last one to disappoint them.

Joe's activities are not at all confined to social entertainments—far from it. His record in college is excellent, and on the campus he is recognized as a very practical man. In fact, one of his duties on the Glee Club was to assist in the business transactions. For a rounded-out man we can wholeheartedly recommend Joe. Success and luck to you, Joe, in after life. You will have a practical use for everything you gleaned from the girls and the Glee Club—not to mention college life.

"So he's the loved, that by night or sail He sleep name more than doth a nightingale."

ROBERT RALPH DUNWOODY, A.B.

Cluster Staff, '24, '25; Sigma Epsilon (Journalistic); Spanish Club; Mercer Players, '23, '24, '25; Business Manager Cluster, '25.

Robert came to us with a college record behind him. He sojourned two years at the North Georgia Agricultural College and two at Georgia Tech. Mechanical and technical training does not appeal to Robert as much as the many-sidedness of Journalism. He is majoring in Journalism, and making good. To Robert the student body is indebted for securing second-class postal rates. Each student is insured of receiving a copy of Cluster under the new plan. As Business Manager of the Cluster he has been most diligent and most efficient.

Well liked on account of his amiability, Robert occupies a choice place in the affection of those who have come in contact with him. He is conscientious in whatever he undertakes. A most admirable trait! Robert hopes to make a success in some journalistic course. And, Robert, we are confident you will. We are sure life holds much of good for you.

"A day for toil, an hour for sport,
But for a friend is life too short."

THOMAS ALTON DYER, A.B., L.L.B.

Newnan, Georgia

Adano; Masonic Club; Coweta Club; Overseas Club; Ciceronian Society; Masonic Fraternity, Yedikhist Empire; American Legion; Woodmen of America; Maccabees; Vice-President Sophomore Law Class, '23; Winner of Public Speaking Class Debate, '22; Winner Inter-Society Debate, '23, '24; Orator, Oratorical Contest for Upshaw Medal, '21; Prosecuting Attorney, Student Tribunal, '24, '25; Executive Committee, Senator Law Class, '24, '25; Class Testator, Senator Class, '25.

We present a man. Thomas Dyer is the outstanding orator and debater in the Senior Class. His eloquence and his convincing delivery make him a most formidable opponent in the forum. No wonder the student body look to him to champion their cause in times of stress.

But on the campus he loses that formidableness and retains only that personal charm of the floor. As a friend he is of the best. He is reserved without being cold, aloof without being distant. The legal career offers an excellent opportunity for a man like you, Tom. Those at the top will make room for you. Best luck.

"Discourse hath many tools, but oratory is the handle that fits them all."
SIDNEY ELLISON, A.B.
"Jellico"
Jellico, Tennessee

Without a doubt, here is an exceptional man. "Jellico" Ellison fills more shoes than any man on the campus—from bed-room slippers, through brogans, spiked shoes, cleated shoes, suction-soled shoes down to pumps. And in every pair he is perfectly at home. He has that personal charm that makes his presence desirable everywhere, whether he be lounging at ease in his own room or properly attired in the ball room—not to mention the athletic fields.

"Sid's" record as a ladies' man is closely seconded by his record as a "Jellico" booster. At Jellico High he won the following honors: President Literary Society, President Senior Class, Salutatorian, Captain of Basketball and Baseball Teams. No wonder he shoots the "Jellico Line". No wonder his ambition is "To spread the jelly of Jellico all over the South."

"For in his books were all that men desire,—
A pleasant-smiling cheek, a speaking eye,
A brow for love to banquet royally."

S. L. ETHERIDGE, A.B.

Ciceronian Literary Society; Atlanta Club; American Legion.

Reserved, quiet, unobtrusive and orderly in every move—this is Etheridge. Although never seeming-ly in a great hurry, he always gives the appearance of having definite work to do. He has been an aid to the administration, since he had a thorough business training as an assistant pay roll clerk for the Georgia Railway and Power Company before entering college. We wish you well in the great aftermath of college life. Our Alma Mater will some day be proud of you.

"Benigne he was, and wonder diligent,
And in adversite ful pacient."

JOHN BENTON EVANS, A.B.
Sanderson, Georgia

Alpha Tau Omega; Adano; Assistant Circulation Manager of Cluster, '22, '23; Circulation Manager of Cluster, '23, '24; G. M. A. Club; Vice-President of Washington County Club.

"Judge" intends to be one of our country's greatest lawyers. We mention this by way of introduction to show that here is a man who aims high. And we are sure that he will attain his goal since he has that firmness, that certainty of self that makes success but a matter of years and of experience. He will not receive his legal diploma until next year, and after he gets it—well, some of the old legalites had best watch out for him.

"Judge" is well liked. The present Senior Class may be glad that they leave such men as "Judge" in Merrer to represent it. He creates a good impression.

"Do as thec lust the terme of all thy lyf,
And keep thy honour."
EDWARD BEAUFORT EVERETT, JR., B.S.C., L.L.B.

"Ed"

Americus, Georgia

Phi Delta Theta; Delta Phi (Legal); Overseas Club; Woodrow Wilson Club; Presidents' Club; Phi Delta Literary Society; Boxing Team, '20, '21; Class Basketball; School of Commerce Basketball Team; Secretary and Treasurer of the School of Commerce; President of Junior Law Class; Athletic Director of the Senior Class; President of Pan-Hellenic Council, '24; Candidate from Mercer for Rhodes Scholarship; Representative of Pan-Hellenic Council at Inter-Fraternity Conference in Atlanta, '24.

Here is a man of brain and brawn. It is a sure sign of keen interest and deserving merit when a man accumulates the honors that have fallen to Ed. As a student he has an excellent record, as a boxer he remains champion.

And who can withstand the gentle smile that is typical of Ed? It is one of the pleasant smiles that make the beholder earnestly say, "Here is a man after my own heart." In the legal game, Ed, we hope you score as many knock-outs as you did in boxing. And we know you will. We are positive you will make good.

"Ye would nat forgoon his acquaintance."

WILLIAM EDMUND FARRAR, JR., A.B.

Macon, Georgia

Delta Phi (Legal); Phi Delta Literary Society.

Edmund excels as a student. And, why else do we attend college if not to become good students? Not only is he a student of books, but of men as well. He has acquired a wide and varied knowledge of men from assisting in the past several registrations. It is interesting, indeed, to hear him discourse upon the various things that happen in the registrar's office.

As a linguist student, Edmund bids fair to follow in his father's footsteps. He made high grades in both Greek and Hebrew. During the last few terms he has left the literary school for the legal department. And most of study of foreign terms is confined to legal phraseology concerning denises and actions at law.

Edmund is one of the most accommodating men. He is ready to lend his aid at any time, and derives genuine pleasure from serving his fellow students. And, after all, service is the sum and total of human aspirations.

"Frail creatures are we all! To be the best Is but the fewest faults to have." WILIAM BRADFORD FREEMAN, A.B.

"Bill"

Adano; President of Ciceronian Society; Class Basketball, '20, '21; Manager Ciceronian Basketball Team, '21; Principal of High School, '22, '23; Society Day Speaker, '25; Advertising and Associate Business Manager of THE CAULDRON; Class Football, '24, '25; All-Class Team, '24; Student Tribunal, President Pro Tem, '24, '25; President of Sophomore Law Class, '24, '25; Assistant Instructor in Latin, Summer, '23, '24; Class Historian, '25; Presidents' Club, '24, '25.

Behold William! "A mighty man is he." Not only physically but mentally. Bill sways the student body with his eloquence and holds them enraptured with his fervent messages. Honors seek William out. He has amassed, deservedly, too, many of the positions of merit. We pass on, but since "Bill" is only a Sophomore in the law school, he will stay and fill an entire column in next year's CAULDRON. If he were not so popular we might write more about him. His honors require too much space. They speak for him.

"He is ful jocund also."

1925
J. W. HAMMOND, Th.G.
Columbia, South Carolina

Ministerial Association.
Here is a man who, after several years' absence from school, returns and makes an excellent record. Time has certainly not diminished nor diminished his intellectual abilities, and has shown to him the need for a college training. Seeing the need, he applies himself. Hammond, perforce, loses several days each month due to the fact that he preaches regularly at several churches. This is enough to recommend him to his fellow students, but when he further shows an ability to master all of his courses in addition, it is small wonder he is exceedingly admired.
We are anticipating great things from you, Hammond, and we will not be disappointed either.
"But Cretan love, and his apostles twelve,
He taught, but first he followed it himselve."

CLAUDE DOUGLAS HARRELL, A. B.
Lumpkin, Georgia

Alpha Lambda Tau; Spanish Club; Manager Basketball Team, '24, '25; Pan-Hellenic Council, '24, '25. All the work of a basketball season is not summed up in the games. True, the athletic teams deserve the most laurels, and the coaches come in for a lion's share of the honors, but, please, dear friends, reserve some praise for the hard working business manager. Claude informs us that while he never appeared on the floor, it frequently appeared that he was going to be floored by his duties of arranging schedules and keeping tab on the equipment.
Claude is always busy. During his college life he has worked in garages, been a hotel clerk, occupied a position as proofreader on a newspaper, besides other work. He stuck it out and now he comes to secure his degree, we wish to commend him on his stickability. Claude, we are positive that your experience as basketball manager will serve you well in the game of living in the Arena of the World.
"Nowher so bisy a man as he ther was,
And yet he seemed biser than he was."

THOMAS ROWE HARVILL, A.B.
Dublin, Georgia

Scrub Football, '21, '22; Class Football, '23; Ciceronian Basketball, '21, '22, '23; Class Baseball, '22; Secretary Ministerial Association, '24; Chorister, Ministerial Association, '24; Reporter, Ciceronian Society, '24. Another man with an excellent High School record! "Tom" made four letters, won an oratorical and a public debate while at Dublin High School. There seems to be a continuous chain in a man's scholastic life. Beginning well, a student usually ends well! This is true of Harvill.
"Tom" has a definite goal ahead, a distinct purpose in view—and he is applying himself to his task. His ambition shows his character. It is: "To be of greatest service to my Lord." And those of us who know him, are assured that the Savior of men has a powerful advocate in Thomas Harvill. Feeling the call, "Tom" will not hesitate to carry his beliefs to the very ends of the earth.
You have a strenuous task, "Tom," but with your inner power obstacles will be as steps upon which you will ascend to your final reward. Best luck, good wishes to you!
"His quiet ways and faithful work
Are sermon strong to those who shirk."
Henry Grady Hobbs, Th.B
Columbus, Georgia

Ministerial Association.
Here is another man who, though entering college late in life, has made a most successful student.
More power to his kind!
Hobbs lives, with his family, in one of those cunning little bungalows down on "Preacher's Row.
And from those same little houses men of might have gone forth to disseminate the gospel. Such is the intention of Hobbs.
As a steady, consistent man, none can be found of more merit than Hobbs. He has ever a word of cheer for his campus friends. Such personalities cheer and lend a sober restraining influence to the campus.
"Discreet he was, and of great reverence."

Humphrey Olonzo Hughes, Th.B.
Atlanta, Georgia

Masonic Club; Ciceronian Society; Presidents' Club; Winner of Freshman Debate, '22, '23; Winner
Inter-Collegiate Debate, '22, '23; Winner Annual Sophomore-Junior Debate, '23, '24. Ministerial Association; Member of Governor's Board. Masonic Club.
Hughes possesses an irresistible personality. He has that calm, self-assurance that is so necessary in convincing people that there is only one side to an argument—and that side is his. He de-developed this talent as a salesman before entering Mercer.
Hughes has already entered actively into his work as a minister. And his pastorate is indeed fortunate in securing such a man, for Humphrey is an energetic, likeable man, a man who sticks in the memory. With his pipe stuck tightly between his teeth, he dispenses very wise and interesting philosophy. There is room for men like Hughes in the world. He has a message to his fellowman.
"Excited be the people in his preaching
To give for god's sake."

Roy L. Hurst, A.B.
Chattanooga, Tennessee

Phi Theta (Local); Masonic Club; Royal Arch Mason; Ministerial Association; Manager Technical
"Greater Mercer's Greatest Glee Club" became all that the name implies under the capable management of Roy Hurst. To him, more than any other single individual, is due the credit for producing one of the best clubs in the history of Mercer, a club that has offers from as far north as New York and as far south as Havana, Cuba. Roy, not only is manager, he writes skits for the club, as well.
Roy, Mercer is indebted to you, since by your efforts you have advanced her cause. When we have left for our various tasks in the realm of life we will often think of the Great Glee Club which you perfected. And think of it with pride.
One does not ordinarily think of black-faced comedians as ministers. But Glee Clubs are a side line with Roy. His real mission is preaching the Word.
"The might of the world's good wishes goes with him."
F. G. JANES, JR., B.S.C.
Wauchula, Florida

Alpha Lambda Tau; Adano: Ciceronian Society; Florida Club; Spanish Club; Vice-President, Sophomore Class, ’21, ’22; Secretary, Ciceronian Society, ’22, ’23; President, Florida Club, ’23, ’24; Pan-Hellenic Council, ’23, ’24; Cluster Staff, ’23, ’24.

That much-talked-about Florida Sunshine and Geniality glows in the countenance of Janes. Yes, we are a firm believer in our sister State's products since we have become acquainted with her son. Janes is really remarkable when it comes to making friends. He is a steady, dependable type of man, a conscientious student and an all-round man. We anticipate a brilliant career for him in the legal world—for it is his ambition to become an able attorney.

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

HENDLEY FRANCIS JELKS, A.B.
"Saint"
Hawkinsville, Georgia

Phi Delta Literary Society; Ministerial Association.

"Saint" Jelks, as he was christened by one of the faculty members, is, to say the least, a remarkable man. Nothing daunted because he did not complete his High School work, he entered Mercer with three and one half units; and now, after four and a half years of application he leaves college with an A.B. degree.

Until he had a course in Greek under Dean Farrar, "Saint" was perhaps the most loquacious man on the campus. But he quieted down, he could not talk in foreign tongues.

Jelks is a minister; and, from all reports, a good one. Jelks, in after life, let your patron Apostle be Paul, who was a learned and studious man. He strove for his cause until death robbed him of breath. We know that you will accomplish something in this world. We are with you to the end.

"Though he had a wagish tongue, he was a good man withal."

ALLEN CLEON JOHNSON, A.B.
Mitchell, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Volunteer Band.

Insurance is good for things that protect against future mishap. It is a means whereby a man can secure an education. At least, Johnson found it so.

By his salesmanship he was able to work his way through college. And more honor to him for it! Johnson is a man who knows what to say, and says it. He is, therefore, a most entertaining conversationalist.

When Johnson completes this year, he intends to "Present Christ to the Heathen." And there are excellent grounds for believing that this little man will some day be a voice heard far in the foreign fields, preaching the doctrines of Love and Christ. He will merely tell of the life he lives.

"For mchel good, I dar eye in balunce Al that I have in my possession."

DEWITT HOOTEN JORDAN, A.B.

Milledgeville, Georgia

Oratorical "13"; Round Table: Phi Delta Literary Society; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Secretary and Treasurer of the Phi Delta Society; "23: Cauldron Staff.

quietness and even a slight degree of timidity are the most noticeable external traits found in Hooten. But these are superficial characteristics, since a closer acquaintance proves that he has all the fires of manhood burning brightly in his heart; and to those who know him, Hooten is indeed a most sincere and warm friend.

Hooten is the typical student, who devotes a large portion of his time to study. If he is reflective, his constant and sincere application to studies have made him thus. His grades in classes are of the very best. Before Mercer obtained a postoffice, Hooten acted as postmaster and book clerk—the two offices being combined.

Never be deceived by a serene exterior, it may, as in Hooten's case, conceal a fervent and sincere spirit.

"Though modest, on his unembarrassed brow Nature has written, 'Gentleman.'"

SAMUEL DEWEY JOVERS, B.S.C.

Way, Georgia

"M" Club; Vice-President, Senior Class, '25 (elected to fill unexpired term of Hugh Awtry); Business Manager, Cluster, '22, '23, '24, '25; Football, '23, '24, '25.

Dewey has served his Alma Mater in a glorious manner. His record in football is indeed admirable. It was a most appropriate act of the Senior Class when they selected this veteran football player to the honor of Vice-President, not only of the Senior Class, but of the student body.

As a member of the Cluster Staff, Dewey did much toward increasing the number of advertisers in our weekly publication. He is a thorough, business-like man, and is assured of success in his chosen field. His training as business manager will stand him in good stead when he begins his career in the wider realms of life.

Dewey, we hope you materialize your ambition and become a successful wholesale merchant. You have helped the Cluster in collecting for advertisements, and we hope that experience will be useful to you later. Play the game, we are with you.

"And yet he had a thorn of gold, pardee."

MARSHALL KERRY, A.B.

Macon, Georgia

"Haste thee, nymph, and bring with thee
Jest and youthful follies;
Sport that wrinkled care derides,
And laughter holding both his sides."

Always occur to us when we think of the sociable, amiable and congenial Marshall Kerry. He has a Ford, and, as Kipling wisely would say, "Thereby hangs a Tale." Never still, always moving, ever ready, ever anxious to do a favor for his friends, for anyone, willing to cut a class to do a favor, he won the friendship and admiration of all.

And, yet, his class records will stand beside any in the pre-medical school. He is, first, a good fellow, but it is not far ahead of his second quality, a student. Marshall feels that life is short, life is sweet; therefore enjoy it. While such seems to be his motto, when the time comes there will be few doctors more conversant with medicine than this same congenial Marshall Kerry.

Tell me where is fancy bred,
Or in the heart, or in the head."

CLARENCE WENDELL KINMAN
Macon, Georgia

College Band: Glee Club.

Clarence is one of the Central City's contributions to Mercer. He is an excellent student, one who wastes little time in aimless student conversation. When at school he spends his time in classes, and upon leaving the campus his life becomes a closed book to the student body.

We wish we had a more intimate acquaintance with Clarence, but, alas, it is impossible to know everyone. Those who are intimate with him speak most glowingly of his many likeable traits, and from what we have seen of him, we gladly accept all good omens as the truth.

"Make every minute count."

R. PAUL LAWRENCE, A.B.
Menlo, Georgia

Sigma Nu; K. K. K.; President of the Junior Law Class; Glee Club four years; Vice-President, Phi Delta Society; Vice-President, later President of Pan-Hellenic Council, '24, '25; Class Football, '24, '25; Representative of Pan-Hellenic Council at Inter-Fraternity Conference in Atlanta, Fall of '24; Captain, Senior Football Team; Fraternity and Society Football Teams.

Paul is one of our most promising lawyers. Many have aspired to the pinnacles of legal success, but none with better opportunities for realizing their dreams than Lawrence.

There is something about his personality that makes him one of the most agreeable of companions found on the campus. Not only is he witty, musical and even comical when the occasion arises, but he possesses that general undertone of wisdom that is indispensable to a man of learning.

We pass on, Paul, but we leave you as our representative here on the campus. Hold up our name, and, in turn, we will reserve for your a place out in the world we soon enter.

"And every statut coude he pleyn by rote."

RALPH C. LEE, A.B.
Seale, Alabama

Pi Kappa Phi.

Ralph was a student at Howard College, but recognizing the error (or else the Howard Faculty recognizing the error) of his ways, he matriculated at Mercer two years ago. He liked it, so he remained. Whatever be the cause of his change, we are glad he came, for Ralph is a man easily liked. He offers no obstacles to friendship, and he has a way of retaining it after it has once been formed.

Many men have left Mercer with characteristics he does not possess, but few depart with the good opinion that he has made in the minds of his classmates, a good opinion that is an honor to him. We are anxious for yours to be a successful life after you leave college, Ralph. You have the makings of a man of affairs.

"If any man can convince me that I am wrong, gladly will I change, for I seek the truth."
ALBERT EVANS LEE, A.B.
Monroe, North Carolina

Phi Delta Literary Society; History Club.
Albert is another foreigner, who recognizing the merits of Mercer, left his former school, the University of North Carolina, and matriculated here. Lee is majoring in Journalism, and from all accounts he is doing excellent work. Although this is his first year on the campus he has made a large circle of friends. This is not surprising, since he has a personality that commands and holds the respect of others.

When you return to "The Tar-heel State," and become an editor of one of your State's papers, do not forget to mention us when we pass through. Give us, who are your friends, a nice little write-up in the "Personal Mention" column. You have already been in that column in our thoughts.

Best luck to you, Albert:

"The manners of the man are, of a truth, perfect."

ROBERT B. MCCARTY
"Bob"

Sanderville, Georgia

Aleinbic Club; Laboratory Assistant, '23, '24, '25.
With a little bowl of burning tobacco in his mouth, "Bob" McCarty is ever seen on the campus. "Bob" and his pipe are inseparable. Where he has been no one ever knows, where he is going is equally dubious. Yet, one always feels that he has been and is going somewhere on business. If there ever was an unassuming, non-presumptious man, a man who literally melts out of sight in a crowd, it is this Robert McCarty.

But there is one group of men on the campus to whom "Bob" is indispensable, the student-chemists. He is the laboratory assistant, and he knows "his stuff." Asiduously he has worked toward one end—a complete and thorough mastery of chemistry. And, now, as we leave, there will be no man among the seniors who has a more complete mastery of any subject than "Bob" has of chemistry. Success, in your chosen field, "Bob," will come as a matter of course. And we are glad, since you deserve it.

"I see what was, and is, and will abide."

JOE A. McCLAIN, JR., A.B., L.L.B.
Ringgold, Georgia

Phi Kappa Phi; Master Mercean; '25; Delta Phi (Legal); Ciceronian Literary Society; Football, '21, '22, '23; Inter-collegiate Debater, '24; Associate Judge, Student Tribunal, '24; Pan-Hellenic Council, '23, '24; Class Baseball, '22, '23; Oratorical '13; Instrutor in Mercer Law School, '24, '25; First Honor Graduate, Law School, '24.

The dreamy little town up in North Georgia had a rude awakening when it became known that one of its native sons received the highest honor at Mercer University. But it had no need to be overly startled, since Joe had the makings of a Master Mercian from the time he entered college. Consistently he has climbed from honor to honor until now he stands at the apex.

He has a golden personality, he is a man who holds his audience, whether a group of students on the campus, a class room when he recites or an auditorium when he debates, spell-bound. He says things, because he thinks worthwhile things.

The top is the place for Joe. He was first honor man in Law Class last year, and now the Master Mercerian, and next—but that is for the Prophet to say. Our Alma Mater rejoices in men like you, Joe.

"Knowledge is of more value than riches."
CAULDRON

BEN C. MCWHORTER, A.B.
Umatilla, Florida
Florida Club: President, Ciceronian Literary Society, '24; Ministerial Association: Class Prophet, '25; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Volunteer Band.
Alas, Ben is not with us. He left immediately after Christmas for The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. Ben was, without exception, the slowest talker on the campus. But when he did free himself from the words, his hearers had some worthwhile thought. An idea from Ben’s mind is like a diamond—it takes centuries to produce, but how it sparkles when time has taken its course. His wit is the most refreshing, and his friends many.
Ben is studying for foreign missionary service, his preference being the South American fields. His nature sees good in everything, and he, therefore, must possess the highest good himself.
“Why should I worry. I’ll set there anyway.”

WILLIAM BRODUS MARTIN, B.S.C.
Macon, Georgia
Kappa Alpha; Phi Delta Literary Society; Secretary and Treasurer of the Freshman Class, '21; Captain, Freshman Class Basketball Team, '21; Mercer Band, '21, '22, '23, '24; Cauldron Staff, '24; Winner of Drewery Medal in Oratory, May 15, 1924; Pan-Hellenic Council, '24, '25; Locust Grove Club.
Another man! Brodus is another student who entered Mercer with a record worthy of merit behind him. While in Dublin High School he was a debater, orator, member of the Philomathean Society. After entering Locust Grove Institute, he became a member of the Band and made a place on the basketball team.
His life here at Mercer has been but a continuation of those former successes. On and off the campus he is always wide-awake, always energetic, always affable. In an addition to college duties he was a member of a firm of Macon Haberdashers. This work is directly in line with his life’s work. So he has a good start—a leap ahead of most men. Brodus has a base voice. He is a big man. And his is a most friendly disposition. The latest joke? Brodus knows it. The best clothes? He has them in stock. A cordial word for everybody, a man among men! Luck to you, Brodus, in your business career.
“Some crave fame, but for my part let me be able to deliver the goods.”

EUGENE HARRIS MASSEY, B.S.C.
Macon, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Pan-Hellenic Council, '22, '23, '24; L. G. I. Club; Woodrow Wilson Club; Assistant Manager, Baseball Team, '24; Manager, Baseball Team, '25; Mercer Players; Female Impersonator in cast of “Adam and Eva.”
“Gene” is well known among the social contingent of our neighbor city of Macon. Not that he slights, however, his academic work to keep up his social standing! How could he become manager of the Baseball team and participate in the production of a drama if he devoted all his time to extra campus activities?
“Money,” says he, is his ambition. And whatever a man strives earnestly and diligently for is bound to be his—so, “Gene,” we can see no reason why you should not, some day, roll in wealth. You have the friends, your way is open to any success you choose.

CHARLES WILLIAM MILFORD, A.B.
"Red"
Lafayette, Alabama

Masonic Club; Ciceronian Literary Society; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Ministerial Association.

"Red" is from Alabama. No one but an Alabamian would have had the temerity to suggest that the Senior Class entertain its members with a "Possum Supper." Due to his efforts the social affair was a complete success. We wish to immortalize it by this reference to it.

Few men hold the good will of nearly every man they come in contact with—yet, "Red" has that remarkable ability. There is nothing showy, bombastic or loud about "Red" (excepting his hair), yet he has firmly fixed himself in the hearts of the majority of our campus membership. Unassuming, yet always ready for an emergency. His suggestions are meaty with thought. As a preacher, "Red" is certain of success. And those who know him will rejoice in his success, since he has a way of sharing things that make him the better liked.

"Honour shall uphold the humble in spirit."

CECIL GORDON MURDOCK, A.B.
"Sock"
Chickamauga, Georgia

Murdock? You never met him? Well, then, my dear friend, you have been indeed unfortunate, for he is one of the most delightful characters on the campus. It is to be somewhat deplored that he assumes a retiring role, because many have thereby missed his sane optimism that is both invigorating and inspiring. He assumes, of his own accord, a meager place in the college activities. His delight is in what others do, not in attempting to win honors for his glorification. There is none of that ego in his nature that prompts so many men to aspire to the higher places.

Life to Murdock, is an interesting problem that cannot be solved in a day, a year, or even in a college career. He is content to learn a little each day, and hopes to realize greater pleasures as the years roll by. Thought, that is labor to most men, flows untrammeled through his mind. And the world offers itself to thinkers.

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be."

L. HOLDEN O'BARR, B.S.C.

Kappa Sigma; Delta Phi (Legion); Ciceronian Literary Society; Pan-Hellenic Council, '23, '24, '25.

To those who know him it is unnecessary to say anything; but those who have not had the pleasure of an intimate acquaintance could profit by observing this quiet and steady worker. He is a man who practices rather than preaches his convictions. Silent and even taciturn, he ever refrains from speaking until all has been said, then he pungently drives home his verdict—which is usually to the point. He has been a good friend, and as he leaves he carries with him the respect of many students. Such men straighten the kinks out of Life and make it worth living.

Adel, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Adano; Yellow Dog; K. of P.; Emory Club; Adel Club; South Georgia Club.
Mercer University gained at the expense of Emory when "Chink" matriculated here after spending two years in the Methodist Institution. While at Emory "Chink" could hit the "Bulls-eye". He made class and college rifle teams. In addition to those honors he made a place on company and class basketball squads.

Since he arrived at Mercer he has engaged in social rather than athletic events. "Chink" set the pace in "Bell-Bottoms," being one of the first members of the "Ship Ahoy" club. Although stoic in nature, and wide in breeches he never became irritated by the efforts made to jibe him—he has too copious a supply of good-natured humor to allow such things to perturb his amiable spirit. "Chink" has a couple more years in school, since he is just beginning his career in the law department. Stick it, "Chink", we are with you.

'Shorty'
Sale City, Georgia
Sigma Nu; Round Table; "M" Club; Pan-Hellenic Council, '23, '24, '25; Varsity Baseball four years; Captain Baseball Team, '25; President of Junior Class, '24; Vice-President of "M" Club, '24; President of "M" Club, '25.

"Shorty" has made long strides into the hearts of every student who knows him. He is an excellent type of the student-athlete. It requires a double amount of stamina to attend grilling practices and then to make good records in class rooms—but "Shorty" has done it. His offices simply demonstrate his ability to win the respect of his fellow-students.

Athletes are not usually over-sealous in social functions, but "Shorty" is an admirable exception. "Bow" ties are just too easy for him, the mighty gridiron star. On the campus he is held in the highest esteem, this due to his ever-present good nature, and his whole-hearted manner of speaking. "Shorty" has reflected honor on himself, his class and his Alma Mater.

"In all this world ne was ther noon hym lyk."

WILLIAM P. RABUN, B.S.C.
Albany, Georgia
Young Men's Christian Association.
Rabun won second honor while at Georgia Military College. And although he has not amassed an array of honors at Mercer he has achieved that for which many men strive and never attain—the respect of his fellowmen. Because a man has no long and intricate list of honors is no indication that he lacks either the good will of the students or energy. William has both. His whole time has been taken up with his college work, and he made the best of every moment. We are marking time until the day arrives, William, when you attain that for which you strive, a Certified Public Accountancy. You are headed in the right direction. Our eyes follow you.

"To always strive for that which is worthwhile."
LOUIS EDWARD REESE, B.S.C.

Louis is another athlete whose record in academic work has been of the very best. What better proof can one ask than the fact that Reese was selected as an Assistant Instructor in French?

On the football and baseball field Louis is known for his honest and clean tactics. And these characteristics are not merely reserved for the athletic field, they are Louis' daily life. Whatever Louis intends to do we are certain that he will succeed. He has the power and the ability to "Put things over."

JOHN CHARLES ROGERS, A.B.
Barnesville, Georgia

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Ciceronian Literary Society.

Charles is one of the most ambitious and energetic men in the pre-medical school. Many a feline has undergone operation in order that Charles might learn of the organs that keep life extant. But it must not be thought that Charles is devoid of sympathy—the opposite is true. Charles intends to devote his after life to medical missions. And we are of the opinion that he will be the means of aiding in the alleviation of many of the physical, as well as spiritual, aches of the foreign fields.

Charles has that reserved, quiet and soothing personality that makes the patient have faith in his physician. We are positive that you have made a good choice in your profession, we merely await the time when the world shall know you as Doctor Rogers.

"I had rather meet with him upon a day
Than forty pound of gold."

CHARLES ERNEST RODGERS, Th.B.
Tampa, Florida

Secretary, Ministerial Association; Florida Club.

Behold the Student! Here is a man whose academic records have been of the very best quality. Anyone who consistently secures high grades deserves an honorable mention, and we do not hesitate to give Rodgers the praise that is merited by his splendid record.

And yet his college work did so utilize his time that he did not have opportunity to mix with the students on the campus. His keen, incisive intellect made him acceptable in any group of men. Ernest says, and it must be banteringly, that it is his ambition to inherit the chair of Greek, now being occupied by Dean Farrar. A man with an ambition like that is, without a doubt, phenomenal.

"An eye whose judgment none affect could blind."
Charles Everett Sammons, A.B.

Rome, Georgia

Locust Grove Institute received “Son” fresh from seven hills of Rome, and before he quit that institution he had made a berth on the Football, Baseball, Basketball and Track Teams, and was, in addition, made a lieutenant in the R. O. T. C. With such an illustrious athletic past, “Son” placed his foot on Mercer’s threshold four years ago. And he has added honor after honor since that auspicious day. He is a three-team man. His stellar activities have been on the gridiron as “end.” “Son” seems undecided whether he prefers to coach or to enter the business world. We make no pretense of being a business expert, but we predict a successful career in the realm of men. You have a power of making friends that is one of the very best business assets. Use this ability, and success will be yours.

“He can smile when one speaks to him and laughs easily.”

Byron Lambert Smith, B. S. C.

“Crook”

Fayetteville, Tennessee

“Crook” attained to the very pinnacle in athletics. But his fame in college is not based on that alone, for he is a most congenial man and an excellent student. He was never latticed by his greatness. From freshman to senior, “Crook” is well liked. He is a good mixer. Small wonder that the mention of his name aroused interest. Mercer’s forward strides in athletics are intimately connected with “Crook” Smith’s record.

“Crook’s” ambition is to coach; and fortunate, indeed, is the college that secures his wide and varied experience. We expect the day to arrive when the streamers will carry a story about “Crook Smith’s All-American Team.” And that is not a day dream, either. We are proud that such a man is a member of our class.

“No borrowed bays his temples did adorn.”

Cosby William Smith, A.B.

Junior Class Football, ’24; Senior Class Football, ’25; Junior R. O. T. C.; C. M. T. C.

Mathematics hold for Cosby an especial attraction. He has indulged his passion for them as much as Mercer can give. There are, alas, no more courses for him to take. He is a ponderous thinker, and a heavy voiced man. Slow, it is true, but ever arriving at the point he sought to reach in his discourse.

Cosby is too busy with his studies to spend a great portion of his time co-oping or campusing or shenking or missionarying. Some day he will become a noted teacher, and when he does he will have a rare mastery of his subject. Cosby, my boy, we are depending on you to line yourself up alongside of Archimedes and Einstein.

“Yet he was kind, or, if severe in aught,
The love he bore to learning was in fault.”

“Derby” “Snellie” “Andy”
Swainsboro, Georgia

Cluster Staff, ’23, ’24, ’25; President Phi Delta Society, ’24; Publicity Director “Greater Mercer Glee Club”, ’21, ’23; Member of Freshman’s Committee; Oratorical “13”; Chief Marshall, Phi Delta Society, Society Day, ’23; President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, Janitor, etc., Senior Derby Club (Exclusive and Honorary); Managing Editor Cluster, ’24, ’25; Runner up in beauty contest which was won by “Red” Simmons: Class Fool, ’23.

Behold the Fool! It is rumored, with some basis for suspicion, that “Derby” politicked for this honor. This dearly beloved member of the Senior Class is most outstanding. He readily admits his superiority. Ready of wit, quick at repartee and an excellent joker. For it takes a wise man to be a fool.

“Snelly”, as his intimates call him, has a serious vein, one that is commendable. He is a persistent worker, and a copious writer. He usually writes “heads” for the Cluster stories before they have been written—how about that for being on the job? He aided in making the Cluster one of the most accurately “balanced” papers in the South. “Andy”, (This appellation account of campaign speech made for the Honorable Andrew Gump, a rumored relative of “Derby’s”), we expect you immediately to realize your ambition, that of editing the “Po-Dunk Herald.”

“Twas his own fierce roar proclaimed him, Rolling all his kingdom round.”

FRANK L. SNYDER, Th.G.
Greenville, South Carolina

Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association.

Before entering Mercer, Snyder attended the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. While there he was given the honor in his Junior year of being Commencement debater, and in his Senior Year he was Valedictorian.

This year, at Mercer, he will receive a diploma from the Theological School. As a student he stands well in his classes. His training at Moody served him well. Snyder is one of the most gentlemanly men on the campus. His etiquette is unimpeachable. As a minister he has had varied and ample experience already, so he faces no difficulty when he leaves college.

“A visage stern and mild, where both did grow, Vice to condemn, in virtue to rejoice.”

JOHN LAWSON STAPLETON, A.B.
Colquitt, Georgia

Sigma Nu; Phi Delta Literary Society.

Years of concentrated and laborious study are required before one may score an M. D. degree. Many men begin this difficult route only to drop out by the wayside—lacking stamina. But here is a man who is destined to attain the goal for which he has so consistently striven. Yes, Stapleton will some day stand to receive his degree in medicine. He’s that kind—the stay-with-them-to-the-end kind.

Amiable and agreeable, he is liked by all. John never uses the dictionary when speaking, he prefers short, to-the-point sentences. But when he speaks, he says something.

“What cannot science and industry perform?”
JAMES MADISON SULLIVAN, Th.G.
Brunson, South Carolina

Masonic Club; Ministerial Association.
For thirteen years Sullivan has been a minister, preaching at Patrick, Pasceland, Ridgeland and Brunson—all cities of South Carolina. He has attended, before entering Mercer, the Wingate Junior College and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Since coming to Mercer he has been the regular pastor at Mikado Baptist Church, Macon, Georgia.

What is the significance of such a record? Even though one never had the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Sullivan, even though they had never breathed the sincere atmosphere of his personality, this record speaks most eloquently of unrestrained efforts, of honest labor for the cause of religion. Sullivan, even now, has already realized to a large degree his ambition "To Preach the Word." After-life will mean much to you, Sullivan, since you have a sincere message that your heart must enunciate.

"But gently took that urgently came:
And ever my flock was my chief care."

No man on Mercer's expansive campus is better known than Harry P. No motion is ever made at student or Senior meetings that he would not alter and amend. Harry is unique in that respect. Energetic, dynamic, out-spoken to a fault, he is one of the Super-Seniors of '25. Whenever Harry rises, however, it is well to note that his amendment shows a marked degree of penetration. This ability to think in rapid fire style is a most desirable quality—one that few men possess, and fewer appreciate. Harry reaches for the highest. His ambition, which he will some day certainly realize, is "To be a noted educator and preacher."

"Yet I am a strong advocate of the While I may stand and fight."
WILLIAM BAILEY UNDERWOOD, A.B.

Mystic, Georgia

President of the Ministerial Association.

A man of few words, parsimonious of speech; a man of subdued, yet pleasant, nature—such is Underwood. None of the boisterousness, the bragadocio so often found in the student body in his character. Life, to him, is a serious venture, a jewel to be carefully guarded, a talent which must accumulate interest ere it be returned to the Giver of life.

The world needs more of his type. He will disseminate his message of earnest endeavor. As a minister he will search out the deeper forces that lie hidden in the depths of the human soul, Christianity, to him, is sober living.

"Sovereign, and very rarely sad.
And all the way he prayed as he went..."
RAYMOND EDWARD WALKER A.B.
"Dean"
Carrollton, Georgia

Raymond hails from Berry School, at which institution he was a member of the baseball and track teams, in addition to being Senior Declamer, Class Historian and Inter-Society Debater.

And, as may be seen above, his list of honors did not stop when he left prep school. "Dean" has certainly received his share of laurels. As a speaker he has acquired some of the fame that is accorded a "Webster" or a "Bryan". And now, as you leave school, "Dean", we wish to tell you how much we have enjoyed our associations with you, and we wish you success in the Vale of Tears of after-life. Best luck!

JOHN VERNON WALLACE. A.B.
Perry, Georgia

Phi Delta Theta; Phi Delta Literary Society; Assistant Instructor in Spanish, Summer School, '24; Freshman Football, 29; Spanish Club; Assistant Instructor, 24, 25.

Vernon's record at Perry High School is illuminating. He was Vice-President of the Senior Class, Treasurer of the Athletic Association, member of the Basketball and Track teams, and rounded his prep work as Class Orator.

It is a noticeable fact that the best college men made best records in prep schools. Vernon, as an example, has a wonderful record—for college is but a continuation, and cannot be disjoined. At Mercer he was chosen as Spanish assistant. He was able to leave college one year as Principal of Soperton, Georgia, High School, using his Spanish to an excellent advantage as teacher there. Vernon hopes to make good either as a teacher or a business man. In either field he has the best of chances. And every one of us, Vernon, hope you make good. You deserve it.

"A helowe thou hast long sought."

JOHN S. WEAVER, A.B.
Buena Vista, Georgia

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Ciceronian Literary Society; Super-Summer-Schooler, '24; Tennis Club.

John won, with but slight trouble, the unique title of the "Most Hubby-Like Man" in the last Summer School. That shows what the girls think of him. John is the social light of the campus; and, truly, his ray shines far and wide, and right luminous is its effulgence. John introduced "flatting" collars to the campus. Picture for yourself six feet of genuine "man", with curly blond hair; imagine a deep, rich voice, and hearty full laugh coupled with a sincere manner—and you have John.

John, as you leave us we feel that we have profited by the acquaintance. To the girls: We hereby give you one desirable Bachelor, treat him kindly.

LEONARD W. WILLIAMS, A.B.
East Point, Georgia
Cluster Staff, '22, '23, '24, '25; Publicity Manager, Mercer University, '24, '25.
One of Leonard's chief regrets is that the day only contains twenty-four hours. Such a limited time is unfortunate when one is as busy as Leonard. In an effort to get the most out of the day he works and sleeps on a systematic schedule. He has to resort to efficiency if he hopes to keep the world supplied with news about Mercer and her student body. Leonard is correspondent for every paper in Georgia. In addition to this publicity work for the College he writes feature and campus stories for a daily newspaper in Atlanta, Ga. One does not wonder that he bemoans the brevity of the day.

There is something original, refreshing and delightful about Leonard that makes him an excellent personal friend. He is philosophical and thoughtful, and despite his pressing work, finds time for developing lasting friendships. Leonard, we wonder what the fates hold for you—whatever it is will be worthwhile, of that we are confident.

Association; Y. M. C. A.; Chorister for Georgia Baptist Volunteers; Assistant in French, '23, '24, '25.
The "Kiltie Country" is well represented in the good-natured "Scotty" Young. He received his primary education at Anderson Institute, Lerwick, Scotland, served on the firing line in France with the "Ladies from H—", secured junior college training at Norman Institute, and now completes his Senior year at Mercer.

Student, athlete, Glee Clubber, teacher, soldier and minister—this is the combination that we find in the character of "Scotty." And he excelled in all of his undertakings. Few men have the versatile natures of the "uncanny Scot," few men have woven for themselves a garment of such excellent merit. As a missionary to Japan, "Scotty" carries the good will and respect of all who knew him.

"His name a great example stands to show

Class of 1925

ING SAUL drove all the witches and soothsayers out of the land of Israel. The New England fathers burned the survivors of Saul's persecution at Salem. To whom, then, may we go—we, who have been commanded to secure a prophecy of the Class of 1925?

I am informed that today there yet remains one witch who has not been utterly destroyed. Even she is being rapidly consumed by the great thoroughbred thistle by the Volstead Act. These words of prophecy came to me while under the influence of the last surviving witch, the Witch Hazel.

HEAR YE THE WORDS OF WISDOM!

Two months after leaving Mercer William B. Freeman shall inherit a fortune. He will arise and go to Zebulon Georgia, where he will waste his substance in riotous living. After many years he will take unto himself a herd of cattle and a hive of bees, and spend the rest of his days feasting on milk and honey.

Harry P. Thomas and Lonnie Fleming will organize a corporation in Harlem, Georgia, for the purpose of manufacturing paint brushes. The material for the paint brushes will be supplied from the hair that formerly adorned the upper lips of these gentlemen during their Senior year.

Martin C. Burgard's masterpiece, "The Ode to a Homeless Cat," will be the impetus for the organization of a home for Mercer "Co-Eds". Robert Dunwoody will be an inmate of this institution.

"Derby" Snellgrove will be sole owner, editor, reporter, printer and office boy for the "Swainsboro Splinter".

In 1948, "Saint" Jelks will finish his "Epistle to the Mulattoes". He will then begin on his masterpiece, "The Art of Asking Crazy Questions".

"Doc" Lawson Stapleton will supply the material to keep alive the Undertaking Establishment of Biles, Martin and Crenshaw.

Floyd Cantrell is attempting to convince the inhabitants of Greenland and Iceland that ice cream freezers will help supply their fuel shortage.

"Soo" Murdock, after four years of consistent wooing of Miss Garner, has decided to enter a Monastery. Otis Doreaux is serving his eighteen year sentence for bigamy.

Lloyd Brown is game warden at Smithville, Georgia. "Red" Milford, like Abraham of old, is the father of a multitude. He is pastor at Waverly Hall, Georgia, "Evangelist Crook" Smith, with the assistance of his able singer, Jared A. Simmons, has just closed a successful meeting in Milford's church.

A. C. Johnson has been putting into practice the altruistic principles that he learned in "Be" Riley's class. He has succeeded in securing a new hitching post for the town of Mitchell, Georgia.

Louis Buchanan and Raymond Walker are both members of the police force in Abbeville, Georgia. They were recently called upon to arrest that notorious heretic, H. O. Hughes, who was accused of disturbing the peace of the town. Mr. Hughes declared that he has discovered the secret of the soul. This statement was obnoxious to Deacon F. G. Janes, consequently, he caused the arrest of Hughes.

Howard Rives has proven himself a benefactor to mankind. He has compounded a salve, which when applied to the lacerated parts of freshmen will give instant relief. The money realized from the sale of this ointment is contributed to a special fund to be used to furnish "Pam" Ragsdale with Christmas cigars.

W. J. and W. R. Carwell are the exclusive agents of the latest volume of Dewey Jowers' poems, entitled, "A Dream of Moonshine."

All other members of the Senior Class of '25, whose names be not herein mentioned—sad, sad be their fate. They will end their earthly careers in that institution at Milledgeville which is provided by kind citizens for the incarceration of the insane. The mental derangement of those unfortunate will be brought about by a series of circumstances which would cause "iron tears to flow down Pluto's cheeks"; or would even have loosed Dr. Ragsdale's purse strings. Those circumstances that will work such woesful havoc will be, first, the reading of this class prophecy; second, reading some of Martin Burghard's poetry; third and lastly, listening to one of Tom Harville's sermons.

The spirit dies and our muse fades.

The Law School of Mercer University offers an unusual opportunity for the study of law. Since its reorganization the school is offering a standard three-year course, which comes up to the standards set by the Association of American Law Schools of which this school has been a member since 1923. This Association is the standardizing agency for law schools in the United States; membership therein being a test of standardization. The faculty is made up of three full-time professors and several very able practitioners teaching part time. This combination affords the students both a thorough and scientific presentation of the principles of law, and at the same time practical instruction in the practical courses given by actual practitioners.

At its head is Judge Fish, who was Associate Justice on the Supreme Court of Georgia for nine years, and Chief Justice of the same court for eighteen years. He is assisted by Dr. Rufus C. Harris, as Secretary of the School, who received his degree of Doctor of Law at Yale University. Dr. Delbert H. Kerchner, another full-time teacher is the Librarian of the Law School, having received his doctor's degree at the University of Chicago.

The Law School owns one of the largest and best law libraries in the South. It has on its shelves the reports of all of the most important cases ever decided in the courts of the United States and England. It also has the statute law, both state and federal, and all of the best text books, digests, encyclopedias, and the leading legal periodicals of America. The school thus comes up to the most rigid standards prescribed by the American Bar Association in library, in faculty, and in curriculum, and enjoys a choice location. No school in the Southeastern States offers a better opportunity for the study of law than does Mercer.

"Judge"

Macon, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; Secretary and Treasurer; Senior Law Class, '23; American Legion. Nearly every man has one outstanding, one predominating characteristic. "Judge" is preeminently "Happy-go-Lucky". Yes, he has that native ability to make the best of every situation, to get the most out of life. "Judge" has never been known to fail to attempt an answer when called on. He can always "shoot his line"; and if his information be somewhat lacking he calls in his oratory to save the day.

A synonym for "Judge" is frankness. Yes, he is frank to the Nth degree, and respected by all because of this praiseworthy quality. Mercer's loss is a gain for the legal world. We predict for him an actuality what his name implies. You'd look good to us on the Bench, "Judge".

"Independence follows the self-made man."

Willie Evans Bartlett, L.L.B.

"Bill"

Adano; President Senior Law Class, '25; Students Relations Committee; Defense Counsel, Student Tribunal; Winner "Corpus Juris" Contest; Highest Class Honors, '23, '24; Winner prize offered by "Moekke Digest Company" for second year lawyers, '23.

Although "Bill" made a remarkable record as a student, having led his class, that is not what most appeals to us. He sees his goal, and then, dear friends, attains it. He says little, but his words are pithy with thought. "Bill's" occupation is Life; his sideline, Law; his adjective is efficiency; his antonym, mediocrity.

As defense in the Student Tribunal, he won great fame. The freshman swear by him. And even those who were admittedly guilty doubted their own guilt after hearing his appeal to the judge. Perseverance to "Bill" is a natural trait. The heights he will reach in the legal world make us dizzy when we even contemplate them. Here is a man who will nobly represent the Mercer Law School in the world of men. "Let others have the odds—just give me a hold."

What a pleasure to write about a man whose honors are so numerous! What a pleasure, and what a task to tell in a hundred words of a man who was an "A" student, Intercollegiate Debater, Glee Clubber, Assistant Instructor, Orator and who capped the climax by being elected Master Mercelian—all in one year!

A peerless personality, crystal-like thought, unswerving ambition, superb control of self and unimpeachable morals—these things will lead him to realize his ambition: A Chief Justice.

Kappa Sigma; Ciceronian Literary Society.

"Quincy" is the type of man who comes to college to secure an education, and leaves with it. He intends to become a lawyer, and if his love affairs become settled so that he can start "lawing" instead of "loving," he is destined to become some day a leading legal light. "Quincy" never carried off the honors, but his consistent record of good marks makes him well liked by the faculty. A gentleman of Utopian temperament, and discreet judgment are "Quincy's" chief characteristics.

He minds his own business—a rare virtue, and a praiseworthy one. Whether he settles down in Bartow or goes to New York, he is going to make good; he has ability.

"Sincerity is the Rock of Gibraltar in the Sea of Life."

ISAAC COWART, A.B., L.L.B.

"Ike"
Colquitt, Georgia

Adano; Secretary Freshman Class; "M" Club; Varsity Football, '20, '21, '22; Class Baseball, '20, '21, '22, '23; Class Basketball, '20, '21, '22, '23; Historian Senior Class, '22; Vice-President, Senior Law Class, '25; President Tennis Club, '21. (See A.B. Section for other information).

Ladies and gentlemen, we take pleasure in presenting "Ike", the little lad from South Georgia. As will be noticed, it was necessary to put the rest of his achievements in the Literary section. A big man merits a big writeup.

"Ike's" smile is more than a facial expression; it is his jovial soul showing in his countenance. He was a Super-Summer-Schooler, being voted the "Best Natural." And, truly he merits the title. An amiable slap on the back, and a hearty word of cheer is "Ike's" way of greeting everyone. "Ike's" troubles, if he has any at all, are in inverse proportion to the size of his body. This same good-natured spirit will carry "Ike" to places in life from which mere "brains" will be barred.

"A man pleased with his own passions and volitions, and who rejoices more than other men in the spirit of life that is in him."

CHALMERS CHAPMAN, A.B., L.L.B.

Ludowici, Georgia

Bound Table, '18; A.B., Mercer, '18; Glee Club, '15, '16, '17, '18, '24, '25; President Glee Club, '17, '18; President Breviston-Parker Club, '17, '18; Treasurer Teachers Association, '16, '17; Secretary Classical Club, '17; Class Basketball, '17, '18; Secretary Senior Class, '18; Ciceronian Society; Editor-in-Chief Cauldron, '17, '18; Y. M. C. A. Quartet, '16, '17, '18; Summer School Debater, '24.

In Chalmers we have such a wide diversity of talents that we hesitate to attempt to point out the strongest. This is his second degree, the other dating way back to 1918. In the interim he fought with the American Forces, and later taught school and entered the banking business.

Personally, Chalmers is an easy-going type of man. None of life's tempestuousness flies around his serene altitude from which eminence he views the world. His amiability has revived for him the class spirit, and although he was out of college for several years, we feel that he is truly one of us. Success?—just a matter of time. His ambition: "To be fundamentally successful in my profession."

"A gentleman of great courage, good understanding but of invincible modesty."

THOMAS ALTON DYER, A.B., L.L.B.

"Tom"

Newnan, Georgia

Adorno.

Those of you who would see the array of honors that "Tom" has acquired during his sojourn on these premises, wish to refer to the A.B. section. It is our purpose here to preserve his memory and his record on the campus.

A superficial knowledge of "Tom's" character is enough to convince anyone that he is a demon for work. The variety of his activities and the efficiency with which he completes them marks him as surer-energetic. Despite his academic work he has time for social affairs.

When a man is unafraid of work, is likable, is a good student and possesses a ready wit nothing can prevent him ascending like a star in the firmament. Our Alma Mater is expecting great things from you, Tom—and you will not disappoint her. As a lawyer, you will "rate" among the best.

"I came to Mercer; sought knowledge; and found it."

EDWARD BEAUFORT EVERETT, B.S.C., L.L.B.

Phi Delta Theta.

"Ed" is another lawyer who also secures an academic degree. Thus it comes that there is no lengthy writeup by his name. Those desiring to refresh their acquaintance with his honorable record need only refer to the literary school.

A veritable human magnet is "Ed." Each time one is in his presence they feel the bonds that bind them to him grow stronger and stronger. He has an abundant supply of that indefinable, yet positively real substance termed personality. "Ed" was elected one of the five handsomest men in school, and he deserved the honor. We might mention that he is probably the best boxer in school, but the thing that makes a man is the ability to think clearly and logically. As a thinker, as a student, a man rises. And "Ed's" rise in the estimation of his fellow students lies largely in the fact that he knows more than the average.

With combination of personality, physical manliness and vast legal and general information, success is but a matter of days and months. Here is a man worthy of Americus and of Mercer. Both shall derive honor and distinction from having had a part in his training.

"The gold of the universe is character."

ROY W. ENGLISH, L.L.B.

"Sheriff"

Sandersville, Georgia

Every man is good at one special thing. "Sheriff" has a rather high degree of proficiency in that national collegiate pastime known in inelgant circles as "Bull Shooting". It requires no small amount of intelligence to answer a question when you have not studied the lesson—and secure a pass. Well, Roy can do this well-nigh miraculous feat. Books are all right, but much in college life is found outside the buckram. This is true in the legal world as in other worlds of activity.

While the Kaiser raised his little row on the other side, Roy sailed over to set things right. He cast everything before the shrine of Mars and fought for the Principle. English is a man who combines practicality, sensibility and independence. It is not far-fetched stretch of imagination to conceive him on a comfortable Bench somewhere in our Commonwealth.

"The determination to succeed is the first step to Success."
EARL WOOTEN FLEMING, L.L.B.

Pi Kappa Phi; Delta Phi (Legal); Phi Delta Literary Society; Treasurer Pan-Hellenic Council.

The expression, "Fame on the Gridiron and Forum", may be changed, in the case of Earl, to "Fame in the classroom and salon". Earl is essentially a student but he does not allow his studies to deprive him of social pleasures. He is one of those men who does one thing at a time, and does it well. The word "slip-shod" has never been added to his vocabulary.

Socially, Earl is quite the "Stuff". It is always a pleasure to come in contact with a man who possesses a congenial disposition, who is willing to forgive petty faults that every man has, and because he is that type of a man, Earl will be remembered by the members of the senior class. When Earl gets opened up in the legal game, he is sure to make good,

"Gie me a spark o' Nature's fire,
That's a' the learnin' I desire."

LON LAMAR FLEMING, A.B., M.A., L.L.B.

"Lonnie"

Luth, Georgia

Phi Theta (Local); Delta Phi (Legal); Phi Delta Literary Society; Masonic Club; Shrine Club; 32 Degree Scottish Rite; Member of all Class Teams; Company Football, '18; Varsity Football, '19; Varsity Track, '19; Champion Light Weight Wrestler S. A. T. C., '18; Alum Club; Glee Club, '14, '19, '20, '21, '24, '25; Vice-President Glee Club, '19; Quartette '15, '19, '20; Associate Editor Cauldron, '20; Principal Rayle High School, '20, '21; Teacher of History Richmond Academy, Augusta, Ga., '22, '23; Member of State Legislature from Columbia County, '23, '24, '24; A.B., Mercer, '20; M.A. Mercer, '22; Thesis: Loyalists in Georgia during American Revolution.

One would think that "Lonnie" with two degrees already appended to his name and a third soon forthcoming, would be a little "elevated" in his attitude to his fellow classmates. One could almost forgive him for being a little aristocratic, since he also represented (?) his county in the Legislature, but no. "Lonnie" is even more congenial than the average man. His sojourn in the Senate Chambers of our Noble Commonwealth merely enhanced his ability to "Shoot a hot line."

"Lonnie", if your other graduate classes are as proud of you as we are of "Our Noble Senator", they are truly a vainglorious crew. Now that you have dickeered in college and legislature, we expect you to really accomplish something in the forum of life. And you will, we know you will.

"Give his every deed a tongue and the uproar will deafen."

AMOS ELLISON GILMORE, B.S.C., L.L.B.

Tennille, Georgia

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Ciceronian Literary Society; Glee Club, '21; Student Tribunal, '24; Mercer Round Table; Pan-Hellenic Council, '22, '23.

Conscientious to the core, a student of the first water. "Gillie" is a man who shirks not work. To speak only of his scholastic record, which, while meritorious in itself, without mentioning his personality would do "Gillie" a rank injustice. He has gained, during his five year sojourn on Mercer's campus, a coterie of friends that would "take oath" on him.

So long has he been on the campus that the thought of his departure is rather saddening. He has become intimately connected in the minds of his friends with our Alma Mater. But the day of parting must come, and we steel ourselves to bid farewell to college and to "Gillie". Luck to you, Ellison, in your unique ambition to be "An Honest Lawyer."

"Be not shaken from thy purpose, either by the plaudits of the mob, or the abuse of the envious."
ALFRED WYMAN GOODYEAR, JR., L.L.B.

"Hambo!e"

Si gma Nu Phi; Phi Theta (Local); R. O. T. C., Georgia Tech; "Red Ribbon Club", Trinity; Second Lieutenant, O. R. C.; Kappa Beta Phi (Georgia); A. E. F., U. S. Army.

Before entering Mercer, Wyman attended Georgia Tech, University of North Carolina and Trinity College, which goes to prove what it goes to prove. To term him a "ladies man" is the same as to say that a desert is a trifle sandy and somewhat lacking in moisture. Among the more or less fair sex he is as much at home as an Eskimo in Alaska.

During the recent fracas, known among the pacifists as the Worldly Antagonism, he cast his lot with the A. E. F., and served the Germans with lead pellets for six months. On returning to the dear old U. S. A., he started to college and is still going. His ambition? "To get a degree this year."

"I had more pleasure in these busy-idle diversions than in all the sweet flavors of peaches, nectarines and oranges."

WILLIAM DAVIS HAMILTON, L.L.B.

Kappa Sigma; Delta Phi (Legal); Ciceronian Literary Society; Pan-Hellenic Council, '24, '25.

The study and mastery of Law is not a child's entertainment. It is work. It requires perseverance and "stamina"—two of the chief qualities that make up the total of Davis Hamilton. The goal is far, but by persistent effort it has been reached by Davis, and now he must set other and even more laborious tasks for himself. That steady, never-quitting trait of his will bring up to heights impossible for more hasty thinkers. The road to success is laid inch by inch.

Davis hails from the home town of Senator George. Why not two Senators from Vienna, both graduates from Mercer, and one in the Senior Class of '25? Not an idle dream, at that! The good records in classes that Davis leaves behind is typical of the man, and they presage a success as sure and certain as the passage of time.

"He strives hard, yet deals fair with his fellow man."

CARVIE W. KILLIBREW, L.L.B.

"Killie"

Gibson, Georgia

Adano.

Ladies, the treat is on us! You now have the pleasure of gazing upon the Beau Brummell of the Law School. When he walks hatlessly (for he has the most beautiful hair) abroad, there is a commotion among the debutantes—they all strive for a ring-side seat.

Physical beauty and physical power are here combined. Ask those who played against him in the class games. He's Harry P. Horse Power. But aside from these attributes he has carried full course in the "Nursery for Justice of Peace" alias the Law School. This goes to prove, ladies, that he has brains as well as brawn and beauty.

When "Killie" passes on from this sinktum sanctorum of illegality we are expecting great things of him. And, in all seriousness, we firmly believe that far down in the vale of years that the day will arrive when his ambition will carry him up to the heights of honor and renown. "Killie", you will make an excellent lawyer, if . . . beware of ladies, beware!

"It does not pay to worry, unless you worry for pay."

Incorporated within the precincts of this young man's character are many of the appurtenances of nobleness, virtue and sincerity. As codicils, to an already large legacy, will be discovered conscientiousness and ambition. Another incorporeal possession of "Mae's" is the power of making friends. He uses this hereafterment to good advantage, and many friends have thencefrom accrued to him.

"Mae" never makes a big noise over what he does. He prefers to do, and then let it go at that. This is the common sense plan, because bragging on one's work is utterly contemptible. As for his future—if this humble writer were a clairvoyant instead of a word-trickster we would be assured that our crystal would show Roy ten years from now as a United States Senator, or else doing something really beneficial as a common sense, practical lawyer. Ambition, such as rankles in his breast, can only lead one way—up.

"Always be true to the best that is in you."

CHARLES ROBERT OWEN, L.L.B.

"Bob"

Adano; Class Baseball, '22, '23; Scrub Baseball, '24; Junior R. O. T. C.

If a man can tell good jokes, his chances for becoming a good lawyer are excellent. Why? Because it is a question in both of holding the interest and causing the hearers to forget all but the matter in hand. And "Bob" is an accomplished joker.

In addition he has a modest, friendly disposition that makes an excellent impression upon his hearers. Nothing he has and bull-dozing about "Bob". When the fates were apportioning out talents they gave to "Bob" the enviable quality of making and retaining friends. And with that grounded deep in one's nature the world will ultimately come nearer until it has tipped over in his lap the things that his ambition craves. Our very best wishes are with you, "Bob", in your legal career.

"Defeat is only for him who accepts it."

NISBET POWERS REDDY, L.L.B.

"Nib"

Macon, Georgia

Adano;

A product of the "Heart of Georgia", and, if we may add, the heart of the heart, for a finer, more gentlemanly man than "Nib" Reddy has not come within the scope of our walk in this vale of life. He is a fit representative of the city, and of the Empire State.

"Nib" received his high school diploma from Lanier High in Macon, and with this as a background has gone forward with a remarkable stride. He is a man who says little. His power he puts into actions. "Nib" does not delve much into theories and hypotheses; he is practical and utilitarian. His very versatility prevents any prediction as to what field he will enter. At present he is a student and a druggist. But, "Nib", you are on your way to the top in whatever you enter, your foundation is too firm for failure.

"An idle man's mumbles accomplish little."
JAMES WARREN SMITH, L.L.B.

"Taxi"

Cartersville, Georgia

Alpha Tau Omega; Adano; Secretary and Treasurer Senior Law Class; Cluster Staff, '24; Class Football, '23, '24; Class Baseball, '22; Assistant Manager Baseball, '23; History Club; Cleronian Literary Society.

"Taxi", as he is known by his myriad of friends on the campus and in town, is a veritable cog in the machinery of this University. Mercer without "Taxi" will seem in as lamentable condition as a Ford without spark plugs. His ventures have been successful, he has had a taste of all phases of college life. In football he made something of a reputation. He played an important part in the victories of the Senior Team. The ability to mix and mingle, to like and be liked has won him a warm spot in the heart of many Mercenaries. He is the type of man that shuns that which savors of the sham, the false or the sincere. Let his mark be high in the galleries of life, let it be difficult, yet when it winds up it will be found he hit the mark and overcame all obstacles—he is the type to succeed.

"The world has a passion for every spark of genius that shows itself."

FRANK BRIGHT STOW, L.L.B.

Kappa Sigma; Phi Delta Literary Society; Pan-Hellenic Council, '22, '23, '24.

Frank is one of those fortunate whose cup of life brims over and bubbles with effervescent joy of living. Witty, vivacious and jovial, he is a boon companion. His philosophy is to secure the utmost out of living while the blood flows free. There is none of that depression in his inspiring and optimistic soul.

His departure is a source of regret, for his place will be difficult to fill. If you are blue, Frank will drape the hazy cloud, or else wash out the somber color and leave it a shiny white. He is a tonic. Small wonder he is held in high esteem. And there ceases to be any wonder when it is known that he is an excellent student also. Such a combination makes for the best. Frank, may your indomitable will power, your qualifications as a friend, your ready wit and your legal knowledge place you in the easy-cushioned chair of a reputable judge. You merit it.

"Happy and I; from care I flee. Why aren't they all content like me?"

LAMAR P. COX, L.L.B.

"Governor"

Camilla, Georgia

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Phi Delta Literary.

Books are all right in their places, but they have small space in the mind of "Governor" Cox. He is one of those exceptional men that learn without ever having to refer on all occasions to pages. He has one of the brightest mentalities in the law school, else he would never have been the student he is. He learns without studying.

"Governor" has a type of droll wit that is pleasing and refreshing. He talks slow, but he thinks fast. He knows the peculiarities and idiosyncrasies of his fellow students and plays to their little vanities. This ability nets him good returns. As he goes forth, we wish him success in his future legal life. May he follow in the footsteps of his father, a prominent lawyer of Mitchell county.

"What sholde he studie, and make him-selven wood. Upon a book in cloestre alway to poure?"
History of Senior Class, 1925

MERcer UNIVERSITY was founded in 1833. Since that time at the end of each scholastic year, a class has departed from the shadows of her steeples and the presence of her guiding hand. Each class has left its history and imprint on the University, whether written or unwritten. The class of 1925 will soon be the latest addition to classes gone before.

It is not the lot of the writer to enter with the class of this year. We still hold fond memories for the class with which we enter. There is no class we love like the class of our Freshman year save the one with which we shall graduate.

In September, 1921, the largest class in the history of the University was enrolled. Mercer had well begun that period of expansion that was to characterize her during the life of her newest class. For nine months the class enjoyed the enviable position which is offered only to a Freshman College Class. In all things, another group was working out its salvation. Such freedom from care and privilege of ease is the one gift of a lifetime. It was the time to imbibe the "Mercer spirit"; to drink deep into the fountain of love for Mercer. Sophomore wisdom, the priceless attribute of a college community, whose bark is worse than its bite, made itself prevalent in our midst. Under the auspices of its possessor, the class of '25 staged the annual grand march up College Street to the place called Wesleyan to pass in review before pleased eyes above, and to be cleansed of a few besetting sins by the water of the fountain made Divine, as it were, by its location.

The first year was memorable for Mercer. Among the long list of the class were several names associated with Tennessee. These names were destined to become a part of the vocabulary of every student. Since then these names have been synonymous with Mercer Athletics, the reason why sporting editors exist. To these Tennesseans of this class Mercer can give her laurels, for they are one big reason why Florida knows the significance of 10 to 0, and the world of sports the accomplishments of Mercer in becoming champions of the S. I. A. A. These names need no mention.

The fall of the following year saw the return of the class, somewhat smaller in number, but with none the less zeal for the future. During this year members of the class made many advents into the realm of college activities and shared in the honor of directing the college community. Some became members of the debating teams that upheld and advanced the name of Mercer in forensic contests. Others gifted with the voice of song took their places on the Glee Club. And still there were a few who preferred the almighty pen while others continued to gain laurels in athletic prowess. Also, during this year, there were some who began careers as members of the college set of "tea hounds." There is some overlapping between this line of endeavor and other activities, but not very much. As the second year drew to a close, hopes were bright for the future.

And again we came together for the third time. The Junior Year is one that looks into the next year—to the period when it dominates the campus. As a class, we were little noticed, existing in a submerged condition. The individuals of the class continued to hold their places in school activities. The year passed and the class was standing on the threshold of his Senior Year at Mercer.

In the fall of 1924, when life anew reappeared on the campus, a new master was at the helm of student activities. From a place of obscurity to the one of greatest prominence was the difference between Junior and Senior. The duty of enforcing all campus regulations and matters of student discipline was our heritage. Our number was not as large as in the past days.
this was the year of derbies and canes. The streets of Macon, as never before, were graced by but none of the courage that the class possessed had left us in the transition periods. Then too, these apparels of dress. In all things, the class tried to be systematic and business-like, even in details matters, and we hope some practices worthy of emulation will remain after this class departs.

The history of the class would be very incomplete without reference to the growth of Mercer during this period. Surely this may be called the expansion of the university—a growth probably unparalleled in southern universities. No name, so far, has been mentioned. But we can refrain no longer. For to Dr. Rufus W. Weaver and those associated with him we give credit for our unbounding expansion. When the class of '25 entered there were 485 students at Mercer. That number has reached 1,154. During this same period the faculty has increased from 41 members to the number 94. This class has seen a tremendous building program begun. Among the buildings erected during our presence are: The President’s Home, the Faculty Apartments, a new dining hall and several smaller cottages. Plans have also been completed for the erection of the South’s largest stadium and the stately memorial building. Our broadcasting station is surpassed by none. In the last three years, the debating teams have won eleven of the fifteen debates undertaken. The Law School has received national recognition. The Student Tribunal has become well entrenched as organ of student government. Our athletic teams have achieved the distinction of southern champions. The Glee Club is the peer of any club. These and many other things have been achieved since we came to Mercer. Along with all sons of Mercer, we point to them with peculiar and partisan pride.

Four years have been spent here. Many names might be mentioned, names of men who have played a prominent part in making the class what it has been. This would include names of faculty members and students also. But space forbids. Another class is following us. Others will come. For all we hope a full measure of success. As we depart from the scenes of college days, from the associations of four years; as we take with us friendships formed, and the pleasant memories of days spent here, we take with us, the injunction of our Alma Mater:

Go to your work and be strong; halting not in your ways.
Balking the bad half won for an instant dole of praise:
Go to your work and be wise—certain of sword and pen.
Who are neither children nor gods, but men in a world of men.

To The Juniors

Our laurels fall to thee,
Our honors yours shall be,
Worthy Junior Class.
Yours to win a greater fame,
Yours to bring with one acclaim
Vaster praise to Mercer's name,
Our efforts to surpass.

Learn from us whate'er you may,
Our errors cast away,
See a perfect whole;
Raise the standard—reach it, too;
Yours to think, and yours to do.
Mercer needs such men as you
To attain her goal.

Mercer University of Today—What Shall It Be Tomorrow?

1. PRESENT STUDENT BODY:
   Fall Term ........................................ 870
   Including Summer Term ......................... 1103

2. GROWTH:
   1918 ................................................... 303 students
   1919 ................................................... 443 students
   1920 ................................................... 379 students
   1921 ................................................... 485 students
   1922 ................................................... 633 students
   1923 ................................................... 863 students
   1924 ................................................... 1022 students
   1925 ................................................... 1103 students to date

The enrollment for the college has increased over 400 per cent.

3. FINANCES:
   The assets of Mercer University have increased from $738,000.00 in 1918 to $1,829,000.00 in 1924.
   The total income has increased from $61,000.00 in 1918 to $372,000.00 in 1924.
   The income from students in tuition and fees has increased from $7,725.00 in 1918 to $102,000.00 in 1924.
   The University has operated during this entire period without costing the Baptists of Georgia a penny. We are now carrying $34,500.00 as a surplus in excess of operating expenses for the period.

4. BUILDINGS:
   Mercer University now has 43 buildings, most of them frame structures in which we are housing married ministerial students. We have the following dormitories:
   SHERWOOD HALL, named for Adiel Sherwood, the spiritual founder of Mercer University:
   CYNTHIA HOLIDAY HALL, named for "Ole Miss," the wife of Billington M. Sanders, the first President of Mercer University:
   PENFIELD HALL, the oldest dormitory on the campus, named for Josiah Penfield of Savannah, who gave the first money for ministerial education in Georgia.
CAULDRON

TRYON HALL, named for William Melton Tryon, the spiritual founder of Baylor University in Texas;

GAMBREL HALL, named for Dr. J. B. Gambrel, formerly President of the University, and later President of the Southern Baptist Convention;

NANCY MILLS HALL, named for the wife of Jesse Mercer;

DANIEL MARSHALL HALL, named for the first Baptist minister who ever entered Georgia, is probably the best equipped dining hall connected with any Southern institution, having a capacity for 700 students. This is the first building on the campus erected in connection with the master plan prepared by Edward Lippincott Tilton of New York.

5. IMMEDIATE DEVELOPMENTS:

The city of Macon will deed to Mercer University within the next few weeks, the land between Adams Street and University Place, now known as Elm Street. It is the purpose of the administration to fill in this street, thus giving us an unbroken campus.

The Trustees have deeded to the City the land for the projection of Adams Street to the top of Grays Hill and the land for Plant Street extended from the intersection of South College Street to Virginia Avenue. This property, below 15 acres in extent, will be used for the location of the Macon Centennial Stadium, and for parking space. Six streets radiate from this point —Dempsey Avenue, Virginia Avenue, Morgan Street, Plant Street, and South College Street. The stadium will be ready for use next fall.

The Memorial Auditorium Gymnasium will seat 3,000 in the auditorium and 2,500 for basketball games, and will contain fourteen class rooms with all of the rooms and equipment necessary to an up-to-date gymnasium.

It is proposed to reconstruct the old gymnasium so as to provide six large class rooms and six offices for professors.

6. POINTS OF INTEREST:

Among the many points of interest are the new Post Office, University Station, the Book Store, the Co-op Store, the Professors’ Apartment House, the President’s Home, the fire-proof Vault in the Administration Building for the preservation of historical documents and rare books, the Radio Station, the aerials of which hang between the Administration Building and the new steel tower on top of the Chapel building, the studio and the broadcasting station itself, in the tower of the Chapel, the Law School quarters, with its magnificent new Law Library, the Daniel Marshall Dining Hall equipment, the Library and Miss Sallie, and the Alumni Field, where the monarchs of the forest, the victorious Mercer Bears, will battle with the Alligators from Florida.

To The Sophomores

To the Sophomores we humbly bow,
Their wisdom is divine;
In brilliance they do seem somehow,
King Solomon to outshine.

Rare wit and learning they display,
All knowledge do they boast:
And we are often prone to say
That they have brains—almost.

To The Freshmen

Ye sprigs of green,
Ye folk of verdant hue,
Who gather here from far and wide,
Ye Frosh, ye are old Mercer's pride;
Our hats are off to you,
As may be seen.

For at the games,
When we did try our might
Against our Alma Mater's foes,
To heights sublime your spirits rose;
You cheered us in the fight
By your acclaims.

Ye think, perchance,
We treated you as brutes
By application of Sophomoric tools,
And leashing you with stringent rules:
But no! These attributes
Your cause advance.

Ye verdant crowd,
Each mem'ry that survives
Will cheer your heart in future years:
Why even now, this TIME appears
The happiest of your lives—
Of it be proud!

The President's Club

Student spirit, student thought and student morals are usually controlled and ordered by a comparatively few men. These leading characters are usually to be found at the helm of the various campus organizations—elected on account of personal influence or marked ability. In order to shape out a course of student action, most conducive to the best interests of every one, the idea of forming the Presidents' Club presented itself to Alfred Pullen, member of the student body.

The conception immediately became an actuality, since every thoughtful student saw the possibilities of such an organization. And now the Presidents' Club functions smoothly. In its meetings student problems are discussed, and remedies suggested, plans for the future are outlined, difficulties pertaining to special organizations are given hearing and solutions offered. Here all friction is eliminated. To be a member of the Presidents' Club is indeed an honor and a privilege, because it is composed of the leading men on the campus. Theirs is a great work.

The Oratorical "13" is a club which was organized in the college year '22-'23, and has for its membership 13 regular and 13 associate members. Since the organization the club has grown steadily in strength of interest and membership. Due to the limited membership, only those who show an active interest in public speaking are permitted to become members. Before becoming a member a candidate must be passed by a unanimous vote of the regular members.

The meetings, which are held weekly, are composed of debating programs, orations, mock trials and other things usually expected of a speaker on the public platform.

It has only been recently that the club began considering petitioning for a National Charter, and with hard work and the right kind of membership it is possible that the Oratorical "13" may some day become a National organization.

Dorough's Dilemma

By "CLANK" BURGHARD

ACT I.

TIME—Late afternoon.
1st. Voice: "I am dying, Egypt, dying!"
2nd. Voice: "A most unhealthy act,—that of dying, and a most unhygienic one. But who art thou who so complainingly swan songeth?"
1st. Voice: "I amst Day."
2nd. Voice: "And wherest artest thouest?"
1st. Voice: "I, kindest sirrah, amst in the West."
Chorus: "Day is dying in the West."
1st. Voice: "Send, Oh! send me light ere I perish!"
2nd. Voice: "How now? Wouldst have me Joshuaize the Sunst and Moonst for you? Thou lackest not in gall, howe'er, I'll try it."

ACT II.

TIME—Later same afternoon.
2nd. Voice: "What ho, my Light Brigade!"

(NOTE: The other two Red Smiths are sick.)
2nd. Voice: "Noble Brigade, Day is dying in the West."
Brigade: "Great lack of Day!"
2nd. Voice: "Bonny boys of my bully Brigade, Westward Ho with ye, illumine Day, and thus keep it from dying."
Brigade: "Si Senor. We'll 'parade our groceries' to the Golden Gate if you but command."

ACT III.

TIME—Still later but Brigade lights up country like it is midday.
(Enter W. O. Dorough—He is very excited.)
Dorough: "Hold! Hold! Hold! Hold! and I don't mean maybe."
2nd. Voice: "Your main agony, Dizzy Dorough? Explain it quick!"
Dorough: “I am the president of this student body. I ask of you, what will happen if I allow you to send off my most shining young men?”

2nd. Voice: “But, artst willing that Day shouldst die?”

Dorough: “I am a disciple of Woodrow Wilson. Therefore, let us arbitrate. Let us League of Nations this matter. Let’s Fourteen Points it.”

2nd. Voice: “Your plan, man, your plan!”

ACT IV.

TIME—Same time.

Dorough: We’ll trick them. Gather then thou roundst and giv a da lis of a da ear. Time, as you know, flies. We’ll make it fly backward.”

2nd. Voice: “Artst a fool. or thinkest thou us foolish, or what have you?”

Dorough: “Patience, I pray, and permit me to proceed. The plan is perfect. It is this: Today is Monday. There is no Chapel today. Tomorrow is Tuesday. There should be Chapel tomorrow. We will fool Day by not having Chapel tomorrow. Day will naturally think that it is still Monday and refuse to die. Then we will keep on putting off Chapel and Day will continue to be fooled and will live indefinitely!”

Exit Dorough on shoulders of admiring students and faculty members while the Chapel pipe organ softly plays, ‘Oh, our darling Dorough is a daisy, is a daisy, is a daisy, oh!”
Alma Mater Songs of Mercer University

(Tune: "O Mother, Dear, Jerusalem.)

O Mercer dear, with rapt delight,
Thy sons, a thousand strong.
From Rabun Gap to Tybee Light
Thy fame acclaim in song,
The glory of our Mother's face,
Effulgent evermore.
Reveals the beauty and the grace
That Mercer men adore.

Thy mission is to Mercerize
The youth who come to thee,
With alkali that beautifies
Their mental crudity.
A greater strength the fibres show
A silken luster gleams;
The human product, they who know
Fulfillment of their dreams.

O Mother dear, thy sons are here,
Beneath thy towers tall,
Thy name we love with holy fear,
We pledge to thee our all.
To thee with joy we give this day
The strength of mind and heart.
Thy gracious law we will obey,
"All good received, impart."
—Rufus W. Weaver.

The men of our America,
Have freely fought and died,
That they might stay forevermore,
Oppression's cruel tide;
And now a call is sounding forth
From sea to shining sea,
The manhood of America,
For the man of Galilee.
He died to make us free,
Then let our watchword be,
The manhood of America
For the man of Galilee.

The men of our America,
Whose hearts are true as steel,
And tender as a mother's heart
A brother's heart to feel.
Have made a wondrous sacrifice
In lands across the sea;
The men of our America,
Like the man of Galilee.
The men of our America;
Upon life's battle field
Their watchword victory or death.
They know not how to yield
And now with tyranny o'erthrown,
God grant we soon may see
The manhood of America,
For the man of Galilee.
—William Russell Owen.

The Mercer Players has for its ideals: The stimulation of interest in dramatic literature; the study of Stage technique; the art of Impersonation; and the actual presentation of Dramas.

In the spring of 1924 The Players successfully presented "Adam and Eva", a light comedy. The members wish to express their appreciation to Professor Robinson, Knight and Smalley for their assistance in criticizing their productions. Though one of the most recent organizations, The Players hope to develop enough interest in drama to make this organization one of the chief outlets for literary and dramatic talent. It offers unlimited opportunities.

"The Cluster" has had a most successful year under its present management. Dunwoody, the Business Manager, has succeeded in securing second-class rates, so that now each student is assured a copy.

In passing it is well to mention several of the writers whose works may be commented upon: Humbert Ray, as columnist and joker; Leonard W. Williams, as feature story and news writer; Malcolm Johnson, who resigned from editorship of the "Cluster" to accept a place on one of Macon's dailies, feature and news writer; and Martin C. Burghard, editorial writer.

This honorary organization is a means whereby all the various sciences may be discussed. Here the chemist, the biological student, the physicist and the mathematician meet and discuss problems and achievements in their departments. It acts as a common medium of expression, and the members derive greater benefits thereby.

Miss Riley, it may be said, is the first co-ed who has ever been a member of the Alembic Club.

Society Day is an annual event which was inaugurated at Mercer by our President, Dr. Weaver, in the college year of '20-'21. Since that time February 22 has been set aside as annual holiday in which to celebrate the festivities.

The day is the occasion when the Phi Delta and Ciceronian societies meet in the feature program of the year. The literary program is held in the chapel and is composed of a debate and four orations. Each society furnishes four speakers, two debaters and two orators. These men are elected by their respective societies and represent the best speakers from the active membership of the society.

A six o’clock banquet is held in the college dining hall at which the visitors are entertained. The concluding event of the day is the inter-society basketball game which is held in the sports arena and is attended by a large crowd.

Subject for Debate: "Resolved, That an additional tax of two cents per gallon should be levied on all gasoline sold within the state for the betterment of public highways."

Affirmative—Ciceronian
Frank S. Twitty
Frank K. Jordan

Negative—Phi Delta
Robert L. Gunnels
R. Habernicht Casson

In the fall of 1922 the two societies challenged each other for a public debate to be held between teams composed of Freshmen. The challenges were jointly accepted and that debate was the first ever held between Freshmen of the two societies and it was the beginning of an annual occasion which will ever hold prominence as one of the outstanding events of the college year.

The Freshmen who represent the societies are chosen on competitive try-out speeches and the candidates are usually those who have won debating and oratorical honors in high school.

The Ciceronian Society won the first annual Freshman debate while the last victory went to the Phi Delta.

The "El Clube Espanol" is an honorary organization, one of the requirements for membership being an average of "B" in class work. At its meetings topics pertaining to Spanish countries are discussed. The members find that these discussions are conducive, not merely to a cementing of the bonds of friendship, but to stimulating interest in the study of the Spanish language.

The War Memorial Building

The Auditorium-Gymnasium, to be known as the War Memorial Building, is to be one of the most unique and useful structures in the South. Its uses are manifold, its need imperative, its value inestimable. The Alumni Association is fast making a reality out of a dream.

When completed the building will contain the Sport Arena with a seating capacity of three thousand, a swimming pool, locker space for a thousand men, four series of shower baths, separate rooms for the athletic teams, rooms for the visiting teams, a Trophy Room for memorial tokens of the three great Wars and for cups and trophies won by our teams, and a room for the "M" Club.

In addition to its usefulness as an athletic building it will serve to alleviate the present crying need for class rooms. The structure will have seven offices and fifteen class rooms—a space sufficient to accommodate four hundred students.

Mercer University may well be proud of its Alumni Association which thus makes possible the erection of a building with such vast utilitarian possibilities.
Master Mercerian

The highest honor attainable by a student of Mercer University at the hands of his fellow-students is that of Master Mercerian, conferred by vote of the student body.

The attributes and qualities essential for this preferment are strong and attractive personality, scholarship, active interest in athletics, high character, sympathy with student activities, the elements of leadership, patriotism, manliness, and righteous ambition.

Gloria Ad Merceria!

Types of students have we four.
Who come to Mercer bright with hope.
The other schools may have a score.
Types of students have we four:
Thank Heaven that we have no more.
For these give me sufficient scope;
Types of students have we four
Who come to Mercer, bright with hope.

First, the homely Theolog.
In piety he has no peer.
Although his brain seems in a fog;
First the homely Theolog:
In church-wheels an important cog.
Awes Evolution with a sneer;
First the homely Theolog.
In piety he has no peer.

The Athlete next, a man of might,
Who dribbles, bucks, and strikes 'em out.
In every sport a shining light—
The Ath-a-lete, a man of might:
He works for Mercer, day and night.
Well paid by some Alumni scout:
The Athlete next, a man of might.
Who dribbles, bucks, and strikes 'em out!

Next the Grind with glasses wide.
(A in Science. A in Math.)
He knows when Aristotle died—
Who?—the Grind, with glasses wide.
With back well-bent, but brains inside.
He follows learning's noble path:
Next the Grind with glasses wide.
(A in Science. A in Math.)

Last, not least, the ladies' man—
With hair Stacombed and trousers wide.
He dodges all the work he can;
Last not least, the ladies man—
Knows every girl at Wes-ley-an.

Last, not least, the ladies' man.

Above is a list of Mercer's veterans. These men have faced the foes of our Alma Mater, fighting ever for the glory of our University.

The "M" Club keeps alive that friendly spirit among all athletes, for in its sessions all teams are represented. It promotes better athletics and advocates the highest ideals for College sports. One is not surprised to find the names of many of Mercer's outstanding men in the "M" Club. To become a member of this organization requires the most arduous efforts. But the honor more than repays those men elected.
Here are three men who deserve credit. Yes, no one ever thinks of the Athletic Managers. No one thinks who gives out the uniforms, who makes all arrangements for schedules, who works day, noon and night to keep the equipment in shape. We wish to take time out to bestow a little praise on the men who make games possible by their ever-watchful diligence. If the players have a kick these men receive and take the punch out of it. Here's to our Athletic Managers! More power to them!
Football At Mercer In 1924

WITH THE entrance of Coach Stanley L. Robinson onto the stage of Mercer University athletics action began to pick up. His influence in behalf of clean athletics, though not a new thing for Mercer by any means, and the sport of football has taken more rapid strides than any other sport. Mercer has rapidly risen in football circles of the South.

Class football and spring football have been placed on firm basis at Mercer with the advent of Mr. Robinson, and its worth was amply proven in the season of 1924. Several of the best men on the 1924 football squad are those who were discovered and developed in the course of the class and spring football training. Class football also enables a larger number of boys to indulge in some form of competitive athletics, than would do so in the regular varsity practice.

Mercer’s team took on the name of Bears this season, and their growl was truly heard in many precincts. Mercer scored on the University of Georgia in the 1924 season for the first time since Jake Zellars took the pigskin across a Bulldog goal fourteen years ago. Dave Rice, the plunging Bear fullback, was elected to take the ball over this time. The Georgia game showed that the team was in line for the good season which it subsequently has had.

The 1924 team was the first football aggregation of the University to cross the Mason and Dixon line for an encounter. The team went to Syracuse to play Syracuse University. They put up a splendid fight and held the wonderful offensive machine of that institution scoreless for one half. The outcome of the game found Syracuse leading 26 to 0.

The Bears came immediately from Syracuse down to Greenville and handed a 23 to 0 defeat to the Furman Hornets, making the second consecutive defeat of that school in the last two years. Chattanooga, Howard and Wofford were all disposed of with the low end of the score going to the Mercer opponents.

Then the Florida Alligators stopped off in Macon on the way home from an encounter with the Army Mule and essayed to struggle with the Bears. The game took place on Home-Coming Day, and before a good crowd of the Alumni from all over the state Mercer won out over the ‘‘Gators’’ to the tune of 14 to 0. This game was the crown jewel of the football record of Mercer, and merely showed what Mercer football squads can do when they really hit their stride.

It seemed that the wonderful exhibition in the Florida game drained the Bears somewhat, for they went under water in the game with the Petrels of Oglethorpe University and only emerged after Oglethorpe had amassed a count of 25 to 0. However, the squad caught their breath for the final wind-up of the season, and Mississippi College barely managed to hold them to a 7 to 7 tie game.

CAPTAIN "RED" SIMMONS

Captain Jared A. ("Red") Simmons, sorrel-topped son of Tennessee, has for four long and eventful years been a landmark of Mercer football. When the time came for selecting a leader to guide the team over the shoals of 1924, "Red" was chosen with hardly a dissenting vote. His recognized ability and his actual achievements have amply demonstrated that no error was made when he was selected. His courage, his fire, his patience, his sagacity in matters of football, and his uncanny knack at handling his teammates contributed strongly to the morale of the team which journeyed from New York to New Orleans and ever acquitted themselves nobly. He was a powerful factor in scoring Mercer’s first touchdown against Georgia in fourteen years, and he also gave of his very soul to defeat Florida, an event never before heard of in the history of southern football. Sporting writers all over the south have commented upon "Red"’s outstanding ability. He has been mentioned on several All-S. I. A. A. teams, but in some unaccountable manner he has been negligently forgotten in the compilation of each ALL-SOUTHERN team. "Red" is one of the seven members of this year’s football team who played their last game against Mississippi College on Thanksgiving Day. His exit will be a heavy loss to the football hopes of Mercer, but his absence will be evidenced in a larger way by the empty space left in the hearts of his friends on the campus, in Macon, and in the football circles in the south. He is known by all his opponents as a hard fighter but a fair one ever. It should never be forgotten that "Red" has a commanding appearance as evidenced by the fact that he was selected as one of the four handsome men at Mercer.
Eli McDonald

Eli McDonald in many ways conveys to the casual onlooker the impression that one of the mountains of his home state, Tennessee, has been bedecked with civilian clothes and sent down to show the Georgia boys how to grow up and how to play football. Eli began the 1924 season with a rush that bade fair to land him on the mythical team of the S. I. A. A. but that old and much dreaded sneak called the "jinx," overtook him in the form of a fractured leg, and he was forced to stand idly by and watch his teammates complete the season. "Mc" is one of the most likable boys on the squad and has always possessed a congenial and willing spirit. There remains a little anxiety as to just how Mc's misfortune will affect his playing next year. Should it bother him little, he will certainly expend all his pent-up energy in making up for the time he has lost from the game in 1924.

"GOOFY" COFFEE

When the welkin was rung to summon candidates for class football in the winter of the 1923-24 season, a youth weighing some two hundred and thirty or forty or fifty pounds answered as an applicant for the freshman class team. He acknowledged that he didn't know enough about football to know whether the end zone was the place where the end played or where the game was finished, in as much as he had never played a minute in his life. However, he committed himself to be of the belief that he could learn. He learned to such an extent that his work came to the notice of Coach Robinson and he was invited to attend practice in 1924 as an applicant for the varsity team. He saw his first service against Syracuse, and was used consistently throughout the season. If his progress in the future compares to his progress of the past he is scheduled for great things.

DEWEY JOWERS

Dewey Jowers has always threatened to break out into stardom ever since he first arrived at Mercer. Somehow he has always fallen a little short of this until the accident of McDonald left a gaping hole at right tackle. Dewey immediately came forward with an "I will" spirit, and startled fandom with his good work in the subsequent games. He was a tower of strength in the aggregation which held Florida scoreless, a thing that no other southern college has done in many a moon. His teammates say that when Dewey settles down to business in the line he begins to growl like a bear and the results of his efforts do greatly resemble those of an angry bruin. Dewey's characteristic probably had a lot to do with the choice of Mercer's nickname. It is uncertain whether Dewey will be back next year or not. He has one more year of football, but he is threatening to graduate on the basis of some advance credit that he brought with him to Mercer.

"SLEW" DUNN

"Slew" Dunn weighs in the neighborhood of 18o pounds, but he was called upon this year to fill the hole left in the line by the exit of Mike Herndon, whose avoirdupois mounts to 290 pounds. "Slew" rose nobly to the occasion and was picked by none other than Morgan Blake as a guard on the mythical All-S. I. A. A. team of 1925. Unlike the usual consistent guard, he was a tiger in the fray, always carrying the fight into his enemies' territory and making tackle after tackle across the line of scrimmage, and compelling his opponents to suffer losses time after time. The future of Dunn in southern football is scintillant with possibilities.

BELA LANCASTER

Bela Lancaster was preceded at Mercer by his brother Carl. Carl made a record in football that few men have equaled at Mercer. It became "Lank's" "bounder" duty not to let the family 'scutcheon suffer any stain. How well he has succeeded may be ascertained by the fact that Bela played more time in each game of the 1924 season than any other man. "Lank" doesn't know the meaning of the word quit, and never found a use for any of its synonyms in his vocabulary. Although consistency is his strong fort, he is by no means mediocre in his style of play. He is one of the fastest guards that Mercer has ever had, which makes his work in running interference and cutting the secondary very valuable. "Lank" is to serve as alternate captain for the season of 1925.

DENVER FLEMING

Denver Fleming had a vivid career with the freshman team of 1923, but was a little slow in getting under way on the varsity in 1924. However, his slowness seems to have been due to the fact that he was only gathering momentum, for he certainly came through in grand style before the season was very old. He picked up a fumble and ran seventy yards for a touchdown against Furman, and thus started the onslaught that ended in the score of Furman, 0 and Mercer, 23. His bursts of brilliance continued throughout the season. Profiting by the experience of his first year on the varsity he will rise to much greater heights in his next two years.

DICK CARSON

Dick Carson, captain-elect of 1925, merits fully the position which the good judgment of his teammates led them to confer upon him: that of leading them in the next season. Although Dick's slight of stature was threatened with the loss of his position to the bulky Flemings, he fought valiantly and divided the ample honors with his teammates. Dick is by nature quiet and unobtrusive but on the football field he awakes to action like a warrior of old and makes himself very obtrusive, and, we understand, very objectionable to his opponents. If faith in a leader counts for anything, then Dick is slated to be a wonderful leader, for his hard work has won him the confidence of all his teammates.

"CROOK" SMITH

"Crook" Smith is beyond a shadow of a doubt the best known football player at Mercer. He is known from the blue waters of Lake Ocone to the dingy bayous of Florida as one of the greatest ends of all times. His ability has been recognized by such celebrities as Morgan Blake, Bill Street, Everett Strupper, and others. "Crook's" greatest asset is the fact that his mere presence in a game has such a bolstering effect that it could not be dispensed with. He was continually slapping his teammates on the back and giving them encouragement, which proved invaluable to the morale of the squad. "Crook" also has seen his last service on the football field for Mercer. "Crook's" every move is spectacular, and to this fact he owes his widespread fame. Several of his doctors have expressed the belief that he is not made of bone and sinew, but of some malleable material, such as is used in stove, or some thing of that order. However, he finally acquired two cracked ribs in the Oglethorpe game and thus made his exit as a football player of Mercer. "Crook" was selected as end on the All-S. I. A. A. team of 1925.

E. B. SMITH

Ed Smith came up from the 1923 freshman squad with the reputation of being one of the fastest men of that group. He proved this repeatedly. His most noteworthy efforts along this line were made in Atlanta against Oglethorpe. He twice outran the fleet-footed Maurer, and if you will believe us, that is some achievement. He is as hard as nails, and the passing of Smith and Ellison furnish the opportunity for which Ed has been waiting, and there is little doubt that he will surpass even the most sanguine expectations. Ed has a grin spread over his face continually, and his spirit is never daunted. Such determination is feared and respected by his opponents.

JOHN PARKS

John Parks quickly won a place on the varsity, which was to be expected after reviewing the accomplishments of 1923. John is a hard worker and a natural athlete. His elongated frame was a continual menace to opposing linemen. He was what is known as a dead sure tackler. He adapted himself readily to any position in which he was placed. He played halfback, fullback, and end with equal excellence. Due to the beauty of his labial adornments he is known affectionately to his teammates as "Lips." In line with this he always has a word or two to say as to whether the opposing team shall advance the ball or not. He has a brilliant future in all three sports.

"RED" ADAMS

"Red" Adams was a veritable terror on the frosh squad of 1922, but dropped out of school during the season of 1923. When he returned to school he dropped right into harness and made one of the most brilliant plays Coach Robinson had. This is due to the fact no doubt that he saw quite a bit of service on the varsity squad during his freshman year. "Red" is fast, shifty and one of the best interference men in the south. He is not only a very versatile man in football, but he makes a fine man of hitting the base ball. "Red's" presence on the athletic fields is invaluable. For "Red" is quite a figure on the campus, due to the congeniality of his smile.

KAY TIPTON

Kay Tipton is another member of the frosh squad of 1923 who saw his first year of service on the varsity this past season. His work on the aforementioned frosh squad indicated that he would probably land a berth on the varsity. Although his work was seldom very brilliant, it was usually steady and consistent. The absence of Ellison and Smith from the squad in the future should furnish plenty of opportunity for Tipton to get in some good work. A dislocated knee put him out of the running for a few games during the past season, but it is hoped that he will be entirely recovered from the handicap before the call is sounded for practice in 1925.

"SID" ELLISON

"Sid" Ellison is one of the old guard from Tennessee that Joshua Cody brought down with him from the mountain state. During the season of 1923 "Sid" suffered an accident to his knee which put him out of the running for that year. His comeback was magnificent. He did stellar work in the Florida game especially. A close observer of "Sid's" work for the past season would be reminded of the shades of "Coot" Lynch, that wonder utility man of Mercer football. "Sid" won for himself many laurels in many positions. His natural position is that of a flankman, but he did very good work at guard, tackle, and fullback. His forty yard run against Furman while playing fullback was one of a number of his accomplishments during the season. "Sid" is another of those who are to be but cherished landmarks in the land of memory after this year.

"KID" CECIL

"Kid" Cecil, the grand old man of Mercer football, sang his swan song on last Turkey Day. He used a tune which almost proved a dirge for Mississippi College. He is a Tennessean of whose rugged character old Andrew Jackson himself would be proud. He is a savage fighter. He never relaxes on the field of battle, but always drives his men. He is a born leader, and is always ready to push a bit too if it is needed. "Padre" as he is affectionately called, is also adept in the art of running interference. Although his many long runs have been spectacular, he has more often than not sacrificed individual honor and glory, so that he might run interference for the other man. This is one of the most admirable qualities in football, and one for which "Kid" is to be highly commended. While Cecil has played quarterback for three years, he did most of his work at half this year, in order that "Rusty" Lawrence might become accustomed to the style of play, inasmuch as he is to be called upon after the "Kid" makes his exit. However, "Kid" stepped back into his old position a number of times, just to show the bunch that he was still good.

"RUSTY" LAWRENCE

"Rusty" Lawrence furnished the solution for a very difficult problem which confronted Coach Robinson this year. Seven true men and tried were to pass out of the east with the curtain fall of 1924. The problem was to find a man who could take up the director’s part and carry on. "Rusty" who was the star quarterback of the 1923 frosh squad, was used as a nucleus around which a machine was built which it is hoped will withstand the heavy buffet that will fall to its lot when Smith, Cecil, Simmons, et al., shall have ceased to be men of Mercer. "Rusty" was a general of high calibre. He is a good man on the throwing end of a forward pass. He also developed an educated toe this season, and his field goals were many and came at opportune times.

GERALD TEASLEY

Gerald Teasley, known as the "Kid", "Baby", etc., is slight of stature, but potentially he is immense. When he first reported for practice his frosh year, the doubting Thomases were many. Coach Robinson, however, saw great possibilities in the boy and predicted that he would see quite a bit of service on the varsity before he left Mercer. "Coach" seems to know whereof he spoke, for Gerald played consistently throughout this season, and his work was never slipshod. Teasley is well liked by every member of the squad, and is popular among the boys of the campus. He is good in his literary work also. The secret of all his success is the simple formula of WORK mixed with a goodly portion of Grit and Determination.

JACK BATE

Jack Bate acquired the reputation during his freshman year of being the hardest tackler who has cavorted about the Alumni Field for quite a while. As the boys are wont to say, he "unloads" whenever the opportunity presents itself. He is of slight build, but is a hard tackler and line-plumber. Bate is the kind of man who can always be depended on to deliver. He may be called on at the "eleventh" hour, but he can always be depended on to do his best. He is rarely injured and as a splendid man for seine material. Jack is also a pupillet of note, and acquired a good bit of fame as such while on the football camp his freshman year. It is understood that he secured a good string of knockouts at that time.

"SHORTY" POORE

"Shorty" Poore is probably the biggest little man at Mercer. His best card on the football field is the ability to shift his feet and to be "where he ain’t". "Shorty" is that type of college athlete, whom coaches dream of generally in vain. He is dependable on the field of combat and has a good amount of natural ability. He does not create dissatisfaction in the ranks. He excels in his class room work and in his campus activities, having at one time been president of his class. Poore is another of those men who are to finish their athletic careers at Mercer this year. Though least in stature he is one of the greatest in value. He is to be captain of the baseball team of 1925.

DAVE RICE

Dave Rice was the subject of a vast amount of discussion among the various sport writers of the south the past season. Dave is the kind of old time fullback that asks no odds of anyone. Not only has he smashed his way into the territory of the opposing teams, but also into the hearts of his teammates and those on the campus who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. He is a born football player and comedian, and while he often combines his talents he is in a way to hearten and encourage his teammates. While he is not a Wycoff who can pass and kick and run the ends, he is as good a line smasher as the South could boast the past season. His most notable achievement was the convincing way in which he pushed the angry Florida "Gator" off into the water in the 10 to 0 game. Dave is from Tennessee and makes his farewell address with the season of 1924-25.

"SON" SAMMONS

"Son" Sammons has for four years been one of the hardest workers on any football squad. He has always been dependable and ready to do his part. "Son" himself has joked quite a bit about his end runs around the end of the bench for water, and numerous other athletic achievements, but in spite of his spirit of continual jest he has always been one of the valuables of the squad. He is the kind of fellow who always keeps his courage up no matter how grave the handicap, and that kind of fellow always succeeds. We wish to go on record as saying that "Son" has made a success of his four years at Mercer.

JIMMIE GLOVER

Jimmie Glover, a stellar light on the Frosh squad of 1923, was one of that squad who did not fail to deliver all that was expected of him. Yes, he came across with such a brilliant record for the first season on the varsity that he was mentioned on the campus as a candidate for an All-S. I. A. A. berth. He was one of the most consistent ground-gainers in the backfield this season. Although it was his line bucking that attracted attention to him while he was a member of the Frosh squad, his end runs are what have brought him his chiefest fame this past season. He is another of the boys who are not content to be just athletes. He has made a success of his class work; and was elected president of the Sophomore class of 1924-25. His future is scintillant with innumerable possibilities.
Virgil Johnson, known sometimes as the Poet, because of his long hair and flowing ties, was a member of the frosh squad of 1922. After his freshman year, he did not find it convenient to return to college, so he took up the role of globe trotter. He was working in the mines of Arizona when the impulse to return to school struck him and named him for its own. Despite this handicap, he plunged into the fray and when the whistle blew finally on Thanksgiving Day, he had acquired the right to wear the coveted "M". He is a dependable guard, and can be whipped into quite a star.

A. W. Smith

A. W. Smith, much better known as "Pie-back", is a worthy chip off the block from whence flew the mighty "Crook". He got a late start during his freshman year in 1923, but he played quite a bit. His frosh work, however, was not to be compared to the showing that he made on the varsity his first year. He is a hard worker and a very conscientious boy. He tries his level best to help the team in every way he can, and given the coach no trouble. His elongated form stood him in good stead and he has the reputation of being a vicious tackler. If his first varsity year is a fit criterion by which to judge his future, then he certainly has a bright one.

Louis Stein carries about 240 pounds into the line every time he plunges, and each pound is composed of sixteen full ounces. It was his misfortune to have such a competitor for fullback as Dave Rice, the Invincible. He also had quite a bit of trouble outside of the athletic department. Despite these handicaps he made quite a good record on the varsity for his first year. He had to drop out of school before the end of the season, but he returned to school after Christmas with an added determination and seems bent on making up for lost time. No player on the squad shows more natural ability.

"Scotty" Young

"Scotty" Young is one of the best all-round men on the Mercer campus. Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, he chose America as the spot in which to complete his education, after being dismissed from the Scotch army where he served in those kilted corps whose constituents received the suggestive name of "Ladies from Hell". He is a ministerial student, and has excelled on the athletic field, in the classroom, and in the community life of the campus. He has a natural ability to make friends and seems to keep them as well. "Scotty", who has been on the varsity squad for two years, graduates this June of 1925 and has therefore seen his last period of service on the squad. Always conscientious and reliable, he will make a success in whatever field of the work he may choose to enter.
Freshman Football

This has been Mercer's greatest year in athletics. The Freshmen, striving for a greater Mercer, developed and produced on the field a football team that has no parallel in the annals of their history. Such was the Mercer spirit instilled into the Bear Cubs by Coach "Tick" Gillam, with the results, that the orange and black cubs gained favorable comment throughout the South for their ability to put fight into the game.

In the first game of the season Locust Grove Institute received a 34-0 defeat at the hands of the green-sweatered warriors.

The Auburn Cubs were given a terrific jolt in their aspirations for an undefeated season when the Fresh varsity piled up a 27-0 score.

It was a badly injured team that traveled to pull the sting of the young Yellow Jackets, instead it was the Jackets that struck first, and the final whistle proclaimed the Tech youngsters victors by a 12-0 score.

A small band of Mercer students and alumni silently stood on the sidelines at Washington, Ga., and witnessed the fighting qualities of the Mercer spirit pitted against the spirited charges of the Georgia Bullpups. But that grim and undying spirit that the Mercerians exhibited, win or lose, against the onslaught of the tenacious Bulldog, who could not be stopped, was of no avail and the Athenians triumphed, 27-0.

After a two weeks rest the rats faced the G. M. C. Cadets. Finding suppressed energy the yearling backfield barometer flickered, stopped, and then jumped to a 40-0 victory.

The G. M. C. victory was a fitting climax to a wonderful Freshman season and too much credit cannot be given to Coach Gillam. Among the shining lights of the season must be mentioned Smith, Skelton, Smalley, Forrestor, Willis, Pierce and Butts.

Fifteen numerals were awarded: Smith, Skelton, Smalley, Neal, Bruner and Massey in the backfield; Butts, Pierce, Barney Davis, Glen Davis, Forrestor, Rogers, Herndon, Willis and Prentis Neal on the line.

JOHN G. GILBERT.
The Basketball Season of 1925

The fighting quintet which won the first S. I. A. A. Tournament for Mercer University started the season of 1925 without the services of Bobber Pope, Manly McWilliams, and the phenomenal George Harmon. However, “Bunie” Skinner, Mike Green, John Parks, Jake Dunn, and a few others from the fresh squad came nobly to the assistance of the Indoor Bears and the Mercer five got off to a good start in 1925.

Coach Gillam is really coming into his own now, and his squad is learning his style of play to perfection. Their passing so far in the season has been far above the average.

The Quintet has rapidly taken into camp Auburn, Vanderbilt, Chattanooga, Centre, Albany Y, Georgia Tech, and Camp Benning. They have lost not one southern game. This is quite an enviable record for a team to enjoy.

The basketball team took its customary northern trip, going to Chicago and the immediate vicinity for a few games, and returning by way of Louisville and Centre College. This trip was taken right after the Christmas holidays, and proved rather disastrous, since the squad had been released from practice for the entire holiday season. They managed to recover their equilibrium and win the last game played from Centre College.

At the time of going to press the southern record of the Indoor Bears was still free from stain, and the boys were looking very good as the time for the second S. I. A. A. rapidly approached. Not a single student on the campus entertained any doubt but that Mercer would win the tournament. The staging of the tournament itself, however, determined the outcome of their faith in their team.

“CROOK” SMITH

“Crook” Smith, for two consecutive years, captain of the two greatest basketball teams Mercer has had in a number of years, has been named by Morgan Blake and other prominent and eminent sports writers to be the greatest defensive basketball player the game knows today. This is a broad statement, but we think its application is entirely correct. He led the 1924 team to triumph in the S. I. A. A. Tournament, which by the way, was the first one to be held by the S. I. A. A., and he seems in a fair way to repent his performance with regard to the 1925 team. "Crook" was a very dynamic force in the defeat of Vanderbilt, Albany Y. M. C. A., and Tech. It is to be regretted that he is playing his last year with Mercer's Indoor Bears, and his work at the forward position and as running guard will be missed immensely.

"RED" SIMMONS

"Red" Simmons, sorrel-topped center on the Mercer quintet, is not yet as graceful as the well-known Grecian maidens, but his improvement has been phenomenal, and he is now as formidable a center as may be found in the South. Everyone who was fortunate enough to see the two Georgia games of the 1924 season will remember the way in which "Red" covered his man. "Red" was a shining light in the Vanderbilt and Albany Y games during the 1925 season. He is the most Bearish looking of all the Bears who rub rosin on their feet in behalf of Mercer University. However, the shining light fades slowly out with the end of the 1925 season, for "Red" has seen his many moons at Mercer and his college career must come to an end. "Red", together with George Harmon, Crook Smith and Sid Ellison, was named on the All S. I. A. A. Team of 1924.

"SID" ELLISON

Sid Ellison supplanted the memorable Manly McWilliams as standing guard on the Mercer quintet, and he has taken firm root in the hearts of Mercer supporters. He is one of the neatest and quickest guards ever to tread the floor of the local sports arena. His work in the 1924 Tournament will ever be remembered as nothing short of marvelous. Sid is worried each year in football with a bum knee, but that disability rapidly disappears around Christmas time and it cannot be detected in his basketball playing, for no one with any defect at all could get over the court as Sid does when he alone attempts to prevent five opposing men from sinking baskets. Sid is to pass out of Mercer athletics with the 1925 season.

"BUNCIE" SKINNER

"Bunzie" Skinner, christened Vernon at birth, is the highest individual scoring unit of the Indoor Bears of 1925. He has that uncanny knack of sinking baskets from any location and in positions known to a contortionist. Bunzie won most of his fame as a member of the wonder quintet of Lanier High School which went to the National Tournament in Chicago in 1923. He has ably proved that he is of the timber of which college quintets are made. He is one of the scrappiest fighters under the basket that any team in the South possesses. Bunzie is counted upon to be the mainstay in the coming tournament so far as point-getting is concerned. There is little doubt but that he will continue to shine throughout his remaining two years at college.

MALCOLM GREEN

Malcolm Green was a running mate of Bunzie Skinners on that wonder Lanier Five and they just cannot seem to separate. They played together on the frosh squad of 1924, and when "Crook" Smith went to running guard to supplant George Harmon, it fell to the lot of Mike Green to take his place at the tall forward of the Bear Five. Mike is pushing Skinner closely for high point honors. His chief source of acquiring points is through foul shots. He acquired quite a reputation in high school by shooting a hundred per cent of his foul shots in several games. His ability in this regard is marvelous. He also has two more years of eligibility for varsity participation.

J. K. DUNN

King Dunn was a sensation on the team of 1923. That was his freshman year. He made his letter easily. For various reasons he failed to return for the session of 1923-24 until about Christmas of 1923. He was ineligible for basketball participation in 1924 because of having registered at another institution. He practiced with the squad, though, and kept in good trim. This stood him in good stead through the season of 1925, and he played a role of relief man perfectly. His berth on the team is a regular one, inasmuch as he saw as much service during the season as most of the so-called regular five. His floor work is excellent and he ranks high as a defensive player, though he plays forward.
CECIL CADENHEAD

Cecil Cadenhead is one of the hardest workers on the indoor squad. He came up as a letter man of the 1924 team and continued to show good form. He hails from Zebulon, Georgia, where he was a local star of Nth magnitude. Cadenhead has really a world of natural ability and when he settles down he shows flashes of very good play. This is Cecil's last year in college and his consistency and steadiness over four years will be greatly missed.

"Kid" Cecil

"Kid" Cecil is far better known in southern sport circles as a quarterback in football than he is as a standing guard in basketball, but Coach Tink Gillam says that "Kid" is really a mighty good player. It is to be regretted that he did not see much service in basketball until his senior year. He too is a hard fighter when the opposing team gets possession of the ball in the territory under their own basket. He never fails to seize upon every opportunity to get the ball out of danger. "Kid" is a steady worker, and takes real pleasure in doing his task well.

OSCAR LONG

Oscar Long, another boy who came to Mercer from Lanier, made enviable records on the frosh squad of 1924 as well as on the Lanier High fives before he came to college. He can literally make a basketball do tricks. He is adept at the art of giving a ball "English" and many of his shots, though he plays standing guard, are due to his ability to make them take the backboard right. He is a light for college ball, but overcomes this handicap by hard fighting. He is in the law school at Mercer and it is not known just how long he will be in school. If he continues his college course many years he will certainly see quite a bit of service on the indoor aggregation.

JOHN PARKS

John Parks, a prominent member of the Richland Club at Mercer, came to college from Richland, Georgia, as has heretofore been indicated, and he came with a good record. He was a member of the frosh squads in football, basketball, and baseball in 1924, and bids fair to be a three-letter man before he leaves Mercer, and possibly before the end of this session. He is tall, well-built, and handles himself well on the floor. These characteristics naturally make him a good man to have on the squad. He will see two more years of service on the squad.
Baseball

"Hop" MORGAN

"Hop" Morgan, before his exit from Mercer this year, came to be one of the chief landmarks around the university campus. Throughout his three years of baseball he was one of the most consistent players on the team, and it was nothing but fitting that he should be chosen to lead the team of 1924 as captain. His ready smile and pleasing personality made him a natural leader, and his captaincy was certainly a success. He is a catcher de luxe and is well known over the state as such. It is claimed that he longest ball ever hit down in his home town, Ashburn, Georgia. It is alleged that the blow carried for 635 feet. We are not in a position to vouch for this, but we do know that his home run in the Dartmouth game last spring was a fair sample. "Hop" had one more year in southern baseball but conditions and circumstances prevented his returning to school. His steadiness will be sorely missed.

"Bob" SAWIN

Bob Sawin came down from the blustery North to play baseball in the South. He chose Mercer as the location of his baseball endeavors. He was at Mercer during the season of 1922 but did not return in 1923. He got an early start in the 1924 season and was a bulwark of strength throughout the season. Bob was quite a character. He had a droll wit that was always amusable to his fellow athletes. The 1924 season was Bob's Senior year and he acquitted himself well in his studies and graduated well up in his class. When one considers that Mercer really had only two pitchers for the 1924 season, one can understand a part of the task that Bob had before him in taking care of half the games on a schedule that included Dartmouth, Alabama, and Georgia.

LOUIS HAMILTON

Louis Hamilton was quite a sensation during his freshman year in 1923. He earned his first reputation as a pitcher in and around Cordele, Georgia, his home town. The 1924 season was Hamilton's sophomore year, but he was no doubt the mainstay of the pitching staff. He has a world of speed for a young pitcher and can mix quite a few hooks in with his fast balls. In the hands of a good catcher Hamilton is one of the best college pitchers in southern baseball. He has had several offers of league contracts, but has decided, and wisely we think to complete his college education before entering professional baseball. However, it is our prediction that when he does "go up" he will stick.

"Crook" SMITH

"Crook" Smith, the elongated football end and basketball center, was naturally the best selection to cover second base. He has quite a reputation as a slugging first baseman. Smith is a natural athlete, and this fact stands him in good stead in baseball as well as every other sport which he tackles. He played a fine season and was a bulwark of strength to the squad. He injected the same fight into the baseball team which characterized his efforts in other sports. His fielding was airtight and he lived up to his reputation as a clean-up man. It may be remembered that "Crook" is to play his last season of baseball for Mercer with the spring of 1925. It is the wish of all his followers that he may have the best season yet.

BOBBY PINKSTON

Bobby Pinkston is one of the newest fielding second basemen that it has been our pleasure to witness in action. Though not such a strong hitter, he is rather dependable at the bat. His greatest worth to the squad though was his fielding regularity. He can cover a good bit of territory and has an arm that is adept at the art of getting the ball away from him after he gets his hands on it. Bobby is a sophomore, and has two more seasons ahead of him. These no doubt, will be more brilliant than his first season. Bobby had a little hard luck, acquiring the mumps about the middle of the 1924 season, but he got back in the game before the end of the term.

LOUIS REESE

Louis Reese was considered somewhat of a phenomenon at shortstop during his freshman year, easily earning a letter during the season of 1923. He got away to a good start in 1924 and easily won his berth at shortstop again. His sophomore season, though not quite so good as his freshman year, was filled with flashes of brilliance. He had quite a bit of trouble settling down to his usual steadiness, but he finally found himself toward the end of the season. Reese has an offer from a league team also, and, this being his senior year, he will have a chance to try out during the approaching summer.

JIM TOM BUSH

Jim Tom Bush was easily the sensation of the infield during the 1924 season. His performances on the "hot corner" were nothing short of marvelous. His errors were scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, and this can only be properly evaluated when one remembers that almost every ball hit to third base has every attribute of a rifle bullet when it arrives in the hands of the third baseman. Jim Tom, though diminutive, wielded a heavy bat as might be evidenced from the fact that his home run in the Toronto game was the only circuit clout of the encounter, and the first of the season. Jim Tom is playing the role of a school teacher in South Georgia this year and will not return to school until the 1925-26 season.
"Shorty" Poore

"Shorty" Poore, Captain-elect of the 1925 baseball team, is well known as the diminutive left fielder of the Mercer aggregation. During Smoky Harper’s career at Mercer, Smoky, Shorty, and Harvey Sheppard divided honors with Dan Hammoek for the outfielding berths. Shorty and Shep naturally landed regular berths when Smoky and Dan made their exits. "Shorty" was one of the surest and most dependable fielders and hitters on the 1924 squad. The team exercised rare judgment when they chose him to lead them in 1925.

"Red" Lawrence

"Red" Lawrence, well-known in football circles, also won quite a place in the eyes of the fans on the baseball team. He covered the territory around the center of the outfield, and did it well. "Rusty" is also quite a hitter, and his blows during last season were exceedingly timely and were responsible for quite a few runs. "Red" was playing his first year on the varsity but he played like an old-timer, and his future is very promising. "Red" is one of the few three-letter men on the campus.

Harvey Sheppard

Harvey Sheppard was the southpaw of the 1924 aggregation. However, he pitched only a few games. His regular berth was in the right field position. He fields and hits left-handed, and when we say "hits" we mean what we say. The 1924 season was the fourth and last year of Harvey’s career on the varsity. It was by no means the least scintillant. He led the team in hitting quite a while and was always dependable at the bat. "Shep" ended his varsity career rather nobly. Mercer played Georgia two games by way of concluding the 1924 schedule. In the first game Shep bounced a ball off the score, which extends about five feet above the regular fence, for a three base hit. If the ball had been hit over any other part of the fence it would have been a four-timer. Shep was not discouraged, however, but came back the next afternoon and hit one that cleared the fence a good ten feet. It was the last home run of the season and the last hit of Shep’s baseball career at Mercer.
Last Will and Testament

Senior Class

STATE OF MERCER, BAILIWICK OF MACON.

E. the Senior Class of 1925 of the state and bailiwick aforesaid, by reason of great physical pain, mental anguish, and spiritual travail of four long years of toil, trial, and trouble, woefully weak and feeble in body and brought now in our declining days to realize that our sojourn in this Highway of Hades is almost run out, being in full possession and control of our faculties, even of exceeding sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby declare, publish, ordain and establish this, the last will and testament of us, the said Class of 1925, to-wit:

First: That part of our interest which is known in law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes of our property, being inconsiderable and of none account, we make no disposition of in this, our will. Our right to live, being but a life estate, is not at our disposal, but these things excepted, all else in the world we now possess or may hereafter acquire through purchase, love, or charity, within said state and bailiwick aforesaid, we now proceed to give, devise and bequeath.

Second: We give and bequeath to our beloved faculty a reprieve from hearing and considering our many complaints and petitions to which they have so faithfully and sympathetically given hearing from time to time, and at the same time withdraw all ungranted petitions that may be before them at the time of our departure.

Third: We give, devise and bequeath to "Dad" Aultman all our interest in Tendel Field, known as lot number nineteen, in square twenty-five, as laid down in plan of the city of Tendelville, together with all tenements, hereditaments, and appurtenances thereto belonging: Provided he uses same for the growing of food for the hungry rats in Mercer's grits factory.

Fourth: We give and bequeath jointly, to the "Sophs" and "Freshies" all boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry, and give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength. Though they are rude, we leave to them the power to make lasting friendships and lifelong companions, and to them exclusively we give all merry songs and grave choruses to sing with luscious voices.

Fifth: To the Junior Class we give, bequeath and devise, to have, hold and exercise so long as they remain at Mercer University, all our senior dignity, prestige, privileges and immunities.

Sixth: We give and bequeath to lovers their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the glittering stars and the gleaming moon of the sky, the red roses of the wall, the bloom of hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, and aught else they may desire to figure to each other the lastness and beauty of their love.

Seventh: We give and bequeath to the Mercer Sponsors, jointly and severally, memory; and pledge to them our lasting friendship.

Eighth: We give and bequeath the love for women of "Sid" Ellison to Jim Tweedy, feeling confident he will benefit by same.

Ninth: We give and bequeath the Mercer CAULDRON with all our right, interest, property—corporal and incorporeal—and all other things thereunto appertaining, to the Business Administration of Mercer University. Said legacy shall empower said legatee to the right to print, engrave, publish and sell same without hindrance or molestation.

Tenth: We give and bequeath the crown of Cecil, the Cane of Dorrough, the Derby of Snellgrove, the smile of Walker, and the sideburns of Burghard, to Dr. Holder, in order that he may become more familiar with the signs of the Zodiac so that he will know the opportune moment to lead the "Systematic Clap".

Eleventh: We give and bequeath the mustache of "Lon" Fleming to Kenneth Bray, provided he does not grow a "goatee" also.
Twelfth: We give and bequeath the frailty of Cowart and the height of Poore to Malcolm "Shorty" Green, provided it does not injure his efficiency on the basketball court.

Thirteenth: We give and bequeath the intellect of Bivins to "Goofie" Coffee, who may some day have the desire to study.

Fourteenth: We give and bequeath the ready wit of McWhorter to "Boobie" Robinson, provided he furnishes one laughable joke for his classes.

Fifteenth: We give and bequeath the ability of Bartlett to defend the Student Tribunal victims, and the massive judicial dignity of "Bill" Freeman to the aspiring Juniors, Lancaster and Cook, that justice may rule supreme.

Sixteenth: We give and bequeath all our love letters from "Louise-Anna" to our tender spiritual affinity, Prof. "Bo" Bailey, and wish him many a moonlight night with the young maidens.

Seventeenth: We give and bequeath the "basso profundo" voice of Bootle to Peyton Jacobs, feeling confident that he will extend the life of his dictaphone many years.

Eighteenth: We give and bequeath the shaggy golden mane of "Red" Simmons, the physical powers of "Crook" Smith, and the pugnacity of Jowers, to Miss Garner, that she may maintain perfect order in her classes.

Nineteenth: We give and bequeath the skillful tactics of Cantrell, and the ability to make money of Hurst to the Mercer Co-Op., feeling confident that bankruptcy thereby will be averted.

Twentieth: We give and bequeath the keen wit of W. R. Carswell, the intellectual strength of "Judge" Andrews, the powerful mastery of English and precise enunciation of "Saint" Jelks, and the meek, lamb-like disposition of "Alphabet" Thomas to Prof. "Greetings" Talmage Smalley, feeling that these additional attributes will cause his classes to over-flow with eager students.

Twenty-first: We hereby constitute and appoint Judge Wm. H. Fish our lawful and sole executor to all intents and purposes, to execute this, our last will and testament, according to the true intent and meaning of the same, hereby revoking and declaring null and void all other wills and testaments by us heretofore made.

Signed, sealed, declared, and published by the Senior Class of 1925, as its last Will and Testament, in the presence of the undersigned witnesses, who subscribe our names in the presence of the testator at his own special instance and request, and in the presence of each other.

SENIOR CLASS 1925,
THOMAS A. DYER, Testator.

Notice to Our Readers

Persisting in the belief that "The Cauldron" should be a lasting memorial rather than a temporary student expression, we wish to offer an entirely new, and somewhat radical, ending for our publication.

Instead of cluttering these latter pages with cheap, tawdry, easily-forgotten joke clippings, which are certainly not typical of student intelligence, we wish to present to our readers the sincere efforts of student-thinkers to express ideas and feelings. These literary gems (for many of them deserve that title) were collected at odd moments during the past year from men who daily walked the Mercer Campus.

To many, the publication of these ensuing articles will come as a severe shock and as a sad disappointment. We wish to warn those who seek mere jokes to direct their search elsewhere, to refer to the various humorous publications of the day. Others will, no doubt, be surprised to learn that men were walking around them, gifted with such powerful means of expression. To this latter class, the reading of these closing pages will be most enjoyable.

We sincerely trust that our venture will bring good returns, that our readers will discover some of the pleasure in reading these lines, that was ours in collecting them from the authors. Modesty on the part of the writers causes us to keep hidden the authors of the contributions.

May these last pages be ever a source of genuine pleasure, a constant reminder of the days spent upon the Campus of Mercer University.

An Arctic Tragedy

We were alone in the deep, white snowdrifts, all alone in the tiny cabin tucked away in the silent waste of ice, just we two. She had been my companion and my comforter in the dreary, cold days that weighed down upon the barren land. I could always depend upon her for radiant cheer and a warmth of friendship that is found in few human beings. I called her Betty.

But now the life was slowly ebbing from her, she was becoming cold and still. With sorrowing eyes I watched the chill creeping over her body, which was already rigid and death-like. The warmth of my Betty’s companionship was leaving me, and no more would I have her cheery presence on the blustering days when the mercury shivered at sixty below.

I would be left alone in the arctic night. Left alone for the madness of the silence to eat into my mind. Alone in the desert of snow-flakes where the solitude drives strong minds crazy and weak minds worse. Alone! Alone!

Yes, the fire was dying in my little stove, for the fuel had given out.

MISMALED.
I kissed my love, and bade her good-bye,
We decided to part forever and are;
I loved books and learning’s lore—
Over ancient volumes long would pore.

She sought the dances, social joys,
And thought men’s hearts unique toys:
‘Life’s too brief!’ she’d laugh and say,
“For you to spend with your books all day.”

True she was to the end, how’er,
Of her fathomless love I had no fear;
She rather liked my studious trend,
But Greek and dancing never blend.

And so tonight in a moment of bliss,
We bade farewell with a single kiss;
Heavy of heart, with parched, dry lips,
I turn once more to my manuscripts.

HUMPHREY H. HUMPHRIES
There dozing in the sun, ten years he sat—
Prospered with his sitting and grew fat;
Ten years, punished a stinking pipe—his yellow
Teeth, right upper canine and its fellow,
The stem so long embraced, wore to a gap
That whistled stomachically in his nap.
Ten years he sat—but now he sits no more:
His body has but followed where he went long before.

A MESSAGE:

Just a little song, dear,
To tell you I am true;
Just a little word, dear,
Of tender love for you!

Just a little thought, dear,
Every little while,
To keep your hope a-bleam, dear,
And your face a-smile!

Just a little pain, dear,
Permeates my heart,
When I think that we, dear,
Are so far apart.

Judas Iscariot

Blinded by the blood-red calves of her lips,
The woman at the tavern where we stopped,
I, who held the Master's trust and purse,
Did sell my soul, yea, to buy her for Myself, did sell my LORD.

For nought it was, but wish to lay upon
Her breasts and want and love of her sweet body,
That I conspired, for thirty pieces of silver,
To kiss His cheek, and so betray Him—that I,
In turn might kiss HER lips.

EDUCATION.

I should be studying now,
And yet I cannot begin.
For a memory clouds my brow,
And a longing wells within.

O, what care I for the Muses,
For Algebra or Greek?
This learning but confuses—
It’s love, sweetheart, I seek.

Oh, I’m glad I came to college.
And joy in the things I learned—
But the more that’s mine of knowledge,
The more for you I’ve yearned.

I've learned that learning can't suffice,
And wisdom, I construe,
Is making earth a Paradise,
And so I turned, sweetheart, to you.

I AM SICK OF THE SIGHT OF BLUE FLOWERS.
I am sick of the sight of blue flowers,
Of blue flowers, blown of the night:
Sick of the blue-black roses
And of lily cups blue-silver white.

I am sick of the pale stuff of dreaming,
Sick for the sunlight at noon,
Sick of a love that is mystic
And dressed in the stuffs of the moon.

I am sick for the red-blood of roses,
For the lily's throat yellow as gold:
And the warm pink flesh of a maiden
That the moon has not stricken cold.

WISDOM.

Let others prate of books and learning,
Of volumes large and manuscripts—
My heart is fired with a restless yearning
For clinging arms and full-blown lips.

Let others look on leaves long-faded,
And breathe the musks from pages rare—
I search for cheeks by the rose pervaded
And love the smell of fragrant hair.

Let others lounge 'midst shelves of books,
And libraries filled with ancient lore—
But give me a girl, and sunshiny nooks,
And I will ask of the world no more.

OF THE FATE OF A SONG I DREAMED.
Scarce had my hip dug its place in the bed,
Scarce had the lights grown dim.
When I dreamed of a thing I would speak with the day
And I dreamed of a song I would hymn.

I have risen and shaken the dust of the night.
My lord, the sun, to greet;
And shaken the gold of the stars from my hair
That falls to dust at my feet.

But somehow, now that the night is fled
And the light on my lip glows strong,
I cannot remember the thing that I dreamed
Nor remember the tune of my song.
"SPANISH FURY."

One Act Play by 'Clank' Burghard

(Note—It’s deep stuff. Only Spanish students need read it!)

Setting: Dr. J. Clay Walker’s class in elementary Spanish on second floor of Library Building. Dr. Walker is lecturing.

Dr. Walker: “And now, gentlemen, we do not wish to learn the language of a country without also learning something of its manners, foods and customs.”

“Goofy” Coffey: “Let’s start learning about the food first, Doctor.”

Dr. Walker: “To look at you, Senor Cafe, is to know that you are sincere in your desire for knowledge of food. So, name for me one of the principal articles of food of America and Spain.”

Coffey: “You mean in Spanish, Doctor?” (He pronounces it ‘Spawn-itch.’) “Sure, I can tell you one and give you the words from which it comes. Ahem: ‘Caliente,’ meaning ‘hot’ is added to the word meaning ‘canine,’ or ‘dog,’ which in Spanish is ‘perro.’ The two words, when hyphenated are ‘Caliente-perro,’ which is, of course, The Weiner.

Dr. Walker: “Bein’ Splendid y likewise, fine. But, one more question. What is the plural of sausage?”

Coughie (sotto voce): “What means ‘links,’ Doctor?”

THE STARS CAME HOME WITH ME.
The stars came home with me last night
Down thru the valley and over the hill:
And turned as I turned, to left or right,
And stopped when I stood still.

And once where the trees had met overhead,
I hid to find what they would do;
Then I saw, where the leaves were thinly spread,
That they were kidding, too.

But I left them all—all save the light
Of two that I gave to my dreams to keep.
That they might run with you tonight
Till you, too, went to sleep.

ROUNDDEL.
The clock ticks on, the city noises die,
The world with all its clamor is withdrawn
That silence may the darkness glorify.
The clock ticks on—

No other sound I hear, save from the lawn
Some night bird's notes—this couch on which I lie
Can give no sleep, so I await the dawn.

The soft breathing of my friend nearby
Tells of untroubled slumber, while upon
The mantel, as in answer to my sigh,
The clock ticks on.

Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary

L. R. SCARBOROUGH, D.D., President
Seminary Hill, Texas

To the Students of Mercer University:

It gives me great pleasure to call your attention to the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. It is a great place for preachers, gospel singers, S. S. and B. Y. P. U. workers, missionaries and men desiring any sort of secretarial work in the churches and Kingdom of Christ. Such workers can get what they want and what they need at the Southwestern. We have a great Baptist Spiritual atmosphere, tides of evangelism run high, a noble, scholarly faculty, health, happiness and hard work. We invite you to come to us.

Write for catalogue and further information to L. R. SCARBOROUGH, President, Seminary Hill, Texas.

OF COUNTING.
One love have I,
One and two,
And last is best
For being new.

Two loves have I,
Two and three,
And last is best,
I say for me.

Three loves have I,
And I thrive,
I will some day
Have four or five.

COMPANIONSHIP.
A swallow almost out of sight,
A speck against the blue—
With seeing that he had no fright
My heart to wonder grew.
Until I saw what set all right:
There was not one, but two.

DUSK SONG.
Come with me dreaming in the dusk,
Pricked by the lanterned fireflies' play,
While hawk-moths whirr among the flowers,
That slept all day.

Dusk is dreaming, night-moths gone,
Gone the fireflies now to rest;
Night on earth is sleeping, sleep
Thou on my breast.

VILLANELLE.

Of lovely eyes I've ceased to dream,
I sighed but once and sighed in vain,
So love no more shall be my theme.

Of wine-red lips and breasts of dream,
Of arms that lovers pray to gain,
Of lovely eyes I've ceased to dream.

Hence, am'rous thoughts, I do not deem
Your sweets as greater than your pain,
So love no more shall be my theme.

To sigh of love would ill beseeem
One who may not the fair obtain,
So love no more shall be my theme.

That day is past when I shall scheme
To know the sweets that loves contain,
Of lovely eyes I've ceased to dream,
So love no more shall be my dream.

COLORS—A TRIOLET.

My Katy's fascinating eyes,
When sparkling with some coquetry,
Are dark as Ireland's twilight skies
My Katy's fascinating eyes!

Though browner, sweeter when she cries—
Their darker moods belong to me—
My Katy's fascinating eyes,
When black with sparkling coquetry!

BALLADE OF THE BALLADE.

A pretty form of verse is this,
Born in the early days of France,
It has the sweetness of a kiss,
And, too, the sharpness of a lance;
Such grace as had Provencal dance,
Fire as was known in early Spain,
And then its beauty to enhance,
Each stanza ends with some refrain.

Three rhymes, no final word may miss,
(To curb the poet’s extravagance)
Requirements of the form insist;
For stanzas three, the poet pants
And thinks he holds us in a trance:
Eight lines to each, and then to gain
The force that repetition grants,
Each stanza ends with some refrain.

Villon and Swinburne gave such bliss
With their ballades, the Muse implants
In me desires, in hope to list
A few among my rhymes and rants.
Pray, reader, vouchsafe but a glance
To these bad lines ere my heart wane.
Then Pegasus no more will prance,
(Each stanza ends with some refrain.)

OF NIGHT FEAR.

Give me your hand. I scarce can see
The dim white outline of your face.
So hold me, as the earth is held
In night's embrace.

'Tis only thus, when night is come,
And your dear form I cannot see.
That fear, as now, that I shall lose
You, comes on me.

So now, that your dear face and form
Are hid from me by night's deep seal.
Hold me—for though I cannot see
I yet may feel.

CONVERSATION.

"Yes," said one, "I'm a student:
I'm wise, careful, invariably prudent,
I never rush to any conclusion.
For unthought hast results in confusion;
I'm never caught in the toils of passion.
I conform to the Times, to prevailing fashion.

"Yes," said one, "I'm a student."

The other replied, manifesting displeasure.
"I, too, am a student, but not of your measure.
I follow the flights of winging ideals.
The future I pierce to see what it reveals;
By passion am I rent quite often asunder.
And my heart speaks out in a voice like thunder.
Fashion I scorn if it thwarts my ambition
To develop my spirit without inhibition,
I, too," said he, "am a student."

ROAMING.
Roaming is my life-long trade.
Roaming!
For I must take the challenge made
By chaparral in sun and shade
To roaming
When I adventure from the way
While roaming
I find the chaparral astray:
Its golden flowers seem to say,
"Come roaming."
'We dare you, wanderer, to try.
Come roaming—
As long as yellow meets your eye
To roam until you've passed us by
A-roaming.'
Oh, roaming, a-roaming,
Where I most like to be,
Roaming down a grass-grown road
That wanders on for me!
If I could but roam to heaven
On my flowered hills at even,
Then I should like to end my life a-roaming.

OF RENUNCIATION.
My love for thee is as roses are
That are bound about my brow:
And the withered scent, and leaves, and thorns
Alone are left me now.
The year was young, and the roses young,
And my heart was young as they.
But the youth of the year, and the rose, and my heart.
I know have passed away.
Have passed away. And I cry to the thorns,
That I tear and throw from my brow,
"One art Thou with the year and the rose,
And my heart that is withered now!"

AN INVOCATION.
To lips upraise the tiny cup
That holds Life's liquid ray;
The liquor of life, let's drink it up.
Enjoy it while we may.
The past is laid in its sepulchre.
The future's but the vaguest blurr,
The present then let us prefer.
And drink our lives away.
We have the Now for our design.
We may not waste our draught divine.
"The flask holds but a pint of wine—
Tomorrow is today."

LAMENTATION.
I awoke eager-eyed, sweetheart,
From a vision of love last night,
And I saw your face ere it vanished
In a rosy cloud of delight.
And my heart how it ached, sweetheart,
As you passing from my yearning view—
And I lay for the whole night wishing
The dream were partially true.
But your love has withered, sweetheart.
And your lips no longer are mine—
So waking from dreams each morning
I can only sigh and repine.

LITTLE THINGS.

It is the little things that hurt the most—
The trivial that is so hard to bear—
It pains me more to think, "So she curled her hair"
Than all the staggering thought that she is lost.
I could not understand if she should say
That all she promised me was a mistake;
But I know well how fast my last hopes break
To see the vines in flower with her away.
I should go elsewhere if I had my choice
And lose her in a strange place for a while;
She mocks me here in every half-heard voice;
She springs to being in each fleeting smile—.
If I forget her, numbed by too great pain,
The little, cruel things will bring her back again.

OF LOVE IN AN HOUR.

Love me! Yes, for one scant hour—
I would forget the whips
That beat my brain to thoughts of pale tomorrow,
Upon your lips.

I ask you not who held you thus
Embraced so yesterday,
Nor whom you will hold, so, when this one hour
Is passed away.

I only ask, this moment, love.
Not faith—too like a flower;
No promise can hold fragrance—I but ask
Your lips an hour.

So give me love while this hour lasts,
Packing its sweets more tight,
For knowing what we take not now, perhaps
Shall fly with night.

TO ELIZABETH.

My olden friends I truly love
With fervent love, and fair—
But as thru aimless years I rove
New friendships would I share.

As faith's to hope, as life to breath.
So friendship is to me—
A new friend is, Elizabeth.
A joy to Emceebee.

OF AN HOUR I NOW Await.

My dreams are bitter dreams today:
Youth's things—too full of fire and pain.
I will be glad when they shall pass
And only dreams of dreams remain.

Youth's things of flame and of an hour.
And that one hour alone I wait.
When the full flame shall sink and die,
Leaving a glow within the grate.

To which I shall closer lean,
And light what little dreams I'm keeping.
And warm a soft, sweet tear that now
I cannot shed for bitter weeping.

PROGNOSTICATION.

Winter!
You are a bloat,
Big belled and fat.

Leaves, flowers and fruits:
Love, light and warmth.
You guzzled them all.

Winter!
You are a bloat,
Big belled and fat,
Just that.

But you will be thin enough by Spring,
Old thing.
Build With "Duro" Brick

The natural beauty of Duro Brick has made them extremely popular with architects, contractors and home builders throughout the South.

From "Duro" Common—our unusually beautiful common brick—to Ratite-Duro—considered by many the most beautiful face brick in America—there are five distinctive textures from which to choose.

If you are planning to build, be sure to see "Duro" before you decide on the brick to be used. It will be a pleasure to show you samples at any time.

JOSEPH ROBINSON RECEIVES NATIONAL HONOR

Mercer Professor Given Position of Importance on National Publication

Chicago, Jewlie 60.—Joseph Robinson of the English Department of Mercer University has lately accepted the position as editor-in-chief of the Whiz Bang, a humorous periodical of national renown.

The Bluster is indeed glad to note the onward march of the teachers of Mercer and the manner in which they continue to carry the beacon of achievement to heights that were never known before in the history of the institution.

Mr. Robinson has always been noted for his quaint ways of saying things and for his sparkling jokes. Never does the day pass that he does not have each of his classes in a veritable uproar over his famous witticisms. It has been said that he is the funniest man on the teaching staff of the University.

Mr. Robinson is well qualified to accept this distinctive honor and all of his friends and admirers wish him every success in his new line of endeavor. His former students also unite in the hope that he will be able to stay in the North with his new job.

As a boy Mr. Robinson was noted among his fellow-students as a provoker of mirth. At times his original sayings would so enthral the teacher that the boy Joseph would be asked to stay after school in order that the instructor might derive more delight from the pithy sayings of the young genius.

One of the old school-mates of the professor recalls the following incident which illustrates how brilliant the boy Joseph was at such an early age:

"Joseph," said his teacher, "explain to the class what is meant by elastic currency."

"Elastic currency," said the youth in his naive manner, "is made by the same company that manufactures rubber stamps."

Mercer's loss is the Whiz Bang's gain.

CHANDLER BREAKS SINGING RECORD

Parson Chandler, noted Mercer minstrel, broke a singing record yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. The event occurred in the home of Madam Octavus Eee, 020 Bed-Spring street. The record was very expensive, having been imported from the Victor record company of Smarrs, Ga., and being a reproduction of one of the most famous songs of Dr. H-Z-O Richardson, champion vocalist of the Mercer faculty.

Mrs. Eee is not very despondent over the disaster, but Dr. Richardson is in tears over the catastrophe. "It was the only one of my records that has ever been sold," he explained to his friends between sobs.

SNELLGROVE, WORLD FAMOUS CLOWN, RELATES LIFE HISTORY

By William Leonards

It was in the shadow of the huge orange and black tent of mercerized silk that Snellgrove related the story of the rise to fame that has had few equals and no superiors in the history of the circus world. Although one of the most notable characters on earth today, he still remembers the dear old days at Mercer University, and insists always that his act he performed in a mercerized silk tent of the school colors.

"My greatest inspiration was gotten from my professor of mathematics," said the great Snellgrove as he put on his million-dollar make up. "His influence was so strong that I still use several cows in my act, and this part of the performance is what has made me famous. With two milk buckets and a cow, added to the inspiration that I received from my noted teacher, I have been able to gain the top-most pinnacle of success."

YIP IS CHINA'S FIRST BILLIONAIRE

Shanglow, China.—Poon Kee Yip, noted graduate of Mercer University, is the first billionaire of the celestial kingdom. Mr. Yip has made his fortune selling diving suits to the mountaineers of the Chinese Alps.

Yip stated that he believes that his phenomenal success is due to his early association with Dr. Bagadale, one of the members of the faculty of his alma mater.

ADVERTISING IN 1925

Twenty-five years from now one will see people going down the streets of the city with advertisements on their hat-bands, on four-in-hand ties and sewed to their coat-tails like patches. Small signs worked out in brilliant silk will adorn the bathing suit of a flapper, and strikingly designed ads will grace the hat-bands of the marauding sheik.

Eye-glasses will be decorated with a small design in gold letters proclaiming to the world that "Sun-Blistered Oranges are the Best on Earth." Who knows but that even the teeth will be used as a background for fancy lettering of some description?

Beauty spots, instead of being in the shape of butterflies and birds, will be in the shape of a trademark of some manufacturing company. The highest price for such advertising will probably be charged for space on a flapper's garter on account of the value of skin. An ad of it will cost a lot of money to get that kind of space anyway.

You may see a man fall down on the sidewalk and tear his trousers. He will immediately run to the nearest advertising agency and sell them the space for an ad, or in other words, he will rent out the rent.
Afterthought

MACON, GEORGIA,
February 14, 1925.

As we now complete this Cauldron we breathe an intense and prolonged sigh of relief—not that we feel that we have finally attained our goal. The opposite is true; we are prone to review our efforts with regret. We should have done much better.

During the compilation of this volume there were periods when we were consumed with pessimism, when we felt that insuperable obstacles barred further progress. But, thanks to our many friends, both in the faculty and in the student body, and to the Senior Class as a whole, we were re-stimulated and continued with our efforts.

We offer no extenuating arguments for any imperfections that may be discovered in this book. We merely ask that a reasonable and considerate attitude be assumed by the readers. We have done the very best we could under the circumstances—and none can do more.

Remember, dear reader, that if you had been editor or business manager of this book it would necessarily have been much, much better. But, unfortunately, everyone is not endowed with your remarkable intelligence. Judge this Cauldron, then, not by your high and soaring standards, but by the lower and less presumptuous gradings of those who are manifestly your inferiors.

Yours truly,
