THE theme of this book is unique. Mercer is essentially a university for men, but woman long ago proclaimed that "man cannot live to himself alone." Man comes to college, purposing to leave light matters behind him and to burn the proverbial midnight oil over endeavors of serious concern. But man's ambitions are want to be thwarted. And the theme that runs through this book essays to portray the vicissitudes of the poor college man as woman trifles with the serious business of his college career. Woman has ever been a huntress; and her cleverness has ever kept man believing himself to be the pursuer. She chases him by making him enter into chasing her. And the college man is usually acceptable game. The sponsor, the college girl, the co-ed, the "town girl," all hear the horn and join the merry chase. And all through college the poor studious swain watches woman as she tears up his playhouse, overturns his bowl of pottage and breaks his study chair. Goldenlocks has always been with us. Mythical lore tells us that she was driven away by the BEARS whose home she daintily plundered and wrecked. But not so. She survives and will never die. She is still vitally identified with the homes of bears, men and men-bears. She still robs them of their pottage, treats their household accoutrements with capricious and destructive abandon; and yet, and yet, every one swallows hook, line and sinker and likes it. And when college days are over, he becomes suddenly aggressive, and with great sophistication takes captive a "gentle" huntress for himself. And then the poor dub flatters himself that he WON his huntress, Goldenlocks. The editors hope that this theme will in future years recall our student follies and farces; for after our swan-songs are ended, much discord lingereth on.
DEDICATION

To

JOSEPH FARRER SMITH
"PHONEY"

Who, as a nonpareil athlete and knightly sportsman, has sent the name and fame of Mercer all over America; who, as a modest, unassuming and cultured gentleman, has won the love and acclaim of faculty, alumni and fellow students alike; who, as a celebrity, has received his honors humbly and gracefully, we gratefully dedicate the

1928 CAULDRON
DR. ANDREW PHILLIP MONTAGUE
Acting President of Mercer University
Peyton Jacob, A.B., A.M.
Dean of the School of Liberal Arts

The College of Liberal Arts is designed to give the students who have the intellectual interest and mental acumen the opportunity to secure the wider general training that is essential to the more abundant social and professional leadership which should be held by college-trained men.

Benjamin Clark Holtzclaw, Jr.
A.B., B.A., and M.A. (Oxon.), Ph.D.
Dean of the Graduate School

The gifted and ambitious student seeks opportunity of engaging in endeavor requiring creative scholarships, as may be offered in a Graduate School. Graduate study makes teaching a profession; it brings science into medicine; it strengthens the pulpit; it organizes industry; it lays the foundation for invention and commercial production; it enriches literature, and it furnishes the highest opportunities for liberal culture.
Joseph Adolphus McClain, Jr., A.B., LL.B.
Dean of the Law School

The Mercer Law School is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, the standardizing agency for law schools in the United States. The American Bar Association, through its council on legal education, classifies the various schools in the United States with reference to their meeting the requisites of a standard law school. The Mercer University Law School is one of the schools adjudged by the American Bar Association as being a standard law school, and has therefore been given the "A" rating.

Charles Binch Wray,
B.B.S., C.P.A., M.C.S.
Dean of the School of Commerce

Though the School of Commerce is one of the youngest schools of the University, its growth has been rapid and consistent, due to the passing of the traditional idea that a college course must necessarily be a classical course. The general aim of the school is to train men for life; the special aim is to train for business and public service. It is an accepted reality that success in business is fundamental to our existence. All callings in life, including the professions, are more or less dependent upon the results of personal business efficiency and effort for the best performance and accomplishment of their duties and obligations.
John William Jent, A.B., A.M., Th.D., LL.D.
Dean of the School of Theology

The School of Theology is one of the oldest departments of Mercer University, because Mercer has always been a denominational school and has essayed to offer the best of training and culture to the Baptist ministry of the state. It is the policy of this school to place the proper emphasis upon cultural and broadening study rather than to restrict the minister's point of view to the narrow vistas of theological controversy and doctrines.

Welcome Talmage Smalley, A.B., A.M.
Dean of Freshmen

This deanship was instituted only two years ago. From its genesis it has been much more than nominal, for it has made possible an attractive and instructive course in orientation, and has provided for the first year students a counselor and director. The program of the Dean of Freshmen is a program designed to bring the collegiate neophytes into gradual and normal adjustment and adaptation.

POST GRADUATES

GORDON LEE BROOKS, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . . . . . . . . Barwick, Georgia

"BROOKS"
Ministerial Association; Ciceronian Literary Society; President of Ministerial Association, '24.

Brooks is a demure sort of fellow who has the wise philosophy that if a man says little, he will say little that is at error or blame-worthy. He takes himself rather seriously and apparently expects the rest of mankind to take him Likewise. But he'll be a well-rounded man, indeed, as soon as he discovers a little more of the laughable and ridiculous side of life.

THOMAS DAVID CORB, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . . . . . Tifton, Georgia

"TOM"
(See A.B. Section)

Tom is the first boy in the history of the University to take an A.B. and an M.A. at the same time. For the average boy, four years in college means one degree; for Tom, it means two. He is to be congratulated.

SEYMOUR H. HURT, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . . . . . Marion, Alabama

"SYCAMOUR"
Ministerial Association.

Seymour Hurt was dubbed "Observe More Pain" by one of his schoolmates, but the lad seems to be entirely oblivious of the ugly side of life. He doesn't look for it. Seymour has a craving for study and girls. Summer school brought the latter to the fore and retarded the former, but he is taking his M.A. this year as handily as he took his hot P.A. (hot papa, see?) last summer.
POST GRADUATES

CARLTON SYLVESTER PRICKETT, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . . Commerce, Georgia

“CARLTON”

Phi Theta; Alpha Omega (Divinity); Phi Delta Literary Society; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, ’23, ’24, ’25; President Ministerial Association, ’27; President Georgia Baptist Student Union, ’27, “Cauldron” Staff, ’25.

With the ardour and fervor of a Jonathan Edwards, Carlton has blazed his way through one degree and reaches up for another. If Carlton had as great a sense of humor as he has a sense of seriousness, he would probably be a Shakespeare in the field of religion. But degrees can’t bring that. Life will, Carlton.

ISABELLA RICHTER, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . . . Macon, Georgia

“ISABELLA”

President International Relations Club.

Women are not very much interested in watching men run the world, so they usually decide to run it themselves—and get away with it. The very name Isabella suggests some demure, highly endowed person of action. The suggestion in this instance applies. The whirling world has not found her static.

ROBERT FLEMING RICKETSON, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . Macon, Georgia

“ROBERT”

Gideonist Literary Society; Volunteers’ Band; Ministerial Association; Theological Librarian.

It’s a pleasure to know you can say anything you darn please about a fella and know he’ll take it gracefully and in good spirits. And that’s the reason that no one wants to say anything other than complimentary of Robert. With the learning of a pedant he combines the spirit of a boy. Ladies, why did the fates choose to give him big feet and a red nose?

CARL M. WHITE, A.B., M.A. . . . . . . . Shawnee, Oklahoma

“CARL”

Sigma Upsilon; Ministerial Association; Teaching Fellowship; Graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University.

Carl is known to us only as a graduate student, coming here from Oklahoma Baptist University. He is a conscientious and hard-working fellow, with plenty of delightful personality, poise and reserve. But, sad to say, he is another who should be reminded that life has as many farces and comedies as it has homilies and orisons. In his happier moments, he knows this delightfully.
MALCOLM CONE ALFRIEND, A.B.
"MAC"
Macon, Georgia
Mac has proved his philosophy of life by obtaining his degree from Mercer without a great expenditure of effort on his part. If the world treats him as kindly, Mac will never burden his mind with worries. True to his name, he is a friend of all.

JAMES MCDOWELL ALLEN, B.S.C.
"JIMMIE"
Zebulon, Georgia
Kappa Sigma; Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Ciceronian Literary Society; Pan-Hellenic Council, '24.
Jimmie once made the statement that he is not immoral, but immoral. And he sized himself up fairly accurately in that comment; for he is the sort of boy who catches the fallacies in the foolish conventions of life and who lives according to his own ideas. He has a sense of humor that makes up for what other sense he does not have; you're forced to like him, although you don't want to.

JOHN IRA BAILEY, A.B.
"JACK"
Summertown, Georgia
For five years has Jack's full and true baritone featured the Orange and Black's Glee Club, and still he yearns for more. He is to go to New York to study under an instructor who teaches musical neophytes how to adjust their voices for a trill calculated to send palms a-pounding. We eagerly anticipate the day when Jack becomes a second Werrenrath.

LINTON L. BARRETT, A.B.
"L. L."
Mount Vernon, Georgia
Phi Delta Theta; Student Professor.
With all of his non-committal demeanor, L. L. gives one the impression that there is very little going on in his upper story. And yet he is disappointed when he falls below "A" on any course; and it has seemed rather easy for him to work on the outside and make a comfortable salary while so doing. With a trifle more social intimacy he might be appreciated by his fellows.

JOHN WILLIAM BEALL, A.B.
"JOHN"
Abbeville, Georgia
Phi Theta; Delta Sigma Pi; Ciceronian Literary Society; Society Basketball, '26, '27; Class Football.
Here's what the country life of cows, chickens and the open spaces will do for one. Sweet, demure and shy as a blushing violet—except violets don't blush. Since being at Mercer John has managed to get along fine without his cows and open spaces, but he just can't exist without his chickens. We've heard that the chickens can't survive without him, either.

LAWSON FRENCH BELL, A.B.
"DING DONG"
Richland, Georgia
Kappa Alpha; Delta Theta Phi; Phi Delta Literary Society; Mercer Band; Assistant Manager Basketball, '26; Manager Freshman Basketball, '27; Manager Varsity Basketball, '28.
Shylock's pecuniary aesthetic taste is soothed by the sounds of jingling coins. He has never been a victim of any form of dissipation. This is attributed not to any virtues on his part, but to the fact that it costs too much. In his role of manager this disciple of Ben Franklin did much to reduce the financial deficit of the basketball team.

WILLIAM DEWEY BEARDEN, A.B.
"DEWEY"
Waleska, Georgia
Ciceronian Literary Society; International Relations Club; Masonic Club; Ministerial Association; President of Mercer Sunday School Class; Class Football.
Dewey "Whiskers", as his friends call him, is always immaculately groomed. He frequently cuts a class to pick out a tie to match his suit. He is the kind of a student that never allows his books to interfere with his education. Aside from his love affairs, his chief hobby is lending money to boys on the campus and then sizing them up when they fail to pay it back.

HENRY E. BILLINGHURST, A.B.
"BILLINGS"
LaGrange, Georgia
Sigma Upsilon; Phi Delta Literary Society; International Relations Club, Y. M. C. A.
Everybody hates that overworked phrase about following an "even tenor"; but none other connotes the personality of Henry quite so clearly. His semi-cynical smile at the foibles of others indicates his deep-rooted sophistication. He makes no pretensions and doesn't object to going unnoticed by the rank and file. His mind to him a kingdom is; and he isn't a bit socialist with its treasury.
LITERARY CLASS

JOHN O. BINNS, JR., A.B.
"JOHN"
Columbus, Georgia

Alpha Lambda Tau; Pan-Hellenic Council; President Pan-Hellenic Council; Presidents' Club; President Presidents' Club; Phi Delta Literary Society; International Relations Club; Class Football; Fraternity Basketball.

Ever since the morning John arose in chapel and proposed that the following day be a "Holy Day" in order that his fellow students might be freed from classes, he has been looked upon as a leader. It takes pluck, quick wits and ability to speak at inopportune times, but John has accomplished it—and cleverly.

JOSEPH R. BOBBITT, A.B.
"JOE"
Brookhaven, Mississippi

Ciceronian Literary Society; Phi Sigma Epsilon.

As a student, thinker, and reader, "Bobbitt" stands at the top. He is a real gentleman and scholar. Joe was born in Louisiana, but has been in every state east of the Mississippi river. He claims the state of Mississippi as his home—probably because of a certain co-ed at Ole Miss. His presence is always felt, and he never fails to rephrase in better words what has been said in a conversation.

BENJAMIN LEE BOND, A.B.
"RED"
Boston, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; President, Ministerial Association; Freshman Football; Varsity Football, '25.

"E Pluribus Unum." Although this relates primarily to that crown of auburn locks which he so graciously carries, "Red" belongs to the vanguard in the religious activities on the campus. By his participation in athletics, this man has shown to his fellows that some day he also will deserve to be called a "fighting parson."

TOBIAS JACKSON BRIGHT, A.B.
"JACK"
Meigs, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; "Cluster" Staff.

This man must have inspired the phrase, "Jack of all trades." Truly does the descriptive phrase fit Jack—for be it a broken-down flier, a carpenter's task, or the need of a correct answer in daily classes, Jack is ready to tackle it. He is one of Mercer's self-made men.
LITERARY CLASS

JONES BROWN, B.S.C.
"JONES"
Martin, Georgia
Delta Sigma Pi; Managing Editor "Commerce Bulletin;" Student Instructor in School of Commerce.
Because of Jones' success in the School of Commerce, Fortune will probably smile on this commercial genius. In the opinion of Dean Wray, he will easily command a salary of fifty dollars a month. Such men as Brown prove the great asset the School of Commerce is to Mercer.

WILLIAM WALTON BROWN, A.B.
"W. W."
Garfield, Georgia
Phi Delta Literary Society; Assistant Instructor in Physics, '26, '27, '28.
The poor boy has been nicknamed with all sorts of artless nomenclature—on top of the fact that he was born with a name that came from a nickname; so we'll not apply any of his ill-begotten cognomens. He is as full of wit and a desire for a jolly good time as people think a boy should be full of sobriety and hard work. He makes friends, loses them, makes more, and cares not a potato what wind blows.

LUCIEN DILLON BRYAN, B.S.C.
"LEISH"
Brooklet, Georgia
Sigma Nu; Delta Sigma Pi; Knights of Pythias; Mason.
Heed the words of this lad if you would be wise: Do not let your college education interfere with anything else which is of more importance. Lucian's admonition is explained in that he is primarily engaged with caring for "Lizzie," alias Henry Ford, which he intends to cherish and hold dear as life itself "till death do them part."

DOCTOR CHARLES BUSSELL, A.B.
"DOC"
Mystic, Georgia
Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association.
Bussell has a studied and labored personality that is so amusing that nobody thinks of disliking him for it. He is the sort of man who likes to give the impression of being a great mixer, and who never thinks of the possibility that he might mix the effort itself all up. But Bussy has a great many points that merit praise. But a man as modest as he had rather not read them of himself.
LITERARY CLASS

JAMES WALLACE BUTTS, A.B.
“WALLIE”
Milledgeville, Georgia
Pi Kappa Phi; Round Table; Football ’24, ’25, ’26, ’27; Captain Varsity Football; ’27, Baseball ’25, ’26, ’27; “M” Club; President “M” Club; Presidents’ Club.

Wallie has accomplished everything a small, unassuming chap is expected not to. He has excelled in athletics, has had honors heaped upon him, and wins a degree with high scholarship to his credit. And four years ago he came to Mercer with only a seersucker suit to his name and skin.

JAMES H. CARR, A.B.
“JIMMY”
Florence, South Carolina
Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Student Volunteers; President South Carolina Club; Presidents’ Club; President Ciceronian Literary Society.

Jimmy has seen the places where poppies grow on Flanders field, and he has looked with equal calm on the demure faces of professors where poppies of heaviness and gloom try to bloom. Jimmy brought all of his courage back from the war and carries it into the classroom with him, nor did he lose his sense of humor behind him. He is a well-rounded little chap whose dignity is as delightful as it is ridiculous.

ROBERT DAVIS CARRIN, A.B.
“DAVIS”
Tifton, Georgia
Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association.

Davis picks his friends but doesn’t pick on those unfortunate that remain without the select pale. He lives to himself alone, insomuch as it is possible for a married man to do so. He has his ideas about things, but he isn’t sure that he has solved all the world’s problems with finality. He’ll go some little distance in the world—if he’ll let the edges of his mouth move a couple of paces toward his ears.

J. FRANKLIN CAVLOR, A.B.
“SONKEY”
College Park, Georgia
Phi Delta Theta; Phi Delta Literary Society; Pan-Hellenic Council; Aemische Club; Vice-President Pan-Hellenic Council; ’27; Secretary Pan-Hellenic Council; ’27; Fraternity Basketball; Student Assistant in Chemistry; Presidents’ Club.

“Sonkey” does not hesitate to let you know that you are wrong when the occasion arises, and the effect of his method is likely to be a little disconcerting. A personality that makes and holds fast friends, however, can overcome such an unimportant defect. He thinks clearly, works consistently, and wins friends by his straightforward manner.
LITERARY CLASS

I. L. Chatfield, A.B.
"Ike"
Culloden, Georgia

Kappa Sigma.

To those who are not so well acquainted with Ike we would like to say that he is a very studious and industrious student. In addition to his regular course of study at Mercer, he also attended many classes at literary and cultural emporiums in the city. Such a student cannot be denied success.

Isaac Julian Cheves, B.S.C.
"Ike"
Montezuma, Georgia

Kappa Alpha; Phi Delta Literary Society.

After a lengthy study of Ike, Rudyard Kipling wrote his famous ballad, "A Woman Is Only a Woman, But a Good Cigar Is a Smoke." Smoking and his weakness to the appeal of food are Ike's only two faults. Faithfulness to his work and a keen mind have given him an enviable scholastic record.

Thomas David Cobb, A.B.
"Tom"
Tifton, Georgia

Tom thinks he is one of the thinking students on the campus. A profound student of philosophy, rather than an amateur philosopher himself, he has developed a philosophic attitude towards his college work. "Don't let your classroom work interfere with your college education." And Tom hasn't. One wonders how he has found time to do all the things that he has done, and one continues to wonder, for it is unanswerable. A keen sense of appreciation and a keener sense of humor will make Tom like the World.

Walton W. Cook, A.B.
"W. W."
Atlanta, Georgia

Ciceroian Literary Society; Alpha Omega (Divinity); Glee Club, '26, '27, '28; Ministerial Association.

With a quiet, unassuming attitude, and imbued with those indelible qualities that mark a gentleman, W. W. has pursued an even tenor to graduation with unfading consistency. His ideals are positive; there is little of the negative about him. His ambition is to serve humanity in his chosen field, the ministry.
LITERARY CLASS

OPHER ROBERT COOPER, A.B.
"OPH"
Bartow, Georgia

Ladies and gentlemen! Introducing you to Mercer's production of temperature. A ready smile for all—kind, affable, loving. With a marvelous bass voice, he is indispensable to the Glee Club when he reaches high C, all tenor-like. After these four years he has finally taught us to call him "O-fer." We thought "O-fer" would sound so romantic, just to match his eyes.

JOEL JAMES CORDELL, A.B.
"JOE"
Hartwell, Georgia
Phi Sigma Epsilon (Educational); Phi Delta Literary Society; "Clutter" Staff; Class Football, '25, '26, '27, '28; Class Baseball, '25, '26.

Joe came from the country, and he is one boy who is justly proud of it before reaching an age comfortably beyond the banterings of sophist parleys. He can amuse a crowd of any proportions, recounting vivid experiences that happened down on the farm. Why bring up anything about how good he is in math? Who cares about that? He probably gets his marks by keeping his teachers laughing.

JOHN M. COWART, A.B.
"JOHN"
Fairmount, Georgia
Ciceronian Literary Society; Tennis Club.

John has that innate ability to attend to his own business and to go about his quiet way leaving others to do the same. He is not given to talking a great deal, but when he does say something we find ourselves listening to him. John is persistent and is also one of those rare people who do things as they please and do them right.

FREDERICK B. DUNN, A.B.
"SLUE"
Cuthbert, Georgia

Old Lochinvar has been rather leisurely about coming out of the west but he intends to take a portion of a ram's physiognomy away with him this June. He has majored in athletics, minored in bridge (not Caesar's bridge), and made his best marks in winning the affection of all the students on the campus. The reason everybody likes him is that he don't care whether they do or not.
JOHN HOLLAN DYKES, A.B.
"DIKES"
Dothan, Alabama
Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Alabama Club; Masonic Club; Student Tribunal, '28.

Dykes is a little older than the average student on the campus, because he gave a goodly stanza of his life to a little discussion with the Huns. But he has shown a marked faculty of adaptation and has caught the spirit of falling in line with the others. He takes himself rather seriously, but he may have some secret reason for doing that no one else is able to perceive.

ELIZABETH ELLIOTT, A.B.
"BETH"
Sommerset, Kentucky
Kentucky did not have to wait till Mercer and Bossie Tift unite and become co-ed for the Blue Grass state to be represented in Georgia. Not once have we noticed such a thing as a college education interfering with this "fair co-ed." Remember, boys, this is leap year, and beware lest she count you among her souvenirs.

JUNE J. ELLIS, A.B.
"BUGS"
Macon, Georgia
Pi Kappa Phi; Sigma Upsilon; Ciceronian Literary Society; Spanish Club; Fraternity Basketball, '24, '25; Treasurer Newspaper Club, '27; Pan-Hellenic Council, '21; Editor, Winning "Cluster" Inter-Class Contest, '27; Editor-in-Chief "Cluster," '28; "Cauldron" Staff, '28; Presidents' Club, '27, '28; President, Presidents' Club, '28.

"Today's news yesterday, and tomorrow's news today" will be the slogan of this second Dana when he establishes his Cosmopolitan Outlook, which we predict will mark a new era in the history of American Journalism. He intends "to make Shakespeare's work, in comparison with his, look like Freshman themes." June, let us be office boys.

JOSEPH AUBREY ESTES, A.B.
"AUBREY"
Luthersville, Georgia
Alpha Omega (Divinity); Phi Delta Literary Society; Y. M. C. A.; Ministerial Association; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '27; Class Football, '26, '26.

When all is said and done at Commencement, and the long list of 1924's Seniors is reviewed, of no one of them can it more fittingly be said than of Aubrey Estes: "They're only truly great who are truly good." Through the thickest of the fray has he been faithful to the last, as we know he always will be.
It isn't Blossom's fault that he has so much brains and an old Franklin. It's a shame, however, the way he uses one of these possessions so much more than he calls on the other. There is either a catch of a joke or a bit of deep philosophy in whatever he utters; but be careful about your inference, because Blossom can get you told—legally and otherwise.

CHARLES R. EUBANKS, A.B., B.S.C.
"RALPH"
Macon, Georgia
Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); "Cluster" Staff; Band, '26, '27, '28; Spanish Club.

For three years Ralph hid himself in the entrance studies of the commerce school only to blossom forth in his senior year as assistant circulation manager of the "Cluster." Ralph's never-failing smile and auto, which have been inseparable from him, have been a boon to Mercerians.

WM. WALKER EVANS, A.B.
"PINKIE"
Haleyondale, Georgia
Alpha Omega (Divinity); Y. M. C. A.; Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association.

If it were not for his name on the roll and if the part he has taken in ministerial activities on the campus were not known, the physical being of Walker Evans would not be conspicuous for he is quiet, reserved and unobtrusive. But once you are in his company, you know it, so impressive are his psychic influences.

JOHN HARDEMAN FARRAR, A.B.
"JOHN"
Haddock, Georgia
"Cauldron" Staff, '27, '28.

I guess the "Cauldron" should hand John a few bouquets because he has been nice enough to sell a few ads for us, but "conscience doth make cowards of us all." He can sell ads, but he doesn't know why or how or anything else. He's dumb, but he gets away with it. With some strange magic power he sells himself to others, although there is a big tag on him marked "free."
LITERARY CLASS

ROBT. ALTA FINNEY, JR., B.S.C.
"ALTA"
Cochran, Georgia
Phil Theta; Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Logistical Society.
Finney has diligently pursued a course in the Commerce School, and stands as one of the best in that department. He is also a good "track" man. Wherever Alta goes, the commerce school is praised to the skies, and one never talks with him without learning how many "A's" he has made in that department.

ROBERT CARL FLOYD, A.B.
"FLIOD"
Macon, Georgia
Ministerial Association; Freshman Tennis Champion.
Floyd believes in himself, and he has no scruples against taking the world into his confidence about it. He does it boldly and without disguise or simulation, and mayhaps that is the reason people like him rather than dislike him for it. When he laughs, he makes sure that everybody catches the point that he is amused, for he fairly shakes the welkin. But who objects? No doubt it's healthy.

A. G. FUNDERBURK, A.B.
"FUNDIE"
Greenwood, Florida
Ciceronian Literary Society; Freshman Debating Team, '23; Class Football, '24, '25; Class Basketball, '24; Class Baseball, '24; Alumni Club, Treasurer Alabama Club.
Take everything as it comes, without grumbling, is Fundie's motto. He is the kind of fellow that makes intimate friends and confides himself to them. He is quiet, but one can feel that behind his tacit manner there is a hidden spring of wit and affability. He will be in the front ranks of whatever field he enters.

JOHN JORDAN GILBERT, A.B.
"J. GILL"
Brunswick, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Business Manager "Cauldron," '23; Ciceronian Literary Society; Round Table; Inter-Society Debater, '27; Society Day Orator, '25; Presidents' Club; Student Tribunal, '25.
He is the greatest of human paradoxes. I know; I room with him. He has the intellect of a Parnassian muse, and yet he revels in reading Western Stories. He starts his law professors with his legal acumen, and yet he never has prepared a brief or owned a set of books. He addresses a potential advertiser as though he were a little boy, and yet he gets the contract. His philosophy he says is that he "doesn't care," but he'll do anything for anybody any time.
W. COURTLAND GILBERT, A.B.
"COUNT"
Brunswick, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Ciceronian Literary Society; President Newspaper Club; Presidents' Club; "Cluster" Staff; Member Athletic Board of Control, '28; Secretary Sophomore Class; "Cauldron" Staff, '26, '27; Editor Freshman "Cluster"; '24; Editor Winning "Cluster" Inter-Class Contest, '26; Manager Class Football and Baseball, '26.
Count is the foremost linguist of the campus—that is, when it comes to lengthy forensic sessions. Since he has a keen eye and ear for all about him, he has become a semi-recognized information bureau for Mercer, and his commentaries are being gathered into a new encyclopedia.

JAMES TURNER GLOVER, B.S.C.
"JIMMIE"
Rome, Georgia
Pi Kappa Phi; Tennis Club; Vice-President of Tennis Club.
Jimmie is a bouncing epitome of super-abundant enthusiasm except when he is not feeling well, and on those occasions he had made himself famous by his famous comment, "This can't be love." He wields the English language and snappy comebacks as victoriously as he does a tennis racquet.

WILLIAM ALTON GROW, A.B.
"BILL"
Colquitt, Georgia
Sigma Nu; Phi Delta Literary Society; Masonic Club; Assistant in Chemistry, Summer School; Class Baseball, '25, '26; Fraternity Basketball, '25; Class Football, '28.
Bill read of the population of the world one day and despaired of ever coming to know everyone, so he doesn't waste much of his time trying to do a poor, haphazard job of it. He doesn't go out of his way to meet you, but when you meet him, you want to linger a while and find out what sort of humor and what sort of spirit are behind his smile and his studied reserve.

ROBERT LEE GUNNELS, B.S.C.
"BOB"
Elberton, Georgia
Phi Delta Theta; Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Phi Delta Literary Society; Round Table; Debating Team, '25, '26, '27, '28; President Sophomore Class, '24; Presidents' Club; Student Tribunal, '27, '28; Assistant Manager Football, '26; Pan-Hellenic Council, '27, '28; "Cluster" Staff, '24, '25; "Cauldron" Staff, '27; President Student Body, '25; Master Mercerian, '28.
Hush, girls! This old man can't help his shoulders being bent. They say that it was caused by his taking too many honors when he was in college. Wesleyan girls and accountants say that he is the best in the world when it comes to finding out whether figures are correct. Good luck, Bob. May that sense never fail you in time of need!

ROY WARREN HALE, A.B.

Phi Theta; Cleerean Literary Society; Freshman Inter-Society Debater, '25; Inter-Society Debater, '26; Inter-Collegiate Debater, '26, '27, '28; "Cauldron" Staff, '27, '28; Student Tribunal, '28.

If it is true that the force of one's own merit makes his way, Roy's way must be forceful, for we often see him hanging around the offices of Dean Jacob and Registrar Garrett, and occasionally pecking on a typewriter. Roy, if that is the best way you know of getting bootlicks, reserve your place for us next year.

ROSCOE MASTON HALL, A.B.
"HALL"
Blountstown, Florida
Ministerial Association.

In trying to reconcile orthodoxy with reasonable philosophy, Hall has had a merry time of it. When he has a thought it startles him into wondering whence it came and whether it will lead him. But when tempus has fugited a little more, he will begin to appreciate that almost all is vanity and that he cannot settle things definitely. College has been a wholesome stimulus for him.

PAUL R. HAMPTON, A.B.
"HAMP"
Bowling Green, Kentucky
Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Phi Delta Literary Society.

It is rumored that there is a lot of sense lurking behind these eyes, and no one has ever contradicted the rumor. At least a part of it was verified when Paul came to Mercer this year and let the rest of the world go by. So far as everybody knows, Paul has been a good little boy this year, for making his high standing in law school has kept him busy.

JESSE B. HANSON, B.S.C.
"J. B."
Carrollton, Georgia
Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Phi Delta Literary Society; Captain Sophomore Class Football, '23; Freshman Football, '22; Varsity Football Squad, '24.

If he walks through life as carefully as he attends to details and as studiably as he enunciates his words, he will always know whether he is in a briar patch or a rose garden. And that is a deal more than most men are able to do. He is the sort of man that civilization is dependent upon, a man of efficiency, detailed labor, sincerity and determination.

Virgil Vascar Harris, Jr., A.B.
"Bucky"
Monroe, Georgia

Phi Delta Theta; Sigma Epsilon; Ciceronian Literary Society; Mercer Players. '26, '27, '28; Newspaper Club. '27, '34; "Cauldron" Staff. '27; "Cluster" Staff. '24, '27, '28.

Bucky has made a good girl since he entered Mercer. Besides his impersonation of females in his dramatic club work, he cultivated his "nose for news," and at all hours of the day and night he could be seen chasing a story to its bair. One wonders if Bucky inspired the expression "little but loud."

Euman Miles Holt, A.B.
"Euman"
Fairmount, Georgia

Ciceronian Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Y. M. C. A.

A very small head he has, and what an imposition upon it to expect it to carry around all the information and lore that he has winnowed from the pages of books. He can talk spiritedly and interestingly; he is at his best in a bull session and at his worst before a crowd addressing them, when he is trying to be at his best. If he can learn how to just "hold a session" with a congregation, he'll go over big.

Julius T. Johnson, A.B.
"Julius"
Hartwell, Georgia

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Glee Club. '24, '25, '26, '27, '28; President Glee Club. '26, Glee Club Quartette. '26, '27, '28.

So this is the college man. He smokes a collegiate pipe; owns a certain plot of tile and table at "The Pharm." and is the kind who considers that the walls of his room should resemble a menagerie. He collects every conceivable species of female pictures and decks his boudoir out in a true swan-like fashion. His deep bass on the Glee Club bulls the babies into irresponsibility.

Alvah E. Joiner, A.B.
"Joiner"
Dawson, Georgia

Phi Delta Literary Society; Band. '25, '26, '27, '28.

He is as quiet as the pages of an archaic piece of literature—and as classic. He opens his mouth only on those occasions when there is something in his thoughts worthy of being aired. He seems to fear that he will say something that someone will contest or that the tread of his feet will startle into discomfiture some helpless one-celled animal of the dust. He seems to be listening for some mystic sound.

Pi Kappa Phi; Ciceronian Literary Society; Mercer Players, ’26, ’27, ’28; Secretary Mercer Players, ’27, ’28.

Wiley Mangham Jordan, A.B.
“WILEY”
Macon, Georgia

This Mercerian ran his business in the ground—he worked as an undertaker’s assistant. Besides adorning himself in sombre blue clothes, black hat and straight face, Wiley found time to throw the bull by the horns on many occasions. To cap the climax, he and his flivver have been a menace to pedestrians.

FRANK JOSSEY JORDAN, A.B.
“FOOTS”
Talbotton, Georgia

Phi Delta Theta; Vice-President Senior Class; Secretary and Treasurer Junior Class; Round Table; President Tennis Club; Intercollegiate Debater; Dramatic Club; Presidents’ Club; Student Tribunal; “Cluster” Staff; President Ciceronian Literary Society.

“Unheralded, unhonored and unsung”, Frank came to Mercer, and in his quiet manner made a place for himself in the hearts of everyone. Frank’s accomplishments are almost as numerous as his legions of friends but most of all, he is in love with tennis, journalism and—ah, yes—the ladies!
LITERARY CLASS

Fred Coleman Kendrick, A.B.
"Ken"
Elba, Alabama
President Alabama Club; Secretary Newspaper Club; "Cluster" Staff; Committeeman, Student Tribunal; Mercer Players; Presidents' Club.
When in the course of human events it became necessary for Alabama to send its representative to Mercer University, it penetrated the wide open spaces and ultimately held the little metropolis of Elba responsible for a delegation. Fred says he is going back and have half interest in the Elba Outry.

Spencer B. King, Jr., A.B.
"Spencer"
Atlanta, Georgia
Sigma Upsilon; "Cluster" Staff; Newspaper Club; Freshman Football, '23; Class Football, '25, '26; Track, '24, '25.
Leaving his endowments and his attainments aside, what greater truth could be spoken of this man, a two-in-one—a Spencer and a King, than that his "only books were women's looks, and folly's all they taught him"? We really hate to bid adieu to Spencer because there is a smoothness, a profundity, a manner about him that everyone needs to have contact with.

Tilden Burdette Lane, A.B.
"T. Burdette"
Statesboro, Georgia
Burdette has the mien of a middle-aged man who has long since learned all the cardinal lessons of life and who has become sanely conservative and practical. All this in spite of the fact that his majority was reached not so very long ago. He has a head full of sense, but has always had the feeling that it's a beastly lot of trouble to have to call on it.

John A. Lawrence, A.B.
"John"
Baxley, Georgia
Gamma Sigma Epsilon (North Carolina State); Cheersonian Literary Society; Alchemie Club; President Mercer Medical Association, '23.
Well, well, the fatted calf has returned, and we'll have to kill the prodigal son who try to rival him in chemistry. John has been away from us for three or four years, but, unlike borrowed umbrellas, was bound to come back. And we are glad, for John minds his own business and gets along fine with us. Naturally, he borrows our matches and buys us dime cigars.

JAMES SINGLETON LITTLE, B.S.C.
"JIMMY"
Tennille, Georgia
Phi Theta; Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Glee Club, ’26, ’27, ’28; Logastai; Phi Delta Literary Society; Freshman Track, ’25.

Jimmy is the type of boy to which the silver eagle is very precious. He is taking a degree from the Commerce School so as to be able "to coin the dollar" in a few years. Jimmy also sings a leading part on the Glee Club, but he contends that the music he makes with his mouth is not to be compared with the jingle of his silver.

JOHN D. MANGHAM, A.B.
"RED"
Omaha, Georgia
Ciceronian Literary Society.

Quiet and unobtrusive, Red Mangham is one of a type—the type that mind their own business. And Red’s business is making something of himself. When a man works hard, studies hard and takes life seriously, it stands to reason that he will make a success of his life. We are proud to have known Red, for he is a man, and a man to be admired.

PAUL BROADUS MOTES, A.B.
"DAD"
Leak, Georgia
Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Phi Delta Literary Society; Class Football, ’26.

The occasionally distant attitude sometimes manifested by Dad is nothing more than an expression of the modesty that comes so naturally with him. But this modesty takes an A. W. L whenever Dad encounters a fair member of the opposite sex. He inspired some College Hill rival to give utterance to the words "A lion among the ladies is a most dreadful thing."

AUBREY A. MYERS, B.S.C.
"AUBREY"
Rome, Georgia
Phi Delta Theta; Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Dramatic Club, ’25, ’26, ’27, ’28; Baseball Manager, ’27; "M" Club, President Phi Delta Literary Society, ’27, "Cauldron" Staff, ’28.

Meet Aubrey casually, and he is the acme of courtesy. Know him semi-intimately, and you wonder at times whether he is laughing with you or at you. But once break through the barrier of reserve and you see the man as he is. The visualization is pleasant. Call him a man among men and you go a long way, but by no means too far.
LITERARY CLASS

MARTHA McARTHUR, A.B.
"MARTHA"
Marks, Mississippi
Mercer's sweetheart? If Mississippi had never produced a stalk of cane, it would still be famous for adding to the nation's treasures this pretty, sweet, and refined specimen of femininity. This is the creature that has captured seven hundred hearts without a struggle. But give this dream girl a cash register, and she becomes a nightmare!

RILEY FRANK McKoy, A.B.
"SUNSHINE"
Rome, Georgia
Kappa Alpha; Phi Delta Literary Society; Mazone Club; Newspaper Club; "Cluster" Staff; "Cauldron" Staff, '25, '26, '27, '24; Mercer Players, '24; Glee Club, '24, '25, '26, '27, '28; Class Football, '28.
For four years he has been a headliner clown on the Glee Club and yet he has merited moos and at times takes himself and others seriously. He has taken unto himself a boudoir over at apartments across the way from Wesleyan Museum; he seems to be a lover of all sorts of exhibits and never thinks of the fact that he is necessarily forcing an exhibit on the fair ones at the same time.

PRENTISS NEAL, B.S.C.
"BUDD" oder "B.O.O."
Washington, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Freshman Football; Varsity Football, '25.
Always coming up to you and impressing you with the fact that he is dangerously around. But nobody minds, because everybody likes to have the pleasant pessimist around to hold the lampshade over the blinding sunshine of life. Prentiss is as brilliant about some things as he is dumb about others; and he knows a deal more than you'd ever read on that naive face of his.

AUBREY HENRY PATRICK, A.B.
"PAT"
Jackson, Georgia
Phi Theta; Phi Delta Literary Society; Class Football, '24; Summer School Baseball, '27.
Pat would like very much to be a grocer, for he seems to think there is something in the world that should make people sour. But for all that he can do to the contrary, he can't keep people from liking him. He is as charming in conversation as he tries to be contentious. We hope that he will succeed as completely as he no doubt fears he will fail.

CHARLTON L. PIERCE, A.B.
“BIT”
Milledgeville, Georgia
Alpha Lambda Tau; Ciceronian Literary Society; Junior Class Council, ’27; Freshman Football; Varsity Football, ’25, ’26, ’27; “M” Club; All-S. I. A. A. Football Team, ’26, ’27; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; President Senior Class.

Noted for Wesleyan girls, U-Drive-lts, getting ads, and logical arguments. It is rumored that he has played football. A heart like the purest of gold, a voice like the roar of Neptune, and a chronically roving nature—that’s Bit. He plans to go abroad next year, for, as Charlton L. Pierce once said, “Man is of a roving nature.” Little, loud, and dear to the hearts of his countrymen.

BROOKS OLIVER PITTMAN, A.B.
“BROOKS”
Commerce, Georgia
Kappa Sigma; Pan-Hellenic Council, ’26, ’27, ’28; (United States Military Academy, ’22, ’23); (New York University, ’23, ’24).

With a blase manner and a sophisticated looking countenance, Brooks succeeds in making the vast horde of men see him as he wants to be seen. But beneath the jaunty veneer, he is quite philanthropic and would hardly register a bit of delight over treading upon a toiling ant. He is the kind of man who isn’t worried about the world’s chances to thwart him—and he has a right to his peace.

JAMES STEWART PLOWDEN, B.S.C.
“STEWARD”
Shellman, Georgia
Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Fraternity Basketball; Pan-Hellenic Council, ’24, ’25, ’27-’28; Secretary Pan-Hellenic Council.

How did affability and reserve ever come to marry and be happy? They have, no matter how. And Stewart is the little blue heaven in which the paradoxical doves coo to one another. He takes life easily and shows no nervous desire to live a full life before he matures. Possibly he is an introvert and lives abundantly in his own mind, caring not for a whirling existence.

LINTON BUTLER RENFROE, A.B.
“REX”
Statesboro, Georgia
Phi Theta; Phi Delta Literary Society; Class Football, ’26, ’28; Class Baseball, ’27.

Ren, as the boys call him, would like to be a varsity athlete, but his diminutive stature has kept him from stepping beyond class athletic fame. He puts all he has into what he tries, and that is what counts. When not arguing about morality, Ren is in the library checking out books on deep subjects. He couldn’t possibly read them all—but the librarian numbers him among the literati anyway.
LITERARY CLASS

THOMAS G. ROGERS, B.S.C.
"TOM"
Gainesville, Georgia
Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Vice-President Junior Class, '25; Secretary and Treasurer Senior Class, '26; Round Table; Phi Delta Literary Society; Logistical.

It seems to many that Tom has been quite quiet during his career at Mercer, but he has distinguished himself for his genuineness and ability to those who really know him. He has made as enviable a record at College Hill as at Mercer. Since he hails from Gainesville, one wonders if he'll return there on missionary duty to the Brenau girls.

Elliott Mayo Rountree, A.B.
"Round"
Adrian, Georgia
Sigma Pi; Ciceronian Literary Society; Freshman Baseball Team, '24; Society Basketball, '25; All-Class Baseball Team, '25; Senior Football Team, '28.

Round seems to be quite sure at all moments that the world is going on. And that in itself seems almost to suffice his interest. Surely there has never been such another creature who delighted quite so much in the mere fact of consciousness and contacts with others. He finds a feverish joy in living and looking around; he can talk for hours at the time—and he can listen, too.

Kathryn Royal, A.B.
"Kat"
Cordele, Georgia
(Wesleyan College, '25, '26, '27).

Kathryn watched the boys stroll by The Hill for three years and then crossed the bridge and enrolled at Mercer in order to take her degree from a school that would put her on a par with—or above—the conceited boys who think Mercer is higher scholastically than Wesleyan. She has made the dumb boys in her classes look sick, and has kindly decorated the campus with her comeliness and charm.

Fred Kelley Salter, A.B.
"Fred"
Sanderson, Georgia
Phi Sigma Epsilon (Educational); Sigma Upsilon (Literary); Ciceronian Literary Society; "Cluster" Staff, '22; Winner Latin Medal, '24; Instructor in Latin, '27-'28; President's Club, '27; Rhodes Scholar Candidate from Mercer, '27; President Mercer Sunday School Class; Society Day Orator, '28.

The fact that Fred is quiet and anything but forward has kept most of the boys from properly appreciating him. He is a scholar, a thinker, and a man who does right—not because society smiles on conventional demeanor, but because he thinks out matters for himself and governs his life accordingly. No doubt he will shock into activity the thought processes of a number of undergraduates in some big university.
LITERARY CLASS

JOHN D. SALTER, A.B.
"J. D."
Johnston, South Carolina
Carolina Club; International Relations Club; President and Secretary and Treasurer Carolina Club; Vice-President International Relations Club.
Quiet, thoughtful, and studious are the adjectives which describe J. D. He has majored in history, and is obsessed with the idea that he should teach history for his life's work. He is a very versatile student and is particularly fond of bull sessions where he is always conspicuous for his timely as well as untimely jokes.

WALTER R. SALTER, B.S.C.
"six"
Bartow, Georgia
Alpha Lambda Tau; Phi Delta Literary Society; Freshman Football, '25; Varsity Football, '26, '27; Freshman Baseball, '26; Varsity Baseball, '27; Freshman Basketball, '24; Varsity Basketball, '24; "M" Club.
The need of "Six" was a good knee, but even with a cracked one he threw so much sand in the faces of would-be tacklers that the coaches thought of equipping him with mud guards. But Six is more than a great and versatile athlete. He is a hard-working student and a friend who likes to mix and have friends.

OCCIE LEON SEYMOUR, B.S.C.
"OCCIE"
Bowman, Georgia
Sigma Pi; Delta Sigma Pi; Phi Delta Literary Society.
Faces are funny studies. Some of them funnier than others. No, you're wrong. Occie is one of the best looking boys on the campus. His features do not resemble those of the classic Greeks, but Nature saw fit to place a perennial smile on his lips, in his eyes, and all shot through his manner. Obviously having one in his own mouth, he goes about offering a good taste to the palates of others.

JAMES VERETRUES SHARP, A.B.
"JIMMIE"
Macon, Georgia
Pi Kappa Phi; Tennis Team, '25, '26, '27, '28; Manager Tennis Team, '25; President Tennis Club, '27; "Cluster" Staff, '27, '28.
For his friends and admirers he is a walking dictionary and a philosophical encyclopedia of modern thought and fiction. For his playmates he is a wielder of a slicing, smashing tennis racquet. But, irrespective of the particular racquet he happens to be directing, ball or tennis, he exhibits a studied poise and a confidence that if he's wrong it's the fault of somebody else.
LITERARY CLASS

WILLIAM BRUCE SHARP, A.B.
"Bill"
Macon, Georgia

Sharp is just as sharp as is his name. He is the typical good college student, always prepared on every lesson. From all the evidence, it appears that Sharp will be a liberal and tolerant minister and, best of all, one not afraid of the truth. He is not afraid of his professors and doesn’t object to correcting the poor dears when they err in their ratiocinations.

HARRY MILTON SIPPEL, A.B.
"Sippey"
Rochester, New York
Ministerial Association.

Sippey is the smart preacher from Rochester, New York. He is broad enough in his thinking and in his choices to study for the Christian ministry (Christian Church) in a Baptist college. Sippey is of a genial nature and has a pleasant smile for everybody. Aside from his theological courses, he prefers sociology, and can be found almost any time in Professor Halley’s room.

JOSEPH FARRAR SMITH, A.B.
"Phoney"
Fayetteville, Tennessee

This entire book has been dedicated to the beloved Phoney. But these senior write-ups are supposed to jab as well as praise. Phoney is not a god; he is human—and may all the gods be praised for that. He has a multitude of delightful faults about him, without which he would be hopeless and unlikable. Phoney, keep your modesty and humility, and you’ll stiff-arm the demon-obstacles on life’s gridiron.

LAWTON A. SMITH, B.S.C.
"L. A."
Milledgeville, Georgia

Pi Kappa Alpha; Ciceronian Literary Society; Collection Manager “Cluster,” ’26-’27; Auditor “Cluster,” ’27-’28.

Lawton disappeared from the campus early in his senior year only to reappear shortly before Commencement, slightly exhausted, but with the “Cluster’s” accounts perfectly balanced. The “Caudron” nominates him for the Hall of Fame for the reason that way back yonder he must have somehow, been kin to the Smith Brothers of cough drop fame.
LITERARY CLASS

TURNER LONARD SMITH, A.B.
"rojo"
Albany, Georgia
Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Cleeronian Literary Society.
Because he preferred Albany's climate and girls to Macon's, "Red" had to finish his work by correspondence. Because he has never been tardy to a class this year, Dean Jacob has appointed him cheer leader for the correspondence school. Red is now well on his way to fame as an attorney, but it should be pointed out to him that equity does have something to do with Specific Performance.

WALTER R. SMITH, A.B.
"w. k."
Gainesville, Georgia
Phi Delta Literary Society; Ministerial Association; International Relations Club.
How dry he is, not like a textbook or desert sand, but like a blotter that eats up all the wet goody on the page of life and shows you the makings of a lot of dry wit. He is as original and quaint as he is sensitive to the worth while things that are going on about him. That drawing intonation that he uses for getting out his ideas betrays his easy and unaffected way of thinking and living.

Wm. Rayford Smith, A.B.
"willie"
Billingsley, Alabama
Alabama Club.
Not just another Smith. After all, Smiths are still individuals—the phone directories to the contrary notwithstanding. In an uncomplaining manner Willie has worked his way through school and made the school pay him a profit for coming here. The laugh is on the poor drubs who get checks from home and graduate with nothing to their credit but meaningless degrees and hopeless dilemmas.

Julius H. Spears, A.B.
"julius"
Greenville, Alabama
Ministerial Association; Cleeronian Literary Society; Alabama Club; President Volunteer Band, '27; Class Baseball, '26; Presidents' Club, '27.
Julius is the kind of conscientious young fellow who was born to lead a serious life. He laughs at some things and enjoys some occasions because others do, but he doesn't do so grudgingly after all. If he can succeed in getting the rest of the world to appreciate his point of view, he will be as cordially received as he deserves to be.
LITERARY CLASS

WM. ETHRIDGE SPINKS, A.B.
"RED"
Meridian, Mississippi
Sigma Phi; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Phi Delta Literary Society; President Phi Delta Literary Society, '27.

Red is the type of rock that can be dropped into a pool of water and hardly disturb the surface, but somehow he manages to precipitate the liquid into any sort of chemical result that he desires. He is a type-writing demon, a miracle-working salesman of Pictorials, a student who sells himself to the teachers and a retiring swain who makes the lassies believe he prefers the one he's with.

ROSCOE A. STALLINGS, A.B.
"ROSSCO"
Nashville, Georgia
Phi Delta Literary Society; Freshman Basketball Squad; '25, Class Football, '26, '28.

A physical giant is Roscoe, resembling the sculptured work we see of Greeks hurling the discus. But, alas! He is harmless. He is as bashful before a little five foot two blonde as he used to be about milking the kine. But he is death on mathematics, and some day before long he is certain to discover that woman is as unknowable as X, but equally as easy to find.

PAUL STEVENS, A.B.
"PAUL"
Preston, Georgia
Sigma Upsilon (Literary); Ciceronian Literary Society; Society Basketball, '26, '27; "Cluster" Staff.

Paul is the kind of young fellow who has thought enough in his teens to learn that it is a wise policy to count ten before speaking. He never says anything without due and ample deliberation, but when he speaks, it signifies thought that is not on the surface. He has made a great scholastic record and has a literary gift that should send him a long way in the field of journalism.

WM. JERE STEVENS, A.B.
"BILLY"
Stevens Crossing, Georgia
Phi Delta Literary Society; "Cluster" Staff, '27 '28; "Cauldron" Staff, '28; Mercer Newspaper Club; Editor of page in Christian Index; Mercer Correspondent, Atlanta Journal and Augusta Chronicle.

Known as W&B on the campus because he represents the Atlanta Journal, Bill has chronicled news stories for the Augusta Chronicle and indexed items for the Christian Index. His work on the Mercer publications has won for him a cluster of friends. And to think, some day he'll be writing us up "among others present."
LITERARY CLASS

SAMUEL RIDLEY TIPTON, A.B.
"LITTLE YIP"
Sylvester, Georgia
Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Phi Delta Literary Society; Alembic Club.

Sam, unlike most of us, never intimates to anyone that he knows anything. But he has read a little bit of everything, and all of a few things, and in the course of the inhuman events of his life he has learned more than even the College Hill girls guess. If he were as dumb as he tries to look or as uninformed as he affects being, he would fall as pitifully as he is sure to succeed gracefully.

EDWIN M. TURLINGTON, B.S.C.
"ED"
Macon, Georgia
Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial); Logistai (Honorary); Winner Logistai Key for Highest Average in Accounting; Auditor "Cluster," '27; Business Manager "Cluster," '28.

Edwin won fame when he wiped sweat from his brow after six months work on the "Cluster" accounts and announced that by virtue of careful figuring and Old Gold ads, the "Cluster" would have a banquet. He obtained additional notoriety by supporting a wife and fifteen hours' work in some miraculous manner.

DOZIER K. WALKER, A.B.
"PLUTO"
Roberta, Georgia
Phi Delta Theta; Phi Delta Literary Society; Sigma Upsilon; Y. M. C. A.

Never has Dozier been known to utter an unkind word to any member of the rat class. This characteristic remains consistent as regards his ingratiating friendliness to every member of the student body. You see, Dozier is naturally an affable sort of fellow with a delightful personality, but then, too, he likes psychology, and he has a position at Neel's.

WINGFIELD W. WALKER, A.B.
"WINK"
Eatonton, Georgia
Phi Delta Theta; Phi Alpha Delta (Legal); Sigma Upsilon; "Cluster" Staff, '26, '27; Mercer Players, '25, '26, '27, '28; President Mercer Players, '26, '27, '28; Presidents' Club, '27, '28.

Wink is a boy you instinctively like, and friendship intensifies the affection. He has his faults, but they are not legion. Barring what he is not, we do know that he is possessed of a particularly pleasing personality. He can be the life of the crowd, yet his is the humor of a well-balanced versatile man.

ROBERT S. WARE, A.B.
"BEE"
Hogansville, Georgia

President Newspaper Club, '27; Presidents' Club, '27; "Cluster" Staff, '26, '27, '28; Editor of Winning "Cluster," Inter-Class Contest, '28.

He hasn't lost an argument yet. Besides his scruples against being convinced against his will, Bee is known for his seat at the "Cluster" banquet when he was made the goat of the affair by winning the prize horse collar. His journalistic ability should provide an added feature to the columns of the New York Times.

H. A. WASDEN, A.B.
"WASDEN"
Macon, Georgia

He doesn't toot his own horn, and it is an easy inference, from observing him, that he doesn't seem to care whether it gets tooted at all. He has a delightful and inoffensive indifference about him. But possibly behind this outward mask he is as interested in life as most normal men are. If he isn't, he will be, for he's still young, and should be like an Aeolian harp on which all winds shall blow as they come and go.

HOMER TURLEY WARLICK, A.B.
"LONDON"
Fairmount, Georgia

Kappa Alpha; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Ciceronian Literary Society; Sigma Upsilon, Tennis Club; Class Baseball; Winner Mercer Tennis Tournament '27.

Some mystic atmospheric golf stream has brought the spirit of London across the seas to Turley. He is called London because most days find him in the fog. But Turley has his good points, if you don't object to looking for them. He wears a mantle of genuine modesty and shoots straight from the shoulder—whether shooting in the sunshine or in foggy weather.

EMMETT DEWITT WEEKS, A.B.
"WEEKS"
Pierceville, Georgia

Phi Sigma Epsilon (Educational); Ciceronian Literary Society; International Relations Club; Masonic Club.

If, as English students of French say, "de" means lack of, we must say that a middle name had never been more inappropriately applied than here. For Emmett DeWitt has the goods, and he delivers in his own quiet, satisfactory way. He thinks that life is one round of jokes—on the other fellow—and that heaven is a place where Joe Chappell ain't. We're for you, boy.

THOMAS W. WHALEY, B.S.C.
"whale"
Shellman, Georgia

Alpha Tau Omega; Delta Sigma Pi (Commercial).

In the opinion of Pictorial Review subscribers over the South to whom "Whale" has talked, he is going to be a doctor, lawyer and an Indian chief, for he picked his profession to suit his prospect. He has accounted for approximately 1,459 3-4 subscriptions, the fraction representing a Seventh Day Adventist who thought the world about to end, and that he would lose money on a longer contract. Well, don't forget to endow Mercer when you make that pile, Tom.

ROBERT WHIPPLE, A.B.
"bob"
Cordele, Georgia

Sigma Nu; Alpha Omega (Divinity); Cleveronian Literary Society.

All over the manner and personality of Bob Whipple there is written the fact that he comes from a cultured and cultivating home. He is a man, a mature man, and yet a wonderful boy friend. If he has ever made an enemy at Mercer, the enemy never told it. Bob has an ingratiating air about him that no one could ever object to, and which accounts for the success which rewards all his efforts. Bob knows how to prove life and to hold fast to what he finds to be good.

LESLIE S. WILLIAMS, A.B.
"Les"
Sylvania, Georgia

Phi Delta Literary Society; Ministerial Association; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet.

A great injustice has been done to Les. For four long years he has labored here, and not yet has any one put on a rapid-speaking contest. Without question he can speak more words a minute than any other human being who has ever made the goblins of the other run for cover. Everyone knows that he says some very literary and epigrammatic things, but no one has ever been able to rescue a flying gem from the hurricane.

J. RICHARD WILLIAMS, B.S.
"dick"
Selma, Alabama

Kappa Alpha.

Dick has a way with the ladies, and the ladies come his way. He has had many and varied manias with regard to styles of hair-grooming and mustaches, but he always manages to look his worst through the thick and thin of the fluctuations. But his worst is better than most folks' best. He has high ideals and a dependable character, despite the fact that he once said: "I can resist anything except temptation."
The New Law Building

Plans are under way for the erection of a building for the Law School to be ready for occupancy by the first of January, 1929. This building will be known as the Mercer Alumni Law Building, in honor of the alumni of the Law School who will provide one-half of the money necessary for the construction of the building. The other half has been provided by the Board of Trustees and a few close friends of the Law School.

The building will be located in a prominent position on the campus and will be done in the collegiate Gothic type of architecture, conforming in all respects with the other buildings around which the master plan has been built. It will be a two-story building capable of adequately housing a student body of from 175 to 200. On the first floor will be three class rooms, one of which will be equipped with furniture suitable for moot-court work. In addition there will be on this floor several offices for the full-time professors. The second floor will mainly provide for the law library, and will have a reading space capable of seating around two hundred persons, and when used as an assembly room will accommodate three hundred people. In conjunction with the library will be other offices and a smoking room, including a special room for the housing of the textbooks of the law library.

The building will, in all respects, be constructed in accordance with the modern plans for law school buildings, and will be so designed that additional units may be made in the future as the school grows and demands more space.

Do not look with covetousness in your eyes, ladies, because Jimmie is already among those who know that two can't live quite so cheaply as one. Jimmie is one of the sweetest little workers in the Law School. In fact, the whole faculty and all of his classmates have predicted a great future for him, whether he changes his brand of the "shifty weed" or not.

Of course we all feel like Dan did a very sensible thing when he left the University of Georgia and came down to Mercer to add famous diets to the archives of the Law School. He has a manner that indicates a love for leisure and easeiness, and yet his mind works with the speed of an airplane motor. He has enough ready wit and resourcefulness to make a successful lawyer in anybody's town.
Law Class

Robert H. Cranford, LL.B.
"Bob"
Sale City, Georgia

Phi Kappa Tau; Delta Theta Phi (Legal).
Bob takes himself and his work seriously, and applies himself to his task of garnering enough knowledge of law to astound jurists who have gone before him. In addition to what he gleans from the law library, Bob has an insight into human nature which we predict will make it hard for a jury to turn him down when he goes before them with a plea for acquittal.

Paul Sharp Etheridge, LL.B.
"Blossom"
Atlanta, Georgia

Pi Kappa Phi; Phi Alpha Delta (Legal); Pan-Hellenic Council; '25, '27, '28; Vice-President Pan-Hellenic; '28; Honor Bill Law School, '26; Sigma Upsilon.
Blossom was born a good student, and he has preserved the endowments of his nativity ever since he first entered the little red school house. He knows more about life and facts in general than almost any man on the campus; he is the kind of chap who can make a high mark on these psychological tests, Law hasn't been so hard for him. Nor will life be.

George Richard Ellis, LL.B.
"Dick"
Americus, Georgia

Phi Delta Theta; Phi Alpha Delta (Legal); Honor Student, Law School; '25; Spanish Club.
About half of the time George seems to be ensconced in an impenetrable armor of reserve, and the other half of the time he is as affable and as sociable as any one could ask. He is never in the least perturbed when called upon for a case, because he has poise and adaptability to back up what he knows of the law.

Augustus Felton, III, LL.B.
"Guy"
Montezuma, Georgia

Phi Delta Theta; Phi Alpha Delta (Legal); President Senior Law Class '28; Presidents' Club, '28; Emory University, '22-'23; University of Virginia, '25-'24, 24-'25.
Gus gets along with his professors as beautifully as with the girls. He has nothing of forwardness about him, and yet he can win you over to anything he desires without the slightest effort. He is of that small circle of whom it is said "he has a way about him." Gus really looks like a lawyer. It may be that he can win cases by simply standing before a jury box for a few minutes.

Deland, Florida
Sigma Pi; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Cleeremon Literary Society; Y. M. C. A.; Freshman Football, '24; Critic, Cleeremon Literary Society, '27; Inter-collegiate Debating Team, '28.

Here is the most convincing speaker who ever appeared before the Student Tribunal. He confounded the wits of Judge Joe Chappell with his subtle objections and demurrers. He has a voice that suggests that you should be still and listen; and if you will, you will hear something new and worth while. He is a man who enjoys contacts with others, but, too, he is one man who really likes to study.

CLAYTON R. GRIFFIN, LL.B.
"GRIF"
Valdosta, Georgia
Sigma Nu.
Griff has been with us only one year and we have not learned to know him nearly so well as we would like to. Griff works on the quiet. While the other fellow is touting his horn he is getting things done. He is steady, dependable, and a likable fellow, and when he goes on his journey to the bench next year there will be a host of friends to wish him well.

JAMES HAMILTON HALL, LL.B.
"HANK"
Newnan, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Phi Alpha Delta (Legal); President First Year Law Class, '26; Assistant Instructor in French, '24, '25, '26, '27, '28; Pan-Hellenic Council, '26; Presidents' Club, '26; President Dramatic Club, '25; Director Dramatic Club, '27; A.B., Mercer, '25.

As unto the sun the moon is, Hank is unto the Law School, the French department and the Dramatic Club. He has more talents than any man is supposed to have. The English professors say he should be a writer; he has already been a French scholar for years, all his friends think he should go on the stage, and he is quite sure that he should be a lawyer. What manner of man is this?

GLENN BROWN HASTY, LL.B.
"GLENN"
Marietta, Georgia
Pi Kappa Phi; Phi Alpha Delta (Legal); Vice-President First Year Law Class, '26; A.B., Mercer, '26.

His classmates have denominated him the "one-minute man," yet he is reputed to be the fastest man in Law School. In meeting classes, figuring class and individual averages in word and action, he's human lightning. He is as well versed in the chicaneries that prey human nature as he is in the codes of justice, and it takes both to make a good barrister.
LAW CLASS

WILLIAM C. MOBLEY, LL.B.
"CARLTON"
Gray, Georgia
Sigma Pi; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Phi Delta Literary Society; Round Table; Highest Average First Year Law Class, '24; Honor Roll Law School, '25; Secretary and Treasurer Junior Law Class, '27; Intercollegiate Debater, '27, '28; President Phi Delta Literary Society, '27; President Law Club, '28; Solicitor Student Tribunal, '28.

Whenever there is any heavy work to be done, the burden is placed on Carlton. His honors and achievements indicate better than words his willingness and ability to perform. As solicitor of the tribunal, he preserved law and guaranteed liberty on the campus all during the year. He believes in a court standing up for its convictions. It will be almost impossible to find some one to fill his shoes next year, literally and figuratively speaking.

WALTER O. MCGIBONY, LL.B.
"RED"
Greensboro, Georgia

Red has done the wise thing—what all lawyers should do. He has taken his A.B. degree before getting his LL.B. He has been active in extracurricular work. His first big case was getting the fraternity houses exempted from taxes. He won his case in brilliant fashion. May all of his endeavors before the bar of justice meet with the same measure of success.

FRANK S. TWITTY, LL.B.
"FRANK"
Camilla, Georgia
Alpha Tau Omega; Delta Theta Phi (Legal); Round Table; President Round Table, '28; Ciceronian Literary Society; Freshman Intercollegiate Debater, '25; Intercollegiate Debater, '26, '27; Intercollegiate Debater, '27.

Frank has cultivated his forensic gifts by giving much of his time to debating; he should be pre-eminently equipped to persuade any jury into granting his client's acquittal or judgments, irrespective of what phase of practice he decides upon. Frank is thinking of going to Chattanooga next year. The Crackers will lose a valiant and highly endowed man, but the Volunteer State will be enriched with another good volunteer.

RALPH WALDO WEST, LL.B.
"WALDO"
Macon, Georgia
Ciceronian Literary Society; Class Football, '24, '25, '26; A.B., Mercer University, '26.

Waldo believes that laboratory courses should be prescribed in all departments of education. His favorite pastime is gleaning the fine points of the law from the local courtrooms. He has long been famed for his abuse of the word that Sir Walter Raleigh first introduced into English, but so long as it aids and abets his meditations upon legal problems, no lover of justice will register an objection.

Knowledge

I've dared to roam Pierus' lower slopes;
I've seen the tempting fruits on Wisdom's tree;
In Reason's labyrinth my spirit groges—
Essays to solve enigmas that I see.

My mental manor serves as genial host
To Learning and its brilliant retinue;
Reception of each guest I may not boast,
For tempest maelstroms in my mind ensue.

But I may choose the crumbs on which I'll feast—
The nourishment that gratifies the wise—
Eluding dogmas false and every priest
Of Error. These decoys my scythe defies.

So I, with all the eagerness of youth,
Will test all doctrines—for my aim is truth.

THE RAH-RAH BOYS
The Coaches

E. PARKER MOSLEY

Ellis Parker Mosley has been athletic director for two years now. His regime has witnessed no few great athletic teams, and the crop of new material that he has brought into the freshman classes of the past two autumns has made the alumni sit up and wait for the fun. Not only has he served in the capacity of director of athletics; he has acted as head coach of the baseball team. Coach Mosley is not the type of man who tries to drive the athletes working under him. He is of a genial manner, possessed of an affable and winning personality, and his worth to Mercer's athletes may be attributed almost solely to the fact that he is a leader and not a driver of men.

COACH BERNICE H. MOORE

It would be an enviable undertaking to try to find another man in the world who throws himself into his particular field of endeavor as completely and as sincerely as does this great, big, straight-shooting man of the open spaces called Moore. When he growls, "Grab a headgear," to one of the boys on the bench, he means for him to go into the game and put a winning ingredient into the team; in his tone of voice there can be nothing detected but roughness and harshness, but those who know him testify that this big, gruff voice is directed by a tender and sympathetic heart. This is hard to believe, but it is no harder to believe than that a team under the direction of Bernice H. could lose a game.

His teams have lost more than one game; but Moore has enough wisdom to know that athletics has more than the single aim of winning contests. He injects into his men the principles of sportsmanship and manhood. He tries to develop men as well as develop teams.

MAJOR J. D. BLAIR

Major Blair came to Mercer from Lanier, where he had made a South-wide record in the way of putting out fast and winning football teams. In the fall of 1926, he coached a successful freshman team, and last fall he was promoted to the position of line coach of the varsity. He made an able and heady assistant for Coach Moore, and at times did some valuable scouting of teams on Mercer's schedule. Blair has been termed "the scholarly coach" by some, for he devotes much of his time to the class room, teaching freshmen the historical trick plays of the world's gridiron.

COACH KAY TIPTON

When Kay Tipton finished his football playing career at the end of the 1926 season, Coach Moore pronounced him the greatest guard in the South. And Coach Moore's tribute was not just a compliment to a grad; for he lost no time about signing Kay up as freshman coach for 1927. The material for building up a strong and well-balanced freshman team was not too abundant, but Kay produced the first Mercer eleven ever to leave a Georgia team on the low end of the scoring. And he sends to the varsity some fresh graduates who will materially bolster next year's team.

STIPE
The past season opened with Mercer playing the Citadel in Savannah, won by Mercer, 6 to 0. With the Citadel scalp tucked neatly beneath his belt, the Mercer Bear growled twice and decisively defeated Presbyterian College. Then came Furman, presenting one of the most formidable of Southern teams. After the first quarter, Mercer's hopes of an S. I. A. A. championship were sinking, and at the end of the half they were entirely submerged. But the Mercer eleven kept on fighting. Photoey Smith kept on scoring, and at the end of the game Mercer had made a very creditable showing.

Then came the Howard game, and the Bears went down in defeat before a very inferior team. By this time, injuries had become the rule and good condition the exception, so it is no wonder that Mercer lost the game with the University of Florida. A week of rest followed, putting the Bear team in good condition for the game of the season. Georgia had beaten some of the best teams in the country, so the crowd that accompanied the team to Athens could hardly be called cheerful. But before the game was over, the Mercer team had thrilled the spectators by keeping the ball in Georgia's territory much of the time, and Photoey Smith brought them to their feet with his 99-yard run for a touchdown. The score was 26 to 7, but there was a moral victory to be won, and that went to Mercer.

Inspired by their showing against Georgia, the Bears came back for the Home-coming game with Oglethorpe and ran roughshod over their ancient rivals to win by 29 to 7. Thanksgiving found Mercer playing Wake Forest in Asheville, N. C. This game, too, ended in victory for Mercer.
GRIDIRON PROSPECTS FOR 1928

The Bear team of 1927 could not be said to have had a highly successful season, but it would be injustice not to give credit where credit is due. The Bears fought hard at times, Hellosly at others, but right they did all through the season. But what are we to expect for 1928? That is the question. Bit Pierce gone, Butts gone, the unparalleled Phoney Smith also gone. With these men, who have been veritable mainstays of Mercer teams for the past three years, lost by graduation, what manner of team will represent Mercer in 1928? It is a matter for much thought—for much conjecturing. But to let one's imagination run wild for a few moments:

From the 1927 freshman team come three tackles who will make a strong bid for the place left vacat by the departure of Bit Pierce: Branch, Calloway, and Plunkett. Womack, substitute tackle of '27, will also make a strong bid for a varsity berth. For Phoney's position, Matt will make a strong bid. Another broken-field runner who will replace some of Phoney's missing touchdowns next year is Bill Alderman, fullback on the 1927 team. Kerr, Underwood, and others will see service at end. Newsom, Methvin, and Corbin are good backs, and should make letters next year. With so many and such prominent freshman players, and a good varsity squad returning from last year, the team should be good.
The Players

PHONEY SMITH
Mercer has never had such an athlete as Phoney Smith, and probably never again will there be a student who will bring as much fame to his Alma Mater. Around Phoney’s four years of effectively flashing through basketball, baseball, and football opposition can be woven the history of Mercer’s athletic successes for that period, and through his influence—that quiet, unassuming, magnetic influence so linked with Phoney—can be predicted the future of all sports at Mercer for another four years. For his football ability he is best known, having won South-wide recognition for scoring in fifteen straight games against opposition, which included many of the South’s best teams. He was All-Southern halfback the past year, and received many All-American selections. Phoney graduates this year, but he will always be remembered.

WALLACE BUTTS
“Wally” is another who has played his final game for the orange and black. Wallace is small of stature, but if all diminutive men were as effective as he, our wish would be that only penguins enroll at Mercer. He attracted nation-wide attention in 1925, when he outplayed Dilwig, Marquette University’s six foot ten inch All-American end. Butts was captain of the team last season and Mercer has seldom had such a plucky leader.

BIT PIERCE
Mercer coaches will have a hard time next year struggling to find a tackle to fill the place vacated by “Bit” Pierce. For four years “Bit” has been the most dependable man on the Mercer squad, playing every game. He fought when others acknowledged defeat, which is one of the many reasons why he was chosen All-S. I. A. A. tackle for the past three years.

HICKY GODBY
Hicky started the season as a guard, but Coach Moore in a moment of inspiration changed him to the end position. And he was fast developing into a valuable man when the season came to a close. Hicky has two more years at Mercer.

“SIX” SALTER
Though handicapped by a bad knee, “Six” has been a valuable man for the Mercer team all the season. For when “Six” Salter ducks his head and hits the line, something is going to happen. With his knee well, he demonstrated his ability in the Georgia encounter, being one of the most dependable men on offense, and making several nice runs.

BAGGY MALLARD
The only criticism that anyone could possibly make of Baggie Mallard’s playing is that he plays too hard. For Baggie is literally fighting all the time. He is a good man and can be depended on to grab a pass from the air if anyone can. Two more years may make him All-Southern.

ART WRIGHT
Art came to Mercer from Riverside, though his home is in Ohio. He has been called the “Flying Yank,” and it is a happy appellation, for he is outstanding in that once started and past the line of scrimmage, he may be depended on to make a long run. During several of last season’s games he was handicapped by a broken hand. But that did not mar his playing, for he was always there with the goods.

RED NIGHTENGALE
Playing his second year at varsity tackle, Red played hard all the season. A giant in size, he has enough aggressiveness for a whole team. The Oglethorpe game, which marked the home-coming of all the old grades, found Red at his best, and sports columns in the leading Southern newspapers were full of praise of the feats of “Mr. Nightengale.”

HARVEY STIPE
Harvey is another good man gleaned from the ranks of class footballers. At his first try for a varsity berth, Harvey has proved that he has strength enough, speed enough, and fight enough to play on any man’s football team.

“BUTCH” HAMMOCK
While Georgia was supposed to be running roughshod over the Bear eleven, there was one man who was creating an impression on the fans that would not be easy to forget. That man was “Butch” Hammock. He was everywhere, throwing All-Southern men aside, and even having the audacity to throw an All-American back for a loss on several occasions. And that was not the only game in which “Butch” starred. In fact, he played so consistently a game that at the end of the season he was elected captain of the 1928 eleven. Luck to you, “Butch.”

BUCK LOSER
If one may take Buck as an example, good looks do not interfere with a football player’s fight and determination. Buck played regular quarterback until his ankle was seriously hurt in the Oglethorpe game. That unlucky accident kept him out of the Georgia encounter, as well as the Wake Forest game. But we will have him back in all his glory next year.

The Daily Grind
W. A. WOMMACK

When Georgia's great backs were cutting great gaps in Mercer's line, Wommack was shown in to stop the rush. And he did so with such effectiveness that he was allowed to play the greater part of the game. He has been a good reserve tackle all the season, and should be a good man to fill the place left vacant by "Bud" Pierce.

DICK BARNES

Combine the driving qualities of a good back with the pugnacious qualities of a good lineman, and what have you? A good football player. Such a player is Dick Barnes, who can be depended on to play a good game in the backfield and an equally good game in the line. A regular berth is waiting for Dick on the 1928 team.

JIMMY MATTHEWS

Jimmy is a good little man. He has everything that makes for a good player but size. And he gloriously overcomes that deficiency by his proficiency in dodging would-be tacklers. Jimmy is one of the most popular men on the squad, cheers of encouragement arising when he catches a punt, gets a tackle, or makes a nice run, which he may be depended upon to do often.

DAN GARRETT

Dan Garrett was one of the best freshman backs that Mercer has ever had; by the success of his first year in varsity football we may judge that ere he sings his swan song to Mercer grid fans he will be recognized as one of the greatest varsity backs the school has ever produced. Besides his proficiency in carrying the ball, Dan has shown a remarkable aptitude for playing the end position.

RED ADAMS

Red had a bad knee that kept him out of most of the games at the first of the season, but when he did break into the line-up there was tough going for the opposition. He started as fullback, but later on in the season he was called to fill a guard's position, and acquitted himself nobly.

LUTHER RAY

Although Luther was playing his first year on the varsity, he acted like he was a veteran of many campaigns. His playing was consistently good throughout the season, but especially bright was his performance in the Olethorpe game. Maybe everybody didn't know of Ray's playing, but there are men in the South who can testify from experience that Luther was "there" in every game.

CLARENCE STOVALL

Stovall is a hard-working, hard-fighting end. While he did not see much service, he showed the stuff that makes football players, and he will be a valuable man on next year's squad.

BILL ALDERMAN

Bill has been hailed as the successor of Phoney, and without a doubt he shows promise of becoming a great halfback. His play was especially brilliant in the Olethorpe and Georgia games. Bill's performance was assumed to an extent eclipsed by the brilliance of his running-mate, Phoney, but as the season advanced and Bill's confidence grew, not even Phoney's brilliance could keep such a gem long hidden.

SKINNY GEAR

Skinni is rather more hefty than his name signifies. He is hefty enough to step into the breach and present a stone wall on defense, and to let his presence he felt in many ways on the offense. This is Skinny's first year on the varsity, but we guarantee that he has not been heard from for the last time.

WILBUR SMITH

Smitty showed great promise as a halfback until he broke his collarbone in a mid-season scrimmage. But he was not stopped by that handicap, for every day of practice found him in uniform. Mercer is looking for him to keep the name of Smith high in the annals of football fame and achievement. We drink to you, Smitty, as we have to the Smiths of the past.

JOE MERRITT

Joe Merritt merits our deep appreciation for the work he has done with the 1927 team. A man who fights as hard as "Butch" Hammad must have an alternate. And Joe Merritt has been that man, besides being good to step up holes at the guard position. When a line substitute was needed, Joe was ready, and experience showed that he had the goods.

RICHARD NIX

As a field general, a broken-field runner, and a kicker, the all-round playing of "Kid" Nix is only eclipsed by that of Buck Loser. Nix has made a good man to fill Loser's shoes when injuries made him unable to play.

HUGH KELLY

If it were not for such men as Hugh Kelly, Mercer would never have a football team. Though breaking into but few games, he seldom missed a practice, gladly doing his bit to help whip the varsity into shape. He was a substitute, and a good one.

DAVID CARIGLE

"Red" Carigle was one of the most versatile substitutes on the Mercer squad last year. Although playing in the backfield, he could have been shifted to any position in the line if necessary. "Red" has two more years with the Bears, and should land a varsity berth next year.
The Mercer Frosh eleven of the 1927 season was one of the best ever to represent the school. The Cubs started the season by handing the Gordon Institute team a crushing defeat, and they followed this lead all through the season. When Edwin Methvin threw a pass fifty yards to Matt, who stopped only after he had crossed the Bull Pups' goal line, it marked the first time that a Mercer football team had ever beaten a Georgia team. Then it was that the frosh team reached the pinnacle of success; but it was a sudden drop from success to defeat at the hands of the Georgia Tech team. But the frosh team came back, gloriously, defeating the Normal Institute team decisively, and holding the Oglethorpe freshman team to a seven to seven tie.
Varsity Basketeers

Phoney Smith, Captain

During the 1927-28 season, Phoney devoted himself almost entirely to breaking up his opponents' plays and passes. He has done that as well as living up to his reputation as a consistent scorer. Phoney will be missed at running guard, and it will take a remarkable player to take his place.

Clyde Carpenter

When Clyde was a freshman, it has been rumored, he was kicked off the basketball squad. That is hard for anyone to believe who saw him break up shots, guard veteran players perfectly, and continue to score every game, though he was playing the position of standing guard. When the Atlanta Athletic Club played Mercer in the Municipal Auditorium, everyone was looking for Pat Stevens to run wild, but due to the marvelous playing of this Clyde Carpenter, he didn't. Though essentially a standing guard, Clyde has played one or two games at center. And there, also, he has shown up good.

Lynwood Mallard

"Baggy" was high-point man in nearly every game of the season. His team-mates made a practice of feeding the ball to him, for he could shoot! Many times during a game, he may be seen emerging from the center of the court with players clinging to him, and shooting by the force of sheer strength. He can shoot from any position, from any angle, and he deserves a large part of the credit for Mercer's highly successful team. Two more years of Mercer athletics are in store for "Baggy," and according to all indications they should be profitable ones.
Howard Bridges

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity team was the incubator that gave to Mercer Howard Bridges, who saw much action at forward during the past season. Bridges' playing improved every game, and in the Georgetown game he reached the pinnacle of success, scoring 18 points to win the game for Mercer almost single-handed. If he continues to improve, he should be a brilliant player when the 1928-29 season rolls around.

Frank MacWilliams

Frank MacWilliams, brother of the one-time famous Mercer star, Manley MacWilliams, has succeeded in keeping the family name before the eyes of the followers of Mercer basketball teams. "Mac" has made a good alternate forward, for he keeps his head in a game and can handle a ball. Outside of Smith, he is perhaps the best floor man on the Mercer squad.

Arthur Wright

The "Flying Yank" of football fame was just as effective on the basketball court. When he was in the game, and that was a large portion of every encounter, the fight of the team was at its highest point. He was not an excellent shot, but he continually broke up the enemy's defense to feed the ball to those on the Mercer squad who seldom missed the basket.

Clarence Stovall

"Stovie" started his first year of varsity basketball at center, and in the last game of the season he was still holding that position. The first of the year found him a little unpolished in contrast with the veterans on the squad, but he proved to be a diamond in the rough. A badly sprained ankle near the close of the season failed to keep him from playing the game and playing well.
Frosh Basketeers—Southern Champions

PEGGY CAMPBELL
Peggy was an All-American high school forward when he played at Vienna last year, and it is safe to say that were there a mythical All-American freshman quintet selected, Peggy would be on it. Peggy is good, and if he continues to play as he did the past season, a great varsity career is in store for him.

BILLY DeVAUUGHN
Montezuma, the town that has given Mercer so many good men in the past, has again come forward and presented to Mercer an artist in the personage of Billy DeVauughn. Billy has made an excellent running-mate for Peggy Campbell, rivaling him in scoring honors in several games.

SAMMY SAMBERG
Sammy Samberg did not make the record at Lanier that some of his team-mates did. In fact, it was unheralded that he came to Mercer. But then quietly and quickly he began to establish a record for himself. The position of running guard on the varsity left vacant by the graduation of Phiney Smith will be filled competently by him.

BILL UNDERWOOD
"Bugger" is one of the three Lanier High graduates who became regular members of the championship Club five. At Lanier he made an enviable reputation. He was All-G. I. A. A. center for two years there, and this year with Morgan’s "Raiders," his playing was even better than it was at Lanier. "Bugger" is one of the main reasons why a great varsity team is assured for Mercer in 1929.

BREWER CORBIN
Brewer’s guarding has caused many a good team which opposed the freshmen to score less than twenty points. And he could usually be counted upon to leave his standing guard position long enough to score two or three goals for himself during every game. He also came from Lanier.
Frosh Basketeers—Southern Champions

JODY MATT

Jody has made a good first-string substitute forward for the freshmen five. He is a self-sacrificing type of player, putting all his efforts forward to gain victory for his team. Before coming to Mercer, Matt was All-G. I. A. A. forward for two years. Before leaving Mercer, he should be a leading contender for a position on the All-S. I. A. A. mythical five.

LAMAR PLUNKETT

A winning team must have good substitutes, and such a man is Plunkett. He is a good forward and an equally good guard. As have the other members of the frosh squad, he has seen plenty of action during the past season.

BOB KERR

Bob is from Fayetteville, Tenn., the home of Mercer’s best athletes. Much was expected of him by Mercer supporters, and Mercer supporters received more than they expected. He could be counted upon to substitute for any man on the squad, and the scoring would continue.

LEHMON NEWSOME

“Frog” is one of the hardest working members of the freshman squad. While class football held sway upon the campus he would direct the freshman eleven during a game in the afternoon and at night play basketball with Morgan’s “Point-a-Minute Basketeers.” He was a substitute, but could be counted upon when needed.

THOMAS TURK

Tommie came from Reynolds, a section of the state where good basketball players flourish. He is a smooth floor man and shoots with accuracy. He will be a strong contender for the varsity next year.
Mercer's Most Loyal Booster

HERE is a man in Macon who does more than sit in the stands and applaud the brilliant plays of our athletes. In season and out of season, he is toiling and planning, and co-operating with the Mercer coaches. He is more vitally interested in Mercer's athletic program than any member of the student body or any rabid alumnus.

He is the most active member of the Athletic Board of Control. He is the best friend the athletes have. He is the most sincere and energetic Mercer supporter the students know.

He has been known to get up in the middle of the night, leave his sick-bed and his illness behind him, and drive all night in order to attend a Mercer game on foreign soil.

There are some boosters who become the proverbial fanatics when the local team makes a sensational play, and then turn their thumbs down upon an unfortunate error the next moment. But this man is as loyal to a fumbling, losing Mercer team as he is when Mercer annexes a championship. There are some who get their pleasure at a game from jesting at and tormenting the visiting athletes. But this man is as sportsmanlike to our opponents as he is loyal to ourselves.

And to this man, to Herbert Smart, Mercer's most loyal booster, The Cauldron dedicates the Athletic Section of this book.

Going A-Ading

Dramatis Personae—Cobb and Gilbert (The Cauldron)

SCENE I. The Campus. Morning.
Cobb (yelling across the campus): "John, let's work on ads this afternoon."
Gil (yelling back as though he loved work): "All right, I'll meet you under the shower at 2 p.m."

SCENE II. Under the Shower. Two P.M.
Gil (delighting in the first warm water of a month): "This is the most powerful bath I've ever had. Tom, let's stay under here all afternoon. We can work on ads tomorrow."
Cobb (weakly, almost persuaded): "You're right. But, Gil, we've got to get some ads. Let's just stay here about an hour and a half."

SCENE III. At the Front of the Rialto. Two Hours Later.
Gil (eyeing the billboards): "Tom, I know the manager here. Let's go in for a minute. I've got to see him."
Cobb (tremulously): "About an ad?"
Gil: "Yes, possibly." (They go in.) . . . (They come out of the manager's office.)
Cobb (reprimandingly): "But, Gil, you didn't even mention an ad. You just told him how glad you were to see him again."
Gil (happily): "Well, but if I had mentioned an ad, maybe he wouldn't have invited us to see the show like he did. Let's go in and see William S. Hart shoot free."
Cobb (his aesthetic taste repelled): "I don't care for that moronic stuff."
Gil (leads him to a seat and holds him in it while he follows every bullet Hart sends straight for the vitals of some victim. Gil is in his heaven.)

SCENE IV. Emerging From the Rialto. Six o'clock.
Cobb: "Well, let's call on some potential advertiser."
Gil (joyfully): "Oh, it's too late now; let's go by College Hill and see the babies."
Cobb (anxiously): "But neither of us has a penny."
Gil (without a care): "Who cares about that? We'll get Dolores to set us up again."

EPILOGUE

And after this wise the Annual was put out.

Broadway Contemplates Initiation

Foster Broadway was about to be "taken in" (take it any way you wish). He knew little of even the meaning of fraternities. In fact, he had not a few misgivings about their orthodoxy, for he had heard talk of strange things. He could not talk confidentially with a prospective brother Pike. That would be foolish and tactless. But he had need of a counselor. And Bailey Davis was elected; for to Bailey Foster had oft been wont to go with his grievances, his doubts, all his troubles. And so he confided in Bailey.

"Bailey, you're a fraternity man; tell me just what an initiation is like."

"Well, don't worry about the rough stuff, Broad, old kid. Of course, I've never been in on a meetin' of your lodge, but practically all fraternal initiations are ritual for the most part. Ritual? But, Bailey, what is ritual?"

"Oh, don't be alarmed, Broad. It's not a beast that'll bite you. I'll give you an example of what I mean by the term ritual. Well—oh, well, for example, the ordinances and ceremonies of the Episcopal Church are practically altogether ritual."

"The Episcopal Church?"

"Why, yes. Why does that make you turn so white? Brace up, Broad; tell me all about it."

"Bailey, I'll just be darned if I join a fraternity. My folks have been Baptists for ten generations."

A Frosh Ballad

Oh, that which is pie for the musical guy
For the chemist is lots more fun.
He knows Boyle's law and the knows Charles' law—
That is, if Charles has one.

Yes, college's a lark for the chemistry shark,
But it's hell for the fellow like me,
Who flunks the exam, but don't give a damn
'Bout the study of chemistry.
A Meeting of the Sewing Club

CHARACTERS
Rosie Raymond
Hal Harris
Bucky Harris
Hab Casson
Hank Hall
Wynson Light
Crockett Odom

Scene—Club room of the Mercer Sewing Club. All the members have brought their sewing, their gossip, and their ladylike ways. President Casson calls meeting to order. The song of the shirt is sung.

Hal (with a cute little gesture denoting rage): "Oh, girls, doesn't it just arouse your ire? Did you know that the boys on the campus think that we are effeminate?"

Wynson: "It is rather provoking. We are so gentle in comparison with those roughnecks on the campus. Take Wink Walker, for instance."

Rosie: "Yes, and dearie, I think that Bit Pierce is probably the onlyissy person on the campus. He covers it over with gruffness of manner."

Crockett: "But I'm really sorry for bit. Why, darling, the poor thing actually doesn't know his own condition. I think we ought to do something about it."

Hank: "Girls, Wynson is growing frightfully Bolshhevistic. He got a shave three weeks ago, and he actually needs another."

Wynson (blushing shyly—ever so shyly): "I protest that I have never had a whisker."

Bucky: "I heard a frightfully crude remark the other day."

Chorus: "Do tell us!"

Bucky: "That Will Ed Smith person said that Reginald Denny is the best looking man that he has ever seen."

Wynson: "Oh, I don't think that's at all true. Hank is a far better looking man than any specimen I have ever seen."

(A freshman opens the door and steals in silently. He is espied by a member of the club.)

Hank: "Ah, a filthy little rat comes across the threshold. Look at him, dears."

(No one dares to look. Some of the clubbers jerked their skirts about, others proved more resourceful, and essayed to meet the situation by crying out hysterically, "Oh, bold Wink, come rescue us!"

The rat walked out and slammed the door. He went out into the garden and wept.

Crude Campus Cracks

Mercer's One Co-ed: "Who is the boy approaching us?"

Companion: "Phoney Smith, of course."

One Co-ed: "Ohhh! I didn't recognize him with his clothes on."

An optimist is a pre-med student who performs an experiment singing, "Yes, We Are Collegiate!"

Senator Borah has suggested that the President send the S. A. E.'s to Nicaragua to aid the marines against Sandino.

Father: "Son, you have a gravy spot on your lapel."

Son: "Father, that is not gravy. That is a Pi Kappa Phi pledge button."

Who said that men lose interest in college life after they become alumnus? Why, the Greek Letter Association of Macon gives two Spring Festivals to Mercer men every year.

"There is humor even in Chemistry," said the lab. instructor as he prepared laughing gas.

Mercer is building a gymnasium. A stupendous and majestic structure.

Gilbert: "Lady, may I take your daughter to the dance?"

Lady: "Will it be well chaperoned?"

Gil: "Yes, lady."

Lady: "Do you know that it will be well chaperoned?"

Gil: "Yes, lady."

Lady: "Are you positive that it will be well chaperoned?"

Gil: "Yes, lady."

Lady: "Then she can't go. I want my daughter to have a good time."

The women make Howard Glover step. He takes several intermissions during every date, and runs around the block—in order to keep his ardor down.

Wynson Light is the most popular little thing on the campus. Freshman tradition has it that his two romm-mates matched to see which would sleep with him the first night he was here last fall.

It was at the termination of the Sigma Nu-S. A. E. basketball game. A cab reporter approached Bob Graves and asked him who was the high point man for their team, the Sigmas. Drawing himself up to his full height, Bob replied in a justly proud tone: "I was. I got one point."

It was at the beginning of the second game of the baseball series between Georgia and Mercer, 1927. Coach Mooney called Joe Manley, patted him on the back, and implored him to go into the game and try to hold Georgia to twelve runs. He did.

If you find any "rough-riding" in this book, you may attribute it entirely to the fact that John Gilbert spends a given hour of every day reading "Western Stories."
Bridge

Broadway (in high tenor voice): “What shall we do?”

Barnes (baritone a la Richardson): “Yes, what shall we do?”

Farr (deep bass voice): “Oh, I know what we'll do.”

Gregory (in rude, uncultivated voice. He doesn't sing on Glee Club): “What is it, Pharr?”

Farr: “Let's play bridge.”

Fraternal Chairman: “Oh, let's play bridge.”

Barnes: “One spade.”

Farr: “Two hearts.”

Broadway (holding deuce and five of hearts): “I'll double you in hearts.”

Gregory: “By.”

Barnes: “Two spades.”

Farr: “Three hearts.”

Broadway: “I'll double you.”

Gregory: “One heart.”

Barnes: “Two diamonds.”

Broadway: “I'll double you.”

Farr: “But you can't do that.”

Broadway: “Like hell I can't. I've got three diamonds.”

Barnes: “But you can't double your partner.”

Broadway: “Ohhhhh!”

Hands dealt again. Broadway offers to double before hands are dealt. Fraternal curses. Broadway thrown out. Smith hits him with little red wagon.

A Modern David and Goliath Story

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Bit Pierce—A physical Atlas.

Will Ed Smith—A small and emaciated member of the intelligensia.

Scene—Room in Sherwood Hall. Bit is sitting on bed. Will Ed is leaning against a table. There is an argument in progress. Will Ed is arguing against the double standard.

Will Ed: “I'll tell you, Bit, it's foolish to expect woman to live a cleaner life than man does. The single standard is the only logical thing.”

Bit: “I don't quite agree with you.”

Will Ed: “Well, let's have your argument. I'm waiting.”

Bit: “Well, Cleopatra didn't live a clean life.”

Will Ed: “Well, what about it?”

Bit: “What about it? You'll just have to admit it.”

Will Ed: “Bit, don't be a moron. You're arguing against the single standard. I contend that woman is under a yoke that was needlessly created by man. Consequently, men do what they want to, all the while demanding purity in their prospective wives. The whole thing is unfair—grossly unfair.”

Bit: “But man is of a roving nature.”

Will Ed: “Roving hell! What has that to do with the subject? Listen, Bit, do you expect your wife to live a cleaner life than you?”

Bit: “Women travel more than they used to.”

Will Ed: “As yet, Bit, you haven't caught the drift of the whole thing. Now, what I want to know is this: Just why should woman be expected to live cleaner—to be more saintly than man? It is purely an injustice. What do you think?”

Bit: “The whole thing is contrary to the teachings of the Bible.”

Will Ed: “Now, you're improving, Bit. Just what part of the Bible are you referring to?”

Bit: “The world was created in six days.”

Will Ed: “Bit, you get worse every day. You're crude.”

Bit: “I can't see that you're so polished. You can't play football.”

Will Ed: “Aw, football adds to moronism. You just can't think.”

Bit: “The whole thing makes me mad.”

Will Ed: “Go to bed, Bit. You've got to get up early in the morning and wake me up.”

Bit: “All right, but you'll have to admit that man is of a roving nature.”

The End.
Lessons in Glee Clubbing

Lesson No. One

Proper Etiquette

Scene: Claxton Hotel, Claxton, Georgia.

Characters: Hardman Jones, the landlady, and an unidentified person.

Enter Jones, following the landlady. Jones has a book under his arm, the title of which is "Proper Etiquette—What To Do Under All Circumstances; When and How to Pick Your Teeth, and Other Important Data."

Landlady: "This is your room, sir, and the door there to your left is your bath."

Jones (tossing the book on the bed): "Thanks horribly—when do we eat?"

Landlady: "At once, merry youth, prepare yourself."

Jones: "K.O. with me, sister, toddle along and I’ll do a Lon Chaney with this razor." Exit landlady.

Jones disrobes, grabs his Gillette, and starts for the bath. He opens the door to the bath. He stops short, blushes suffusing his girlish cheeks. He hesitates a second, and then dashes for the bed; snatching up his book, he reads hurriedly. Then he rushes back to the door, throwing it wide open—Jones (with low bow): "Er—how do you do, lady—I beg your pardon?"

Scene 2. On board Glee Club car. Jones is burning up his book and sadly murmuring to himself something about not knowing the page was torn out. He finishes destroying his book, and goes on a hunt for Mrs. A. hard-nose—And thus ends this lesson.

Lesson No. Two

A Glee Club Try-Out

Scene: Y. M. C. A. building (freshmen, upper classmen, and tenors sitting around for atmosphere and try-outs).

Dr. Richardson: "What do you want to try out for, young man?"

Freshman (meekly): "I’d like to sing soprano, I think."

Dr. Richardson: "You mean tenor, sir; we have no ladies on this club." (Aside: "Hide Crockett behind the piano.")

Freshman: "Yeah—er—I mean, yes, sir, tenor it is—I almost forgot."

The lad is now singing in the deepest bass section of the chorus—and thus ends this lesson.

Lesson No. Three

Boys and Pigs Will Be Hogs

Scene: Somewhere near Tallahassee, Florida, Quincy, Florida—or maybe Quitman, Georgia—in front of a farm house with a barbed wire fence in front.

Characters: One hard-headed farmer, four Mercer singers, and a pig.

Note: The boys had been trying to catch a pig all day, as they were traveling in a bus this time instead of a train.

First Singer: "Honest, Cap, we got to have a pig. We are a traveling show, and have been having a trained pig in one of the acts, but ‘Snookie’ died on us this morning, and we’ve got to have one quick!"

Farmer: "Sorry, lad, but I can’t give one away like you want it—I’ll let you have one, but you gotta pay fer him. And he eat tobacco about twenty feet.

First Singer: "But, Cap, the sheriff said you would treat us right about it."

Farmer: "What sheriff? He’s been dead three weeks."

First Singer: "You got me that time, Cap, but if you will treat us reasonable, why when we get the pig on big time we will give you the credit for raising him."

Farmer: "I don’t want no credit—I want cash!"

First Singer: "Look here, Cap, here’s one that isn’t gonna ever grow up—and he’s the very living image of ‘Snookie’—we must have this one."

Farmer: "Naw, let me sell you a good one."

First Singer: "I insist—he looks like ‘Snookie’ for the world—we must have him!"

Farmer: "All right, it’s your funeral—take him, but give me four dollars."

First Singer: "Exit the boys with the pig, and minus four dollars. They simply had to buy him, don’t you know, for he looked like poor dead ‘Snookie’ for the world—the only drawback was that there was never any such a pig as ‘Snookie’. The Glee Club now has a pig for the first time. The pig is named ‘Sprout’. The boys were a hog for punishment. The pig will soon cease to be a pig. The pig will soon be a hog—and thus ends this lesson. Thus ends all these lessons. Praise Allah!"

THE VALUE OF AN ADVISER

(A Tragedy in One Act)

Scene I. (The first floor of the Administration building, on which several scores of perplexing nobodies are trying to discover some clue to the dark mystery: REGISTRATION. Accidents are in order. Collisions are the rule, and escapes the exception—so dense and widespread is the cloud of fog that, by degrees, has exuded from the right nostril of the new students. The heads come to judgment. Pandemonium has the scepter, and brings to mind that psychoanalytic war."

A heightened FIRST YEAR "MAN" enters the hall of famed and famed advisers, his effulent beak nestled cozily in the well-known London film. He encounters the Commander-in-Chief of the Royal Army of Advisers.

Fresh: . . . Teacher, where do I go from here?

Dr. Harrison (insulted at the title): What's that? Where do you go? Why, where did you come from?

Fresh (astonishingly well-read—in "Two Black Crowe"): Probably you shouldn't have mentioned that.

Dr. Harrison (sensing genius and originality): Ah, young man, I see that you are a thinker. Your next step in the matter of registration is acquiring an adviser. Since you are so promising, may I ask for the privilege of serving as your adviser?

Fresh (his halo contracting upon his brow): Er, what is that? Oh, yes, you can name; of course, we'll be glad to have you do it. My room is 130 Sherwood Hall.

Dr. Harrison: Now, young man, I simply mean that I am discussing the possibility of you taking a course in Philosophy.

Fresh: (intrigued): But what does a freshman want with the courses a Ph.D. is interested in?

Dr. Harrison: My boy, the day will come when you will thank me. You know you have as much judgment as his elders.

Fresh: Of course, you're right, Doctor. Naturally, you would know the course any boy should take better than he. A sophomore told me that a freshman wasn't supposed to think. I guess this system of yours was what he referred to.

Dr. Harrison: Well, let's get started. What is some course you have in mind?

Fresh (looking at Ingersoll): Turnip Salad.

Dr. Harrison: You are now a man; put away childish things. What course will you like to take?

Fresh: Well, I have always liked Latin.

Dr. Harrison: My boy, I notice that you are studying Commerce. Now, there are several reasons why you should not take Latin.

Fresh: All right, anything you say, I'm willing to depend on your judgment.

Dr. Harrison: Let me explain. Now, Latin is classical and is not at all essential to the professional business man. It is fine to know the bitter excrescences that Clinton breathed into the face of Cataline, but it is better for you to knock the soft answers with which Wall Street turns away the wrath of Henry Ford. Now, you ought to study Spanish, because I read that South America is the great field that is opening up for the business man of your generation that is to be, and Spanish is the prevalent language of South America. Besides, Latin will take long hours of your time that you should devote to visiting banks and offices, studying the human nature of business men as well as technical methods.

Fresh: All right, Doctor. I'll take anything you say. Your superior judgment—

Dr. Harrison: Just a minute. I'm not through. The adviser must be thorough; or his usefulness is lost. Latin is a dead language, especially in the practical field: the university is the school for you. If you should say "luna est pullchra" to the head of a corporation, he would say, "You're another"; and the next day, you'd be fired.

Fresh: (long and thoughtful): Sir, Now, what would you advise me to take?

Dr. Harrison: Well, a young man, after thinking it over carefully, I believe I'll put you down for Latin. Next man, this way.

Fresh (disappearing in the fog): Thanks. Such judgment must be deserved. Exit.

THE VALUE OF AN ADVISER

Many treatises have been written on the value of an adviser, but it is no slacker lacking in all of them. In order that I might express the sentiments of the fresh from time to time I have a few of the various freshmen the question: "What has Cobb meant to you?"—and they have answered me in all sincerity, "Sir, my adviser has taught us the art of hobbing to Bessie Tiff and keeping various girls on the string at one time!"

Another spoke of the fact that learning to come to the freshman classes was an education and tended to enlarge one's vocabulary. A third of them that Cobb was quite the proper thing to have; but in order that the outside world may understand, and hence appreciate his value, I think it well to give a concrete example of his worth at this point in my thesis.

The freshmen had selected their leader for the Freshman-Sophomore Rush, and this young aspirant lacking in all of University and—yes, world fame, had come to the room occupied by Mr. Thomas D. Cobb, FRESHMAN ADVISER, for the express purpose of communicating with Mr. Cobb, and by combining the genius of Cobb with his and his classmates' brawn, to work out a plan of attack which shall sweep the Sophs off their feet and place the Sophomore colors safe in the hands of the freshmen. (A timid knock on the door, for which would not be timid when about to confront the mighty Cobb.)

Cobb—"Tell your reverence to my place of abode. Fresh enters, looks nervously about the room, starts to speak but hesitates.

Cobb—(Your presence reassures me. I am formulating a plan, by means of which the first year men may overran the Sophomores. My mind is literally burdened with ideas, but please me you expound your theories concerning a prospective plan of attack.)

Fresh—(Presuming that we might grease our men with lard from the waist up. Then, we could hold out ten men for a minute or two. When the Sophomores begin to tire, lead them in and then have the freshman up to the colors. Of course, the first group of men would come in in the form of a wedge.

Cobb—I feel that it is my duty to relate to you the
The Rush—An Epic of Sophomore Life

SCENE I. MERCER CAMPUS

The day was as warm as the sophomores’ collars. The tree was growing a foot every quarter of an hour. The hangings were greening rapidly, reverting their signet rushes, fading into the light of common landscapes. The hour of the historical and histrionic rush for colors was at hand and fate at the hands of the freshmen and at the feet of the sophs.

The curtains of Sherwood parted and upon the ancient field strode a majestic general who had dared to blush seen and who had aspired to wound Achilles by striking him on the chest. Aye, one who had written an ambitious satire on a certain advisory system and who had awakened the next morning to find himself—(assuming an inglorious one upon the field and whatever cheers that had preceded him gave up their ghosts.

There was courage in his footfalls;
There was hope in each dull eye;
He could dream of purple carpets.

As he stumbled through the rye.

The freshman awaited his majesty with hope springing not exactly eternally in their superhuman breasts; and sophomores tainted the alkalied air with their sneers and jeers at the haughty senior who had dared to don freshman sackcloth.

A few minutes later: a horde of gleamed and blood-thirsty FIRST YEAR MEN followed their strategic leader from the chapel and onto the field.

SCENE II. WESLEYAN CAMPUS

The day was somewhat cooler for some than it had been some thirty minutes previous. Sophomores were shouting home and lining himself to the fresh, demanding them by the right of “superior personality and intellect” to baptize themselves in the name of the sophomores, the sophomores and the sophomores. The masonic and literary froth came out of the water singing “Home of the Brave, our Boys.” A curly, surly soph, who distinguished himself by getting as close to the Rush as forty safe feet from the tree that held the colors, drew his belt as though he were a fearless Saracen brandishing a sabre; he charged upon the foul wretches who had dared to enroll as FIRST YEAR MEN. His valor was slow about, but his rage gathered health and proportions where danger was not present. Though he bewildered the Rush himself, he now had the courage to rush where any nice angel should fear to tread, I would call his name, but I don’t care to get into the habit of saying bad words. To place him in a definite category, I might say that he reminds his fellows of The Twenty Male Team in 1819, from the point of view of New York City.

A freshman is ordered to dive to the bottomest portion of the liquid. He aspires to add virtue to duty and climbs to the topmost point of the fountain and makes a swan dive into the eighteen-inch pool; his swan dive gets ambitious and almost gives birth to a swan song. Sudden sorrow overcomes the sophs and they repent for five seconds—fully.

The horde of victims are paraded across the narrow street and are commanded to rise to the requirements of the Metropolitan Opera Company. As speeches go up to the sun in company with the water that is absorbed from the shreds of clothes that the freshmen are seen in their glory—as they bask in the admiring glances of the Wesleyan belles who thrill to such courage and age as the sight of the righteous Whigs are heard half way across Maccon—the whispers of some sophomore swain as he prepares to sing some Wesleyanne for a date Saturday night at the reception. He receives a nod of acceptance from the damsel who thrills with the attention of this new-born hero. He turns away to join the mob and fails entirely to see the humor in the scene before him; freshmen supporting fatigued sophomores who have become physical wrecks while trying to inflict punishment upon the healthy and playful freshmen.

SCENE III. WESLEYAN PARLOR

(Saturday Night)

The socially successful soph strides into the presence of myriads of lads and lasses. Never before—since the day before when he had commanded a horde of rats—had he revelled in such glory. He is met in the hall by a beaming, boxum matron.

“Good evening,” he says to her, and it doesn’t occur to him that it is possible that she may not be intimately acquainted with the name to which he answers.

“May I see Miss Smith?” inquires of her, ignoring the question of her burly, surly siphon, who distinguished himself by getting as close to the Rush as forty safe feet from the tree that held the colors, drew his belt as though he were a fearless Saracen brandishing a sabre; he charged upon the foul wretches who had dared to enroll as FIRST YEAR MEN. His valor was slow about, but his rage gathered health and proportions where danger was not present. Though he bewildered the Rush himself, he now had the courage to rush where any nice angel should fear to tread, I would call his name, but I don’t care to get into the habit of saying bad words. To place him in a definite category, I might say that he reminds his fellows of The Twenty Male Team in 1819, from the point of view of New York City.

Evolution in Three Acts—By a Freshman

ROMANTICISM

He was a high school seniors and the world was good. There was nothing dramatic about his high school graduation—the home town stood in awe—and the graduating class sat silent until the self-esteem of the class members was doubled. Was it little wonder that he thought that he was conferring an honor on his college by enrolling as his Alma Mater.

He picked up a year book published by the institution. Therein he saw, portrayed in supposedly natural colors, the buildings on the campus. "Surely," he thought, "college will be a paradise." His mind was filled with illusions and these illusions brought on other illusions. He began to think of college not as a place where he should study and study as he had never studied before, but as a place of happiness to be enjoyed forever. In his mind ran strange thoughts—fraternities—dances—campus honors.

FATALISM

College at last. No more mother’s knee and apron string stuff. Wine, women, and—now why, waste time singing. But what was this? There, by the tree, were two boys—large boys, and they were beckoning to him. Maybe they were going to try to get him in their fraternity. They were freshmen and wanted to know where some building was. "Brace up, fresh—they think you are an upper classman. Maintain the illusion." They of modern conflict strode and thrashed the boys. His mind was in the clouds, but had a quick descent to earth. One of the boys, who had been a fellow of the seventh, this seventeen, they commanded him to straighten up. One of them, who had a pair of scissors, said they were going to cut his hair," he said to himself. And sure enough, they did.

A little later, he was looking at the dingy walls of the dormitory, and later, at the barren walls of his own room. Wiped clean. He was impressed by the monotony of college life—the sameness of it. For the first time since he had left high school, he thought, and thought logically. He realized how fragile was the barrier between illusion and disillusion. He realized that this is a world of realism and not of illusion. He realized that the real joy except the joy of accomplishment—and finally, that a bid to a fraternity comes as a reward for keeping one’s mouth closed and working.

REALISM

The student’s ideals are shattered—they are broken down, but they justly deserved it, for they were false. He usually recovers, and if he is a man, he builds himself new ideas—better, and more likely to stand against the trials of life. But it would have been far better if his mind had never been filled with illusions, for it is hard to lay down ideals—though they are false—and to become accustomed to being treated as a rat. And it is impossible for him to think clearly until his false ideas have been destroyed and he gets a clearer conception of college life.

The question is: What causes the illusion? The fault lies partly with the college annuals. They create a sort of artificial beauty, which is very deceptive but is very inviting to the high school student. But, in these efforts to create artificial beauty, they miss the real beauty of college buildings by recognition of which comes only through association with them, magazines wrongly portray real college life. They usually picture it in such a way as to make a high school student’s mind of slick hair—baggy trousers—dance all night, drinking and smoking—it—and pennats waving high at a football game. Why can’t it be pictured as a student laboring over a Latin or a French spell—growing in the sun—getting something out of what a laugh would arise if College Humor would come out with a cartoon of a boy performing a Chemistry experiment, humming a tune, and electricity meetings before exams? The freshmen are driven to them like herded cattle to the more football games. And they call that "College spirit."
